Dear [redacted]

Thanks for that - yes agreed: I raised your point with [redacted] and he understands and is making some enquiries - and I will touch base with [redacted] as new contact at FSA.

Although the risks to human health are better established with greater precision and indeed quantified, the risks to wildlife are likely to be more difficult (and wise heads needed). In both instances we have to address objective risks such as to children's IQ (where we know that eating so much bird game is likely to have the given effect) but also the broad spectrum of effects especially to wildlife, extending beyond waterfowl - but not knowing how far - especially in the longer term and in a potentially more challenging natural environment for them. How long is the string?!

All best and in haste,

[redacted]

Dear [redacted]

Thanks for this, just a couple of observations from me, that given the majority of the risks coming forward seem to be on the health and food side, are we adequately covered with experts for that?

Both David Stroud and Colin Galbraith will offer a conservation point – I don't know John Krebs – his Wikipedia entry shows his specialty is ornithology. Is [redacted] able to recommend anyone perhaps on the health side?

And the principle of the workshop needs to be run past the FSA too now?

Kind regards

Dear [redacted] and [redacted],

At last I can confirm that the Lead Ammunition Group Forum looks set fair to happen!

I launched the principle at the LAG meeting on 25 June - with date, venue, topics to be covered and some key names of session chairs etc. The response was generally supportive. It was written up in the minutes and members have had time to kick off if they were going to - but none has. Hence, I am working on the basis that the Forum proposal can move forward.

My next step, having established some principles, is to circulate a detailed proposal and agenda (such as you have already seen) to all the members for detailed comment - and we can fine-tune as appropriate. I shall do that circulation in the next day or so.

Assuming 10 days is reasonable for feedback, what are your availabilities in weeks commencing 4th and 8th August as I think it may be appropriate to get together for a detailed planning session - perhaps with the EGI's in-house event organisers.

If John Krebs, David Stroud and Colin Galbraith could be given the 'heads up' to hang onto the dates 10-11 December …?

I am copying this to [redacted] to keep her in the loop

[redacted] - I seem to recall you kindly offered to provide what organisational support you can so if you have better ideas please let me know.

With all good wishes,

[redacted]

PS My swallows are on the brink of fledging too …

Some prices herewith. Note that they seem to be out-of-date so may be a bit more. Not sure if I can persuade the Dept that it is an internal rate!)
We need either LTB (takes up to 90 fairly comfortably), plus the "breakout" areas. Or, if smaller group D38 (the comfy room we looked into). However, I think that if we do this, we really need D37 as well. This is the room we were sitting in and opens into D38; we would really need this for lunch/coffees etc).
Haste
[redacted]
PS I have a "holding" booking on LTB and D38 for 10 and 11 Dec.
