What if the person died in the last six months?

If the person died within the last six months, a grant may not have been issued yet. You should check the online search service regularly to see when a grant has been issued. You can then order the documents.

If you are unable to search online, you may apply for a standing search to enable a single copy to be sent to you when the grant issues. The copy will not be sealed.

After a period of six months without result, your standing search will expire. You are able to extend the search for a further six months within one month of the expiry date by sending a further £3.

We will send you a letter telling you the date the standing search was entered.
