About this guidance

This guidance advises an employer how to conduct a right to work check and sets out the specific actions you can take to prevent liability for a civil penalty. This is called 'establishing a statutory excuse against liability for a penalty'.

This guidance applies to right to work checks conducted on or after 31 August 2021 to establish or retain a statutory excuse from having to pay a civil penalty for employing a person who is not permitted to do the work in question.

Previous versions of guidance

The civil penalty scheme to prevent illegal working commenced on 29 February 2008 (further to the Immigration Asylum and Nationality Act 2006). It was not introduced retrospectively. Employers are, therefore, not required to have a statutory excuse in respect of those whose employment commenced before 29 February 2008 and who have been employed continuously for them prior to that date. Between January 1997 and February 2008, section 8 of the Asylum and Immigration Act 1996 applied to right to work checks conducted during this period.

Where the employment commenced on or after 29 February 2008, and a statutory excuse was established for the duration of that person's employment before 16 May 2014, the document checks set out in the 'Full guide for employers on preventing illegal working in the UK' published in October 2013 continue to apply.

Where the employment commenced on or after 16 May 2014, and a statutory excuse was established for the duration of that person's employment before 28 January 2019, the document checks set out in the 'Employer's guide to right to work checks', last published on 29 June 2018, continue to apply.

For example, since 16 May 2014, for those people in the UK who require permission to work and reside, an immigration endorsement must be in a current passport to demonstrate a right to work. However, if you conducted a check between 29 February 2008 and 15 May 2014 and accepted an immigration endorsement in a passport that had expired or has since expired, your statutory excuse continues because this was an acceptable document at the time you conducted the check. You are only required to conduct follow up checks on an employee if their right to work is time-limited.

Since 28 January 2019, employers have been able to rely on the Home Office online service, view a job applicant's right to work to establish a statutory excuse.

Where the employment commenced on or after 28 January 2019, and a statutory excuse was established for the duration of that person's employment before 1 January 2021, the document checks set out in the 'Employer's guide to right to work checks', last published on 28 January 2019, continue to apply.

The UK has left the European Union (EU) and the Immigration and Social Security Co-ordination (EU Withdrawal) Act 2020 ended free movement on 31 December 2020. On 1

January 2021, a grace period of six months began, during which time relevant aspects of free movement were saved to allow eligible EU, EEA and Swiss (EEA) citizens and their family members resident in the UK by 31 December 2020 to apply to the EU Settlement Scheme (EUSS). This period ended on 30 June 2021.

Where the employment of an EEA citizen commenced on or after 1 January 2021, and a statutory excuse was established for the duration of that person's employment before 1 July 2021, the document checks set out in the 'Employer's guide to right to work checks', last published on 17 March 2021, continue to apply.

Where the employment of an EEA citizen commenced on or after 1 July 2021, and a statutory excuse was established for the duration of that person's employment before 31 August 2021, the document checks set out in the 'Employer's right to work checks supporting guidance', last published on 2 July 2021 continue to apply. These changes included.

- Changes to the way EEA citizens prove their right to work in the UK from 1 July 2021
- Changes to the acceptable document list to remove EEA passports, national identity cards and specified EEA Regulations documents, which only confirmed the individual's nationality or that they were exercising EEA Treaty Rights
- Changes to the acceptable document list to include:
 - Irish passport and passport card
 - A document issued by the Crown Dependencies Jersey, Guernsey, or the Isle of Man, which has been verified as valid by the Home Office Employer Checking Service
 - A frontier worker permit issued under regulation 8 of the Citizens' Rights (Frontier Workers) (EU Exit) Regulations 2020

On 6 August 2021, the government announced temporary protection for more applicants to the EUSS. This means that those who apply from 1 July 2021, and joining family members, will have their rights protected while their application is determined.

Where the employment of an EEA citizen commenced on or after 31 August 2021, this guidance, last published on 17 January 2022 continues to apply. The changes included.

- I. Changes to the way those with outstanding applications to the EUSS evidence their right to work, Annex B refers
- II. Changes to the lists of acceptable documents:
 - a. Removal of duplication from List B, Group 1, no.5
 - b. Amendment to List B, Group 2, no.2
 - c. Addition at List B, Group 2, no.5
- III. Extension to the COVID-19 temporary adjusted right to work checking process

Summary of changes in this issue of the guidance

This guidance was last updated on 16 December 2021 and 17 January 2022.

The most significant updates contained in this guidance relate to:

- I. Update on the use of BRP/Cs to prove right to work. Guidance for employers and Identity Service Providers (IDSPs) regarding the use of digital identity verification.

1. Introduction

All employers in the UK have a responsibility to prevent illegal working. You do this by conducting simple right to work checks before you employ someone, to make sure the individual is not disqualified from carrying out the work in question by reason of their immigration status.

This guidance provides information on how and when to conduct a right to work check. You should also refer to the following documents:

- Code of practice on preventing illegal working: Civil penalty scheme for employers
- Code of practice for employers: avoiding unlawful discrimination while preventing illegal working

If you conduct the checks as set out in this guide and the code of practice, you will have a statutory excuse against liability for a civil penalty in the event you are found to have employed someone, who is prevented from carrying out the work in question, by reason of their immigration status. This means that if we find that you have employed someone who does not have the right to do the work in question, but you have correctly conducted right to work checks as required, you will not receive a civil penalty for that illegal worker.

In addition to the codes of practice and this guidance, there are a range of tools available on GOV.UK to support you in conducting right to work checks.

Why do we need to prevent illegal working?

The ability to work illegally is a key driver of illegal migration. It leaves people vulnerable to exploitation and results in unscrupulous employers undercutting compliant businesses. It can also negatively impact on the wages of lawful workers and is linked to other labour market abuse such as tax evasion, breach of the national minimum wage and exploitative working conditions, including modern slavery in the most serious cases.

Legislation

The law on preventing illegal working is set out in sections 15 to 25 of the Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Act 2006 (the 2006 Act), section 24B of the Immigration Act 1971, and Schedule 6 of the Immigration Act 2016.

The 2006 Act replaced section 8 of the Asylum and Immigration Act 1996 (the 1996 Act) in respect of employment commencing on or after 29 February 2008. The civil penalty provisions in the 2006 Act do not apply to continuous employment with the same employer that commenced before 29 February 2008, for which a statutory excuse is, therefore, not required. Under section 15 of the 2006 Act, an employer may be liable for a civil penalty if they employ someone who does not have the right to undertake the work in question if that person commenced employment on or after 29 February 2008.

Who is this guidance relevant for?

Employers, including their Human Resource staff and those staff within the same business with delegated responsibility for the recruitment and employment of individuals, should read this guidance to understand their responsibility to correctly carry out right to work checks, and, therefore, ensure compliance with the law.

This guidance applies to employers who employ staff under a contract of employment, service or apprenticeship, whether expressed or implied and whether oral or in writing.

As the employer, you are liable for the civil penalty even if the actual check is performed by a member of your staff. You will not establish a statutory excuse if the check is performed by a third party, such as a recruitment agency or your professional adviser, if you are the employer. In simple terms, the check must be carried out by the employer who the contract of employment is with.

Even if you are not the direct employer of the workers involved in your business, there are compelling reasons why you should seek to know that your workers have a right to work. If illegal workers are removed from your business, it may disrupt your operations and result in reputational damage. There could be adverse impacts on your health and safety and safeguarding obligations, as well as the potential invalidation of your insurance if the identity, qualifications, and skill levels of your workers are not as claimed. Accordingly, you may wish to check that your contractors conduct the correct right to work checks on people they employ.

References in this guidance

'Breach' or 'breaches' mean that section 15 of the Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Act 2006 has been contravened by employing someone who is:

- subject to immigration control; and
- aged over 16; and
- not allowed to carry out the work in question because either they have not been granted leave to enter or remain in the UK or because their leave to enter or remain in the UK:
 - is invalid;
 - has ceased to have effect (meaning it no longer applies) whether by reason of curtailment, revocation, cancellation, passage of time or otherwise; or
 - is subject to a condition preventing the person from doing work of that kind.

A breach also refers to the contravention of the Accession of Croatia \(Immigration and Worker Authorisation\) Regulations 2013.

'Certificate of Application' (CoA) is a digital, or 'non-digital', document which individuals can rely on to demonstrate their eligibility to work, rent, and access to benefits and services. This document is issued when a valid application made to the EU Settlement Scheme.

'Civil Penalty Notice' means a notice given under section 15(2) of the Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Act 2006 that requires an employer to pay a penalty of a specified amount.

'Current document' means a document that has not expired.

'Employer Checking Service' refers to the Home Office service that employers are required to contact in certain circumstances (such as those described in this guidance) to check whether a person is allowed to work in the UK and, if so, the nature of any restrictions on that person's right to do so. Employers must receive positive confirmation of a person's right to work from the Employer Checking Service in order to have a statutory excuse against liability for a civil penalty. This is referred to as a Positive Verification Notice.

'Employment of illegal workers within the previous three years means you have been issued with a civil penalty or warning notice in respect of a breach of the 2006 Act or the Accession of Croatia Regulations 2013 (which applied until July 2018) for one or more workers which occurred within three years of the current breach, and where your liability was maintained following the exercise of any objection and/or appeal, or you have committed an offence under section 21 of the 2006 Act, as amended by the Immigration Act 2016, during the same period.

'We' or 'us' in this guidance mean the Home Office.

'You' and 'your' in the guidance mean the employer.

2. How to conduct a right to work check?

You should conduct a right to work check before you employ a person to ensure they are legally allowed to do the work in question for you. If an individual's right to work is time-limited, you should conduct a follow-up check shortly before it is due to come to an end.

There are two types of right to work checks: a manual document-based check and an online check. Conducting either the manual document-based check or the online check as set out in this guidance and in the code of practice will provide you with a statutory excuse.

You can also use the Employer Checking Service where an individual has an outstanding application, administrative review or appeal, or if their immigration status requires verification by the Home Office, for example in the case of Crown Dependencies.

Conducting a manual document-based right to work check

There are three steps to conducting a manual document-based right to work check. You need to complete all three steps before employment commences to ensure you have conducted a check in the prescribed manner, in order to establish a statutory excuse.

Step 1: Obtain

You must obtain original documents from either List A or List B of acceptable documents at Annex A.

Step 2: Check

You must check that the documents are genuine and that the person presenting them is the prospective employee or employee, the rightful holder and allowed to do the type of work you are offering. You must check that:

1. photographs and dates of birth are consistent across documents and with the person's appearance in order to detect impersonation;
2. expiry dates for permission to be in the UK have not passed;
3. any work restrictions to determine if they are allowed to do the type of work on offer (for students who have limited permission to work during term-times, you must also obtain, copy and retain details of their academic term and vacation times covering the duration of their period of study in the UK for which they will be employed);
4. the documents are genuine, have not been tampered with and belong to the holder; and
5. the reasons for any difference in names across documents can be explained by providing evidence (e.g. original marriage certificate, divorce decree absolute, deed poll). These supporting documents must also be photocopied and a copy retained.

Step 3: Copy

You must make a clear copy of each document in a format which cannot manually be altered and retain the copy securely: electronically or in hardcopy. You must also retain a secure record of the date on which you made the check. Simply writing a date on the copy document does not, in itself, confirm that this is the actual date when the check was undertaken. If you write a date on the copy document, you must also record that this is the date on which you conducted the check.

You must copy and retain copies of:

1. Passports: any page with the document expiry date, the holder's nationality, date of birth, signature, leave expiry date, biometric details, photograph and any page containing information indicating the holder has an entitlement to enter or remain in the UK (visa or entry stamp) and undertake the work in question (the front cover no longer has to be copied).
2. All other documents: the document in full, including both sides of a Biometric Residence Permit, Application Registration Card and a Residence Card (biometric format).

All copies of documents taken should be kept securely for the duration of the worker's employment and for two years afterwards. The copy must then be securely destroyed.

We recommend you use our:

- employers' 'Right to Work Checklist' to ensure you have correctly carried out all the steps you need to; or
- online interactive tool 'Check if someone can work in the UK', which will take you through the process by asking you a series of questions.

Both will help you to confirm that you have undertaken each step correctly to establish your statutory excuse.

Step 1: Acceptable documents

The documents you may accept from a person to demonstrate their right to work are set out in two lists – List A and List B. These are set out in Annex A to this guidance.

List A contains the range of documents you may accept for a person who has a permanent right to work in the UK. If you conduct the right to work checks correctly before employment begins, you will establish a continuous statutory excuse for the duration of that person's employment with you. You do not have to conduct any further checks on this individual.

List B contains a range of documents you may accept for a person who has a temporary right to work in the UK. If you conduct the right to work checks correctly, you will establish a time-limited statutory excuse. You will be required to conduct a follow-up check in order to retain your statutory excuse. This should be undertaken in the same way as the original check.

Step 2: Checking the validity of documents

When you are checking the validity of the documents, you should ensure that you do this in the presence of the holder. This can be a physical presence in person or via a live video link. In both cases you must be in physical possession of the original documents. For example, an individual may choose to send their documents to you by post to enable you to conduct the check with them via live video link. You may not rely on the inspection of the document via a live video link or by checking a faxed or scanned copy of the document.

The responsibility for checking the document is yours. Whilst it may be delegated to your members of staff, you will remain liable for the penalty in the event the individual is found to be working illegally and the prescribed check has not been correctly carried out. You may not delegate this responsibility to a third party. Whilst you may use a third party to provide support in terms of technical knowledge or specialised equipment to prevent the employment of illegal workers, the responsibility for performing the check (in order to obtain a statutory excuse from a civil penalty) will remain with you as the employer.

If you are given a false document, you will only be liable for a civil penalty if it is reasonably apparent that it is false. This means that a person who is untrained in the identification of false documents, examining it carefully, but briefly, and without the use of technological aids could reasonably be expected to realise that the document in question is not genuine.

You will not obtain a statutory excuse if:

- the check is performed by an individual who is not employed by you;
- it is reasonably apparent that the person presenting the document is not the person referred to in that document, even if the document itself is genuine. You may be liable to prosecution if you know or have reasonable cause to believe that the individual does not have immigration permission to work;
- you know that the individual is not permitted to undertake the work in question; or
- you know that the documents are false or do not rightfully belong to the holder.

You may wish to read the online guidance about recognising fraudulent identity documents. Guidance on examining identity documents can be found on GOV.UK. You can also compare identity and travel documents against the images published on:

- PRADO - Public Register of Authentic travel and identity Documents Online; or
- EdisonTD

These are archives of identity and travel documents.

You may also wish to consider using commercially available document validation technology to help check the authenticity of biometric documents presented to you, notably passports and biometric residence permits (BRPs). There is no requirement that you do this in order to have a statutory excuse against a civil penalty, but using this technology is likely to increase the security of your checking procedures. Guidance about identity document validation technology is available on GOV.UK.

If someone gives you a false document or a genuine document that does not belong to them, you should use this link to report the individual to us, or call our Employer Enquiry helpline on 0300 790 6268 (Monday to Thursday, 9am to 4:45pm; Friday 9am to 4:30pm).

Step 3: Retaining evidence

You must keep a record of every document you have checked. This can be a hardcopy or a scanned copy in a format which cannot be manually altered, such as a jpeg or pdf document. You should keep the copies securely for the duration of the person's employment and for a further two years after they stop working for you. You should also be able to produce these document copies quickly in the event that you are requested to show them to demonstrate that you have performed a right to work check and retain a statutory excuse.

You must also make a note of the date on which you conducted the check. This can be by either making a dated declaration on the copy or by holding a separate record, securely, which can be shown to us upon request. This date may be written on the document copy as follows: 'the date on which this right to work check was made: [insert date]' or a manual or digital record may be made at the time you conduct and copy the documents which includes this information. You must be able to show this evidence if requested to do so in order to demonstrate that you have established a statutory excuse. You must repeat this process in respect of any follow up check.

You may face a civil penalty if you do not record the date on which the check was performed.

Simply writing a date on the copy document does not, in itself, confirm that this is the actual date when the check was undertaken. If you write a date on the copy document, you must also record that this is the date on which you conducted the check.

Conducting an online right to work check

An online right to work check will provide you with a statutory excuse against a civil penalty in the event of illegal working involving the subject of the check. You can do an online check by using the online service, entitled 'View a job applicant's right to work details' on GOV.UK.

It will not be possible to conduct an online right to work check in all circumstances, as not all individuals will have an immigration status that can be checked online. The online right to work checking service sets out what information you will need. In circumstances in which an online check is not possible, you should conduct the manual check.

Currently, the online service supports checks in respect of those who hold:

- a biometric residence permit;
- a biometric residence card;
- status issued under the EU Settlement Scheme;
- a digital Certificate of Application to the EU Settlement Scheme issued on or before 30 June 2021;

- status issued under the points-based immigration system;
- British National Overseas (BNO) visa; or
- Frontier workers permit

You should give employees every opportunity to demonstrate their right to work. You cannot insist that they use the online service or discriminate against those who choose to prove their right to work by presenting you with documents which also feature on the list of acceptable document lists.

While you may choose to encourage use of the online check and may support individuals in doing so (e.g. by providing access to hardware and the internet), you are not permitted to mandate online checks, except for those individuals who have been provided with digital evidence of their immigration status only (known as an eVisa). If an individual does not wish to demonstrate their right to work using the online service, even if their immigration status or documentation is compatible with the online service, you should conduct a manual document-based right to work check.

How does the service work?

The service works on the basis of the individual first viewing their own Home Office right to work record. They may then share this information with you if they wish, by providing you with a 'share code', which, when entered along with the individual's date of birth, enables you to access the information. The share code will be valid for 30 days from the point it has been issued and can be used as many times as needed within that time.

Share codes are service specific. An individual cannot use a code generated by another Home Office service (e.g. right to rent) for the purpose of a right to work online check.

If a share code has expired, or the individual has used a code generated by another service, you must ask them to resend you a new right to work share code.

The employer part of the service is called 'View a job applicant's right to work details' and is available on GOV.UK. You must access the service using the employer part of the service in order to obtain a statutory excuse. It is not sufficient to view the information provided to the employee, or prospective employee, when they view their profile using the migrant part of the Home Office online right to work checking service. The Home Office has an audit record of online checks conducted by employers using the service. You will not establish a statutory excuse by viewing the migrant part of the service.

There are three steps to conducting an online right to work check. The steps below explain in more detail what you need to do in each of the three steps to correctly conduct an online right to work check.

Step 1: Use the Home Office online service

The Home Office online service works on the basis of the person first viewing their own Home Office right to work record. They may then share this information with you by providing you with a 'share code'. When this code is entered along with the person's date of birth, it enables you to access their right to work profile page. The share code will be valid for 30 days and can be used as many times as needed within the 30 days, after which a new code will be required in order to conduct an online check.

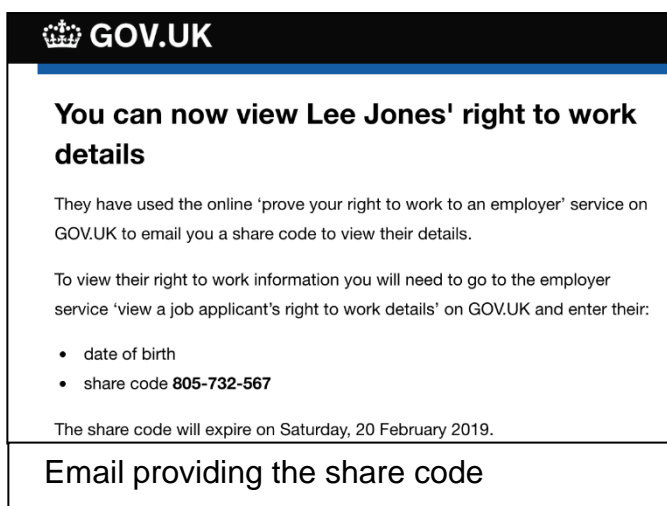

Each share code is unique and cannot be used for another purpose. If required for another purpose, a new share code must be generated, choosing the correct option.

The individual may provide the share code to you directly, or they may choose to send this to you via the service. If they choose to send it to you via the service, you will receive an email from right.to.work.service@notifications.service.gov.uk.

To check the person's right to work details, you will need to:

- access the service 'View a job applicant's right to work details' via GOV.UK
- enter the 'share code' provided to you by the individual, and
- enter their date of birth

It is not sufficient to simply view the details provided to the individual on the migrant part of the service, and doing so will not provide you with a statutory excuse.

The above image is an example of the message an employer receives when an individual has sent their share code to the employer via the online service.

Step 2: Check

In the presence of the individual (in person or via live video link), you must check that the photograph on the online right to work check is of the individual presenting themselves for work (i.e. the information provided by the check relates to the individual and they are not an imposter).

You must only employ the person, or continue to employ an existing employee, if you are conducting a follow-up check, if the online check confirms they have the right to work and are not subject to a condition preventing them from doing the work in question.

If the online right to work check does not confirm that the individual has the right to work in the UK and do the work in question, you will not have established a statutory excuse from this check if you proceed to employ them. If you know or have reasonable cause to believe that they do not have the right to work, and employ them anyway, you risk being found guilty of a criminal offence.

If you employ someone on the basis of the online check, but it is reasonably apparent from the photograph that the individual working is not the individual to whom the information provided in the check relates, you may face a civil penalty in the event of illegal working.

Step 3: Retain evidence of the online check

You must retain evidence of the online right to work check. For online checks, this should be the 'profile' page confirming the individual's right to work. This is the page that includes the individual's photo and date on which the check was conducted. You will have the option of printing the profile or saving it as a PDF or HTML file.

You should store this securely, (electronically or in hardcopy) for the duration of employment and for two years afterwards. The file must then be securely destroyed.

Should illegal working be identified, you will need to be able to evidence that you have conducted a right to work check in order to have a statutory excuse and avoid a civil penalty. By retaining evidence of the check as above, you will be able to present this to an Immigration Officer in the event of illegal working.

When to contact the Home Office to verify right to work

In certain circumstances, you will need to contact the Home Office's Employer Checking Service (ECS) to establish a statutory excuse. These are when:

1. You are presented with a document (non-digital CoA or an acknowledgement letter or email) confirming receipt of an application to EUSS on or before 30 June 2021; or
2. You are presented with non-digital CoA confirming receipt of an application to the EUSS on or after 1 July 2021; or
3. You have checked a digital CoA, using the online service, confirming receipt of an application to the EUSS on or after 1 July 2021, and been directed to the ECS; or
4. You are presented with an Application Registration Card stating that the holder is permitted to undertake the work in question. If the card contains an expiry date, this date must not have expired. Any work will be restricted to employment in a shortage occupation; or
5. You are satisfied that you have not been provided with any acceptable documents because the person has an outstanding application with us which was made before their previous permission expired or has an appeal or administrative review pending against our decision and therefore cannot provide evidence of their right to work; or
6. You consider that you have not been provided with any acceptable documents, but the person presents other information indicating they are a long-term resident of the UK who arrived in the UK before 1988.

In the above circumstances, you will establish a statutory excuse only if you are issued with a Positive Verification Notice (PVN) from us confirming that the named person is allowed to carry out the type of work in question.

You should not contact the ECS where employment commenced before 29 February 2008 and has been continuous ever since. You will receive a Negative Verification Notice because this employment is out of scope of the civil penalty scheme.

To find out if you need to request a verification check from the ECS and to conduct that check, you should use the online tool 'Employer Checking Service'.

Certificate of Application

You must make a copy of this document and retain this copy, in the usual way. If you are required to verify the CoA with the ECS, you must also obtain and keep a copy of the Positive Verification Notice (PVN). In so doing, you will have a statutory excuse for six months from the date stated in the PVN. A PVN will not provide a statutory excuse if you know that the employment is not permitted. In such circumstances, you will also be committing a criminal offence.

Application Registration Card and asylum seekers

Since July 2017, new upgraded Application Registration Cards (ARC) have been issued to new asylum claimants through a gradual rollout. The ARC is the card used by asylum claimants to demonstrate they have made an asylum claim. The new ARC closely resembles the Biometric Residence Permit. It includes extra security features, a biometric facial image and an expiry date. Whilst the earlier version of the ARC is no longer being issued, the cards already in circulation will continue to be acceptable until they expire.

Asylum claimants are not normally allowed to work whilst their claim is being considered. They are instead provided with accommodation and support to meet their essential living needs if they would otherwise be destitute. We may grant permission to work to asylum seekers whose claim has been outstanding for more than 12 months through no fault of their own. Anyone allowed to work under this policy is restricted to working in jobs on the shortage occupation list published by the Home Office. Their ARC will state “work permitted shortage OCC”. Any permission to work granted will come to an end if their claim is refused and any appeal rights are exhausted because at that point, they are expected to leave the UK.

You may accept a new biometric style or an old-style ARC as evidence of a right to work, provided you verify the right to work and any work restrictions by obtaining a Positive Verification Notice issued by our Employer Checking Service (ECS). This excuse will expire six months from the date of the Positive Verification Notice, when a further check must be undertaken if the statutory excuse is to be retained.

If you receive a Negative Verification Notice from the ECS, which informs you that the individual does not have the right to work, and you employ this person, you will not have a statutory excuse and may be liable for a civil penalty or be committing a criminal offence. Further information about employing asylum seekers may be found in Permission to work and volunteering for asylum seekers guidance.

Anyone who is granted permission to remain in the UK as a refugee, or who is granted humanitarian protection has unrestricted access to the labour market. A refugee may demonstrate their work entitlement through their Biometric Residence Permit or Immigration Status Document (an older form of document issued to refugees and certain other categories of migrant prior to the introduction of the Biometric Residence Permit).

Outstanding applications, appeals and administrative reviews

If you request verification from the Employer Checking Service (ECS), because the employee or potential employee has an outstanding application with us or appeal or administrative review against a Home Office decision, you should wait at least 14 days after the application, appeal or administrative review has been delivered or posted to us or the court, before requesting a verification check. This is because it takes this amount of time for most applications, appeals or administrative reviews to be registered with the Home Office.

In order to make the verification request with the ECS, you must obtain confirmation from your employee or potential employee of when the application, appeal or administrative review was made to the Home Office. This information must be included in the request form.

The ECS aims to provide a response within five working days of receiving a valid request. It is your responsibility to inform the person you intend to employ, or continue employing, that you are carrying out this check on them, to complete the verification request correctly and to make the request at least 14 days after the date of the application, appeal or administrative review was delivered or posted.

Windrush generation individuals

The Government has put in place additional safeguards to ensure that those who have lived lawfully in the UK since before 1988 are not denied access to work.

In some circumstances, individuals of the Windrush generation (those who arrived in the UK before 1973) and those non-UK citizens who arrived in the UK between 1973 and 1988, may not be able to provide documentation from the acceptable document lists to demonstrate their entitlement to work in the UK. The Home Office has established the Windrush Help Team which is handling applications under the Windrush Scheme for confirmation of indefinite leave to remain, including a biometric residence permit or applications for British citizenship.

In these circumstances, you should contact the Employer Checking Service (ECS).

The ECS will notify the Windrush Help Team, who will contact the individual to confirm their circumstances and arrange for their status to be resolved. Working with the Windrush Help Team, the ECS will be able to confirm an individual's right to work in these circumstances and will do so by issuing you with a Positive Verification Notice (PVN).

A PVN issued by the ECS will provide you with a statutory excuse for six months from the date stated in the PVN. The information provided by the ECS will clearly set out whether a repeat check will be required, and if so, when.

The Windrush Help Team can offer support and guidance about the Windrush Scheme and advise individuals on how to apply. It can also help vulnerable people or those who need additional support. If a prospective employee or employee has been affected, they can contact the Windrush Help Team via the above link or by calling 0800 678 1925.

Biometric Residence Permits

The Home Office began rolling out Biometric Residence Permits (BRPs) in November 2008. Since July 2015, BRPs are the main form of physical evidence of lawful residence currently issued by the Home Office to most non-EEA citizens, and their dependants, who are granted permission to remain in the UK for more than six months.

BRPs are credit-card sized immigration documents that contain an embedded chip and incorporate security safeguards to combat fraud and tampering. BRPs, therefore, provide employers with a secure and simple means to conduct a right to work check. Employers should nevertheless remain vigilant and ensure they check that a BRP is genuine when conducting checks.

BRPs provide evidence of the holder's immigration status in the UK. They contain the holder's unique biometric identifiers (fingerprints, digital photo) within the chip. They also display a photo and biographical information on the face of the document and details of entitlements, such as access to work and/or public funds.

For migrants overseas, who are granted permission to enter the UK for more than six months, they are issued with a vignette (sticker) in their passport which will be valid for 30 days to enable them to travel to the UK. Following their arrival, they will have 10 days or before their vignette expires (whichever is later) to collect their BRP from the Post Office branch detailed in their decision letter. For most individuals granted permission to be in the UK and work, the BRP will be the document that demonstrates they have permission to work in the UK.

Those permitted to work in the UK are strongly encouraged to collect their BRP before they start work. If they need to start work for you prior to collecting their BRP, they will be able to evidence their right to work by producing the short validity vignette in their passport which they used to travel to the UK. You will need to conduct a manual right to work check on the basis of this vignette, which must be valid at the time of the check. However, as this will expire 30 days from issue, you will have to repeat the check using the BRP, either by conducting a manual or an online check, for the statutory excuse to continue.

Without conducting a subsequent check on the basis of the individual's BRP, you will not know when the individual's right to work will come to an end, if their permission is time-limited. In addition, without the BRP, the individual will have no evidence of their right to be in the UK and their right to work here. They will also not be able to travel back into the country.

If you employ someone on the basis of the short validity vignette and they are unable to present you with a BRP when the vignette time expires, you are not required to immediately terminate the employment if you believe the employee continues to have the right to work. However, once the 30 days has expired, you will not be able to establish a statutory excuse if it transpires that the employee is working illegally.

The Home Office online right to work checking service supports right to work checks in respect of BRP holders. Employees or prospective employees who hold this document may choose to demonstrate their right to work using the online service.

Biometric Residence Permits (BRPs) and National Insurance numbers

We are introducing an aligned BRP and National Insurance Number (NINo) process, on a phased basis, for those aged 16 or over. This currently applies to most migrants and dependants who have been granted leave to enter in any skilled worker category (General, Intra-Company Transfer, Minister of Religion and Sports person) or as a refugee and dependants, including those granted settled status through the protection route. In such cases, the NINo will appear in the remarks on the reverse of the BRP and there is no need for the migrant or the employer to make a separate application to the Department for Work and Pensions to obtain one.

By themselves, NINos do not provide evidence that someone has the right to work in the UK. However, adding the NINo to the BRP assists the employer in two ways. First, the BRP provides an employer with a secure and simple means of checking a migrant's right to work in the UK. Second, the provision of the NINo on the same document makes it easier for employers to meet their requirements to administer PAYE and national insurance.

3. Who do you conduct checks on?

You should ask all prospective employees to demonstrate their right to work using either a manual document check as set out in the code of practice, or by using the Home Office online right to work checking service. You cannot mandate how an individual proves their right to work. To ensure that you do not discriminate against anyone, you should provide every opportunity to enable an individual to prove their right to work.

You may face a civil penalty if you do not carry out a check on someone you have assumed has the right to work for you but is found to be an illegal worker.

Discrimination

You should not discriminate when conducting right to work checks. You should conduct right to work checks on all potential employees, including British citizens.

Do not simply check the status of those who appear to be migrants, otherwise you could be breaking the law.

You should not make assumptions about a person's right to work in the UK or their immigration status on the basis of their colour, nationality, ethnic or national origins, accent or the length of time they have been resident in the UK.

The 'Code of practice for employers: Avoiding unlawful discrimination while preventing illegal working' provides practical guidance on how to avoid unlawful discrimination when employing individuals and conducting right to work checks. We strongly recommend that you refer to this code and the Code of practice on preventing illegal working: Civil penalty scheme for employers when conducting right to work checks. If you breach this code of practice, it may be used as evidence in legal proceedings.

Anyone who believes that they have been discriminated against, either directly or indirectly, by an employer, a prospective employer or an employment agency, because of their race or a protected characteristic may bring a complaint before an Employment Tribunal, or an Industrial Tribunal in Northern Ireland. If the claim is upheld, the Tribunal will normally order the employer to pay compensation, for which there is no upper limit.

If you need expert advice and support on discrimination, you can call the Equality Advisory Support Service (EASS) on 0808 800 0082.

4. When do you conduct follow up checks?

You need to recheck the right to work of those individuals who have time-limited permission to work in the UK. This should occur when their previous permission comes to an end. The follow-up check is designed to prevent people from overstaying their immigration leave where this is time-limited. The Employer Checking Service can confirm the right to work of an individual who has an outstanding application or appeal to the immigration system (see above).

You are required to carry out an initial right to work check to prevent illegal working on all people you intend to employ before you employ them. Once you have completed this check, you will be required to carry out follow-up right to work checks if the individual's permission to be in the UK and to do the work in question is time-limited.

When conducting follow-up checks, you may use either the manual right to work check or the online right to work check where applicable, irrespective of the type of check you conducted originally, before employment commenced.

Manual document-based right to work checks

If you conduct a manual document-based right to work check and a person provides you with acceptable documents from List A at Annex A there is no restriction on their right to work in the UK, so you establish a continuous statutory excuse for the duration of that person's employment with you. There is no requirement for a follow-up check.

If you conduct a manual document-based right to work check and a person provides you with acceptable documents from List B there are restrictions on their right to work in the UK, so you will establish a time-limited statutory excuse. You are required to carry out follow-up checks on such a person. The frequency of these follow-up checks depends on whether the documents you are provided with are from Group 1 or Group 2.

Group 1 documents provide a time-limited statutory excuse which expires when the person's permission to work expires. This means that you should carry out a follow-up check shortly before permission which demonstrates their permission to work expires.

Group 2 documents provide a time-limited statutory excuse which expires six months from the date specified in your Positive Verification Notice. This means that you should carry out a follow-up check shortly before this notice expires.

When follow-up checks are required in relation to documentation provided as part of a manual right to work check.

Table 1: Follow-up Checks

If a document from List A is presented to you, then a continuous statutory excuse will be established. The right to work check will be required before employment starts only.

If a document from List B Group 1 is presented to you, then a time-limited statutory excuse will be established. A right to work check will be required before employment starts and again shortly before permission (as set out in the document checked) expires.

If a document from List B Group 2 is presented to you, then a time-limited statutory excuse will be established. A right to work check will be required before employment starts and again after six months (as set out in the Positive Verification Notice).

Online right to work checks

If you conduct an online right to work check and the information provided by the Home Office online right to work checking service indicates that the individual's right to work is time-limited, you should conduct a follow-up right to work check shortly before that permission (as set out in the online check) expires. If the individual's right to work is not time-limited, there is no requirement for you to repeat the check.

Contacting the Home Office

If, on the date on which permission expires (as set out in the document previously checked or the information provided by the Home Office online right to work checking service), you are reasonably satisfied that your employee:

- has submitted an in-time application to us to extend or vary their permission to be in the UK; or
- has made an appeal or an administrative review against a decision on that application which is outstanding; or
- is unable to provide acceptable documentation but presents other information indicating they are a non-EEA long-term lawful resident of the UK who arrived here before 1988

Your statutory excuse will continue from the expiry date of your employee's permission for a further period of up to 28 days to enable you to obtain a positive verification from the Employer Checking Service (ECS). This 'grace period' does not apply to checks carried out before employment commences. In such circumstances, you should delay employing the individual until you have received a Positive Verification Notice (PVN) from our ECS.

If during this period your employee provides evidence that their application, appeal or administrative review has been determined with permission to remain granted together with the relevant acceptable document from List A or List B Group 1, or they provide a share code allowing you to conduct an online check, you may maintain your excuse by checking these documents, or conducting the online check, in the normal way and a positive verification by the ECS will not be required. If, however, the individual presents documents from List B Group 2, you will need to obtain a new PVN from the ECS to maintain a statutory excuse.

A letter from a solicitor indicating a successful appeal or administrative review or a copy of a successful court judgment will not provide you with a statutory excuse.

You can reasonably satisfy yourself of a pending application through, for example, a Home Office acknowledgment letter or a Home Office or appeal tribunal reference number, and proof of date of postage. If your employee cannot provide this evidence, this does not necessarily mean that they have not made an application, appeal or applied for an administrative review.

In-time applications

A person's application for further immigration permission to stay in the UK must be made before their existing permission expires for it to be deemed 'in-time'. If they do this, any existing right to work will continue until that in-time application has been determined. In such circumstances, a Positive Verification Notice (PVN) from our Employer Checking Service \(ECS\) would demonstrate your statutory excuse for six months from the date of the Notice. If you receive a Negative Verification Notice in response to your verification request, you will no longer have a statutory excuse and you will be liable for a civil penalty if the person is not permitted to work in the UK. You may also be convicted of the offence of employing an illegal worker.

It is important that a person makes an application to the Home Office before their permission to be here expires, because this has an impact on their right to work.

Appeals and Administrative Reviews

A Positive Verification Notice (PVN) from our Employer Checking Service \(ECS\) will also be required to demonstrate a right to work where the person has an outstanding appeal or administrative review. It will provide a statutory excuse for six months from the date of the Notice.

Administrative reviews have replaced some rights of appeal where the applicant believes our decision to refuse their application is incorrect. For decisions made in the UK, the review application must be made within 14 calendar days from notification of the decision. Any previous permission to work continues during the period that an administrative review can be made and, if made, will continue until the administrative review has been determined (decided or withdrawn). This will normally be within 28 days. You will need to obtain a PVN from our ECS, to confirm that work is permitted. This Notice will provide you with a statutory excuse for six months from the date of the Notice.

Where an application for an administrative review is brought after the period for making an application has expired, we may decide to accept the administrative review as valid. If so, any permission to work will continue from the date that the administrative review is accepted. This will be confirmed by a PVN from the ECS. The individual will not be permitted to work between the date that their previous permission to work expired and the date we decide that the administrative review is valid.

Further detail on administrative reviews can be found on GOV.UK.

Transfer of undertakings

Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) (TUPE) Regulations 2006 provide that right to work checks carried out by the transferor (the seller) are deemed to have been carried out by the transferee (the buyer). As such, the buyer will obtain the benefit of any statutory excuse established by the seller.

However, if the seller did not conduct the original checks correctly, the buyer would be liable for a penalty if an employee, who commenced work on or after 29 February 2008, is later found to be working illegally. Also, a check by the buyer may be the only way to determine when any follow-up check should be carried out in respect of employees with time-limited permission to work in the UK.

For these reasons, employers who acquire staff in cases of TUPE transfers are advised to undertake a fresh right to work check on those staff they have acquired. Employers are not required to have a statutory excuse in respect of employment which commenced before 29 February 2008, where the individual has been in continuous employment prior to that date. This includes where employment has continued as part of a TUPE transfer.

We recognise that there may be practical problems in undertaking these checks before employment commences for workers acquired as part of a TUPE transfer, and for this reason a grace period has been provided during which you should undertake the check. This period runs for 60 days from the date of the transfer of the business to correctly carry out fresh right to work checks in respect of those TUPE employees acquired. There is no grace period for any subsequent follow-up checks.

This 60-day grace period applies in all situations where there is a “relevant transfer”¹, even if the transferring business is subject to “terminal” insolvency proceedings falling within regulation 8(7) of the 2006 TUPE Regulations, such as cases involving compulsory liquidation².

Changes in the Employer’s legal constitution

Where the employer is a corporate body and there has only been a change in the employer’s legal constitution e.g. a change from a private limited company to a public limited company or change from a partnership to a limited company or a limited liability partnership or a TUPE transfer within the same group of companies, the right to work check does not need to be repeated because of this change. This is only the case when the employer is effectively the same entity and is only changing its legal status. Where there is any doubt, we recommend that the employer checks the person's right to work, rather than risking liability for a civil penalty should an employee be found to be working illegally.

¹ as defined by Regulation 3 of the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations 2006 (the “TUPE Regulations”)

² The employment protections set out in Regulations 4 (continuation of employment) and 7 (protection from dismissal) of the TUPE Regulations are dis-applied in Regulation 8(7) cases.

5. What are the sanctions against illegal working?

Illegal working is tackled through a 'whole government approach'. Co-ordination across agencies in government, including HMRC, to ensure that illegal working is detected more effectively, is conducted through the sharing of intelligence and joint enforcement operations. When illegal working is identified, a range of sanctions are applied.

If you are found to be employing someone illegally and you have not carried out the prescribed checks, you may face sanctions including:

- a civil penalty of up to £20,000 per illegal worker;
- in serious cases, a criminal conviction carrying a prison sentence of up to five years and an unlimited fine;
- closure of the business and a compliance order issued by the court;
- disqualification as a director;
- not being able to sponsor migrants;
- seizure of earnings made as a result of illegal working; and review and possible revocation of a licence in the alcohol and late-night refreshment sector and the private hire vehicle and taxi sector.

Civil penalties

The amount of any civil penalty issued is determined on a case-by-case basis. The 'Code of practice on preventing illegal working' explains how a penalty is calculated, including mitigating factors which may reduce the penalty amount.

If you are found liable, you will be issued with a Civil Penalty Notice setting out the total penalty amount you are required to pay, and the date by which you must pay it. It will also inform you how you can exercise your right to object, following which you will be able to appeal. The employer must always object against the penalty notice before appealing to the court, except if served with a penalty notice for a higher amount following an objection.

Further information is contained in the 'Employer's guide to the administration of the civil penalty scheme' which sets out in more detail the stages of the civil penalty process, how the penalty is calculated, the range of notices you may receive and the deadlines by which you need to take action at each stage.

Receipt of a civil penalty could also affect your ability to sponsor migrants who come to the UK in the future (including those under the points-based immigration system) or your eligibility to hold a Gangmaster's licence. Being issued with a civil penalty may also affect your ability to hold a licence in the private hire and taxi sector and the alcohol and late-night refreshment sector.

If an employee is undertaking a role which is different from that for which the certificate of sponsorship was issued and permission to enter or remain was granted, you are employing the worker illegally. Further information on sponsoring migrants may be found on Sponsorship: guidance for employers and educators.

If you are an employer who is subject to immigration control, you should also be aware that if you are liable for a civil penalty, this will be recorded on Home Office systems and may be taken into account when we consider any future immigration application that you make.

The offence of employing an illegal worker

You will commit a criminal offence under section 21 of the Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Act 2006, as amended by section 35 of the Immigration Act 2016, if you know or have reasonable cause to believe that you are employing an illegal worker. You may face up to five years' imprisonment and/or an unlimited fine.

It is illegal to employ someone aged 16 or over who is subject to immigration control and who is not allowed to undertake the work in question (by reason of their immigration status). The civil penalty scheme is the sanction applied in most routine cases involving the employment of illegal workers. If you know that you are employing someone who is not allowed to carry out the work in question, you will not have a statutory excuse, regardless of whether you have conducted right to work checks. However, in more serious cases, prosecution may be considered where it is deemed the appropriate response to the non-compliance encountered.

The offence of illegal working

Working illegally is a criminal offence. Illegal workers face having their wages seized. They may also be prosecuted and can be imprisoned for up to six months.

The Immigration Act 2016 made it an offence to work illegally in the UK. A person commits this offence if they are subject to immigration control, and they work when they are disqualified from working by reason of their immigration status. The offence applies when they know, or have reasonable cause to believe, that they are disqualified from working. 'Disqualified from working by reason of their immigration status' means that they:

- have not been granted leave to enter or remain in the UK; or
- their leave to enter or remain in the UK
 - is invalid,
 - has ceased to have effect (whether by reason of curtailment, revocation, cancellation, passage of time, or otherwise), or
 - is subject to a condition preventing the person from doing work of that kind.

As well as including those working illegally under a contract of employment, the offence also applies to work undertaken by those who are self-employed. The offence covers both informal and formal working arrangements.

The offence carries a maximum penalty of six months' imprisonment and/or an unlimited fine in England and Wales and six months' imprisonment and/or a fine of the statutory maximum in Scotland and Northern Ireland. Wages gained from illegal working may be seized as the proceeds of crime and assets may be confiscated.

Closure notices and compliance orders

The 2016 Act (Section 38 and Schedule 6) introduced illegal working closure notice and compliance order provisions to provide a power to deal with those employers who have continued to flout the UK's laws by using illegal labour where previous civil and/or criminal sanctions have not curbed their non-compliant behaviour.

Serious or persistently non-compliant employers may face temporary closure of their business by Immigration Officers. The employer is then placed under special conditions to support compliance, as directed by the Court, and may be inspected by immigration officers.

The provisions commenced on 1 December 2016 in England and Wales. The notice prohibits access to the premises and paid or voluntary work on the premises, unless it is authorised in writing by an Immigration Officer. The closure notice does not prevent access to the premises by any person who habitually lives there. In addition to the issue of the notice, consideration will also be given to the service of penalties or prosecution for illegal working and other immigration offences.

Whenever an illegal working closure notice has been issued, and which has not been cancelled, an Immigration Officer must make an application by complaint to a Magistrates' Court for a compliance order. The application is sent to the Court and served on the respondent before the hearing and forms the basis of the application to the court for the compliance order. The aim of a compliance order is to prevent an employer operating at the premises from employing illegal workers. The employer is placed under special conditions to support compliance, as directed by the Court, and may be inspected by immigration officers.

Preventing illegal working in licensed sectors

The Immigration Act 2016 amended existing licensing regimes in high-risk sectors of the economy (private hire vehicles and taxi sector and the alcohol and late-night refreshment sector). Licences will not be issued to those who break the UK's immigration laws and may be revoked where an existing licence holder commits immigration crime or receives a civil penalty for employing illegal workers.

As a result of changes made by the Immigration Act 2016, licensing authorities now carry out right to work checks when considering applications for licences in the taxi and private hire vehicle sector and the alcohol and late-night refreshment sector. Applicants need to provide evidence of their right to work in the UK and licences will not be issued to those who do not have the right to do the work in question.

Where the holder of a licence breaches immigration laws or receives a civil penalty, this will be grounds for licensing authorities to review, suspend or revoke a licence. In the case of licences for sale and supply of alcohol and late-night refreshment, the Home Office as a responsible authority under the Licensing Act 2003 receives a copy of these applications and may make representations to the relevant licensing authority when we believe that to grant a licence will be prejudicial to preventing immigration crime and illegal working in licensed premises.

Immigration Enforcement have the same power of entry as licensing enforcement officers to facilitate joint operations and inspections for immigration offences in relation to the licensable activity.

Provisions for England and Wales commenced in April 2017 in England and Wales. Equivalent provisions in regulations will be made for Scotland and Northern Ireland.

7. Annex A: Lists of acceptable documents for manual right to work checks

Where a right to work check has been conducted using the online right to work checking service, the information is provided in real-time directly from Home Office systems and there is no requirement to check any of the documents listed below.

8. Annex B: EEA citizens

The reference to 'EEA citizens' in this Annex means EU, EEA and Swiss citizens, unless otherwise stated.

The UK has left the European Union (EU) and the Immigration and Social Security Co-ordination (EU Withdrawal) Act 2020 ended free movement law in the UK on 31 December 2020. There followed a grace period of six-months during which relevant aspects of free movement law were saved to allow eligible EEA citizens and their family members resident in the UK by 31 December 2020 to apply to the EUSS. This period ended on 30 June 2021.

On 6 August 2021, the government announced temporary protection for more applicants to the EUSS. This means that those who apply from 1 July 2021, and joining family members, will have their rights protected while their application is determined. This guidance reflects this change.

EUSS applicants and joining family members will now be able to take up new employment while they await the outcome of their application. Home Office guidance remains that where a prospective employee has a Certificate of Application (CoA) confirming a valid application to the EUSS made on or after 1 July 2021, employers should verify this with the Home Office Employer Checking Service (ECS).

Right to work checks for EEA citizens from 1 July 2021

Since 1 July 2021, EEA citizens and their family members are required to have immigration status in the UK. They can no longer rely on an EEA passport or national identity card, which only confirms their nationality, to prove their right to work. They are required to provide evidence of lawful immigration status in the UK, in the same way as other foreign nationals.

There is no requirement for a retrospective check to be undertaken on EEA citizens who entered into employment up to and including 30 June 2021. You will maintain a continuous statutory excuse against liability for a civil penalty if the initial checks were undertaken in line with the guidance that applied at the time you made the check.

If you choose to carry out retrospective checks, you must ensure that you do so in a non-discriminatory manner. The Code of practice for employers: avoiding unlawful discrimination while preventing illegal working provides practical guidance on how to avoid unlawful discrimination when conducting right to work checks.

Irish citizens

Irish citizens continue to have unrestricted access to work in the UK. From 1 July 2021, they can prove their right to work using their Irish passport or Irish passport card, or their Irish birth or adoption certificate together with an official document giving the person's permanent National Insurance number and their name issued by a government agency or a previous employer.

Irish citizens can also apply for a frontier worker permit, this permit can be issued digitally or as a physical permit, so they may choose to prove their right to work using the Home Office online right to work service or present their physical permit if they have one.

How EEA citizens are required to prove their right to work since 1 July 2021

EEA citizens granted status under the EU Settlement Scheme (EUSS)

Since 1 July 2021, the majority of EEA citizens prove their right to work using the Home Office online services. To prove their right to work, individuals will provide you with a share code and their date of birth which will enable you to check their Home Office immigration status via the online service available on GOV.UK:

<https://www.gov.uk/view-right-to-work>.

You will obtain a statutory excuse against liability for a civil penalty if you carry out the check using the online service as set out in this guidance.

If an EEA citizen has been granted 'Settled Status' by the Home Office, they will have a continuous right to work, in the same way as someone with Indefinite Leave to Enter / Remain status.

If an EEA citizen has been granted 'Pre-Settled Status' by the Home Office, they will have a time-limited right to work and you must carry out a follow-up check. The Home Office online service will advise when a follow-up check must be carried out.

Exceptions to the Home Office online service when proving right to work

Since 1 July 2021, EEA citizens who do not have leave granted under the EUSS are required to evidence their UK immigration status for the purposes of right to work, using documents as set out in legislation. These are detailed below:

- Frontier Worker Permits
- Service Provider from Switzerland visas
- Outstanding applications to UK EUSS
- Outstanding applications to Crown Dependency EUSS
- Indefinite Leave to Enter/Remain
- Points-Based System visas

Frontier workers

A 'Frontier Worker' is an EEA citizen who is resident outside the UK but is economically active (employed or self-employed) in the UK. They have rights under the Withdrawal Agreement, the EEA European Free Trade Association (EFTA) Separation Agreement and the Swiss Citizens' Rights Agreement ('the agreements') to enter the UK and work for as long as they remain a frontier worker.

Since 1 July 2021, it is mandatory for frontier workers to obtain a frontier worker permit as evidence of their right to enter the UK.

Whilst the frontier worker permit requires an individual to reside outside the UK, their work in the UK can be spread over the entire year(s). Therefore, they may make multiple trips to the UK and they are lawfully present in the UK.

Frontier workers are issued with a frontier worker permit either digitally or physically. Conducting either the manual check or using the online service, as set out in this guidance, will provide you with a statutory excuse against liability for a civil penalty.

Additional information

Whilst it is mandatory for protected frontier workers to hold a frontier worker permit to enter the UK on this basis from 1 July 2021, there is no mandatory requirement for protected frontier workers who have rights under the Agreements to use a frontier worker permit to evidence their rights in the UK.

Consequently, it is open to any EEA or Swiss citizen who has an enforceable Citizens' Rights Agreement right as a frontier worker to work in the UK, to demonstrate the existence of that right in a different way to those documents in Lists A and B.

To obtain a statutory excuse against liability for a civil penalty in such cases, you must request a right to work check from the Employer Checking Service (ECS), using the online form 'request a Home Office right to work check' on GOV.UK at: <https://www.gov.uk/employee-immigration-employment-status>

You must have obtained copies of the employee's documents which evidence that they were exercising rights as a Frontier Worker on or before 31 December 2020, as these will form part of your statutory excuse.

Before providing you with a response, the ECS may contact you and ask you to send them a copy of the documents you have checked. The ECS will confirm if the individual has the right to work, and when you need to carry out a follow up check. Where the ECS can issue a Positive Verification Notice in the absence of a Frontier Worker Permit, you will be required to carry out a further ECS check in six months to maintain your statutory excuse.

If you choose to employ the individual as a Frontier Worker, without checking their Frontier Worker Permit or securing a PVN from the ECS, you will not establish a statutory excuse against a liability for a civil penalty should the individual be found to be working illegally.

The ECS will confirm if the individual has a right to work, and when you need to carry out a follow-up check.

If you do choose to accept the alternative evidence, but do not request a Home Office right to work check, you will not establish a statutory excuse against liability for a civil penalty should the individual be found to be working illegally.

Alternative Evidence:

- evidence of the applicant's own identity and that they are an EEA citizen – such as a passport or national identity card.
- evidence they are primarily resident outside of the UK, such as utility bills or bank statements which include proof of address outside the UK
- evidence they worked in the UK as an employed or self-employed person during 2020, or had retained worker or self-employed status during 2020 (see below)
- evidence they have continued to be employed or self-employed in the UK or have retained worker or self-employed person status.

Acceptable evidence of work in the UK includes:

- a signed and dated contract specifying the employee must work in the UK
- letters from employers confirming the need for the employee to travel to the UK for the purpose of work and outlining the frequency of this travel
- tax returns from HMRC showing the person is established as self-employed in the UK
- bank statements or invoices which show payments for work carried out in the UK.

Retained frontier worker status:

A protected frontier worker who has (or had) temporarily stopped working can still be treated as a worker under regulation 4 of The Citizens' Rights (Frontier Workers) (EU Exit) Regulations 2000 if they can provide proof that they:

- are (or were) temporarily unable to work because of illness or an accident
- are (or were) in duly recorded involuntary unemployment
- are (or were) involuntarily unemployed and have embarked on vocational training
- voluntarily stopped working to start vocational training related to their previous work
- are (or were) temporarily unable to work following pregnancy or childbirth

Guidance on what is considered sufficient evidence for retaining frontier worker status can be found in the frontier worker permit case working guidance here: Frontier Worker Permit Scheme Guidance.

Service Provider from Switzerland

A 'Service Provider from Switzerland' (SPS) is an individual of any nationality who is required by their employer (who must be based in Switzerland) to execute a pre-existing contract to temporarily provide services for a party in the UK. Eligible companies have rights under the Swiss Citizens' Rights Agreement to enable employees, or individuals (if self-employed) to travel to the UK to provide services for up to 90 days per year. An SPS must obtain their visa in advance of travel.

The UK company and the Swiss company providing the services must have had a pre-existing contract to deliver services before 31 December 2021. A Service Provider from Switzerland visa is a hard copy document without an online checking function. The visa will be in the form of a vignette and will identify the individual as a 'Service Provider from Switzerland', and can be issued in two ways:

- (All nationalities) within a passport
- (Swiss citizens only) on an official form ("Form for Affixing a Visa") - If the individual is a Swiss citizen, they can choose to apply to the immigration route using their Swiss identity card. In this circumstance, the vignette will be attached to an official Home Office form.

As an employer you are not required to carry out a right to work check on an individual with a Service Provider from Switzerland visa, as they are not in your employment. You may, however, be asked to provide sight or a copy of the contract held with the Swiss company the visa holder is carrying out work or services for.

The Service Provider from Switzerland visa specifies that an individual is only permitted to work in the UK for 90 days per calendar year, the 90 days' work can be spread over the entire year. The visa allows the individual to make multiple trips to the UK until the visa expires.

Outstanding UK EU Settlement Scheme applications

EEA citizens, and their family members, who have made a valid application to the EU Settlement Scheme (EUSS) can continue to live their life in the UK and maintain a right to work until their application is finally determined. This includes pending the outcome of any appeal against a decision to refuse status.

Employers must provide prospective employees with every opportunity to prove their right to work and should not discriminate against those with an outstanding, valid application.

Receipt of application submitted to the EU Settlement Scheme

There are a small number of individuals who made their EUSS application using a paper application. Due to the postage and processing time related to paper application, you may be required to undertake a check before the individual receives their Certificate of Application. Where an individual has made an application on or before 30 June 2021, they will be provided with a letter or email notification acknowledging receipt of the EUSS application. You must request a right to work check from the Employer Checking Service to verify this document.

Certificate of Application

Where an individual has been issued with a Certificate of Application (CoA), you must first check whether this is a digital or non-digital CoA. A CoA is evidence that an individual has made a valid application to the EUSS and should be used to evidence their right to work until such time their application is finally determined.

Digital Certificate of Application

Most individuals with an outstanding valid application made to the EUSS on or before 30 June 2021 have been issued with a digital CoA. In this instance, you should check with the individual and ask them to provide you with a share code. This means you can check their right to work immediately via the online service and do not need to contact the ECS. The online service will provide confirmation of their right to work and advise when a follow-up check is required.

Where the individual has a digital CoA to evidence an application made on or after 1 July 2021, the online service will direct you to verify this via the ECS. You must do this in order to obtain a positive verification notice in these circumstances.

Non-digital Certificate of Application

A 'non-digital' CoA is an email or letter, sent to the individual, advising them how prospective employers can request information about their right to work from the Employer Checking Service (ECS). Where a prospective employee provides you with a 'non-digital' CoA as evidence of an application made to the EUSS on or after 1 July 2021, you must make a copy of this document and retain this copy, together with a Positive Verification Notice (PVN) from the ECS. In doing so you will have a statutory excuse for six months from the date stated on the PVN.

Should you be provided with a non-digital CoA dated on or before 30 June 2021 you should ask the prospective employee to check if they have also been issued with a digital CoA. If they have, they should provide you with a share code to verify their right to work via the online service instead.

You can request a right to work check from the ECS using the online form 'request a Home Office right to work check' on GOV.UK at:

<https://www.gov.uk/employee-immigration-employment-status>

EU Settlement Scheme status granted by a Crown Dependency

The Crown Dependencies (the Bailiwick of Jersey, the Bailiwick of Guernsey, and the Isle of Man) each operate their own EU Settlement Scheme (EUSS) for those eligible to apply. The UK and the Crown Dependencies recognise status granted under each other's Scheme, so an individual granted settled or pre-settled status by a Crown Dependency will be considered to have settled or pre-settled status in the UK.

The Isle of Man and Guernsey issue a letter to those granted EUSS status. Jersey issues a letter and operates an immigration status checker service for individuals to obtain confirmation of their status at any point.

Since 1 July 2021, when presented with a letter or email confirmation of EUSS leave from a Crown Dependency, you must request a right to work check from the Employer Checking Service using the online form 'request a Home Office right to work check' on GOV.UK at:

<https://www.gov.uk/employee-immigration-employment-status>

You must keep a copy of the Crown Dependency letter or email and retain this with the response from the Employer Checking Service to have a statutory excuse against liability for a civil penalty.

Outstanding EU Settlement Scheme applications in a Crown Dependency

Where an individual has an outstanding application to the EU Settlement Scheme (EUSS) of the Crown Dependencies of the Bailiwick of Jersey, the Bailiwick of Guernsey or the Isle of Man, they will have a letter or email notification confirming their outstanding application. You must request a right to work check from the Employer Checking Service (ECS) using the online form 'request a Home Office right to work check on GOV.UK' at:

<https://www.gov.uk/employee-immigration-employment-status>.

You must make retain a copy of the letter or email notification with the response from the ECS to have a statutory excuse against liability for a civil penalty.

EEA citizens with valid Indefinite Leave to Enter or Remain

EEA citizens with Indefinite Leave to Enter or Remain (ILE/R) are not required to make an application to the EU Settlement Scheme but can do so if they wish.

Since 1 July 2021, EEA citizens with ILE/R are required to prove their right to work in the same way as other foreign nationals who do not have a digital status.

You can carry out a manual check of their Home Office documentation such as an endorsement / vignette in a current passport stating, 'indefinite leave to enter or remain' or 'no time limit'. Some may have a current Biometric Residence Permit (BRP) and this can be checked manually. Alternatively, they may choose to use their BRP to access the online right to work service.

Carrying out either a manual check of the documents or the online check, as set out in this guidance will provide you with a statutory excuse against liability for a civil penalty.

Further information:

If you encounter, EEA citizens who believe that they have ILE/R but do not have a document to confirm this please encourage them to:

- apply to the EU Settlement Scheme to obtain settled or pre-settled status (individuals may still be eligible to make an application to the EUSS after 30 June 2021); or
- apply to the Windrush Scheme to get proof of their ILE/R status

If they are from Malta or Cyprus, they may also be able to apply for British citizenship through the Windrush Scheme.

Applications for either scheme are free of charge.

Points-Based Immigration System

EEA citizens who come to the UK to live, work or study will need to obtain immigration status under the points-based system in the same way as other foreign nationals.

The majority of EEA citizens will be provided with an eVisa, however this will be dependent upon the immigration route and how they made their application. Some EEA citizens will have a Biometric Residence Permit (BRP). Those with a valid BRP can use this to access the online right to work service.

To prove their right to work from 1 July 2021, individuals will provide you with a share code and their date of birth which will enable you to check their Home Office immigration status via the online service available on GOV.UK:

<https://www.gov.uk/view-right-to-work>

Those with a BRP may choose to present their BRP for a manual check.

You will obtain a statutory excuse against liability for a civil penalty if you carry out the check using the online service, or a manual check as set out in this guidance.

EEA Citizens and non-EEA family members without lawful immigration status after 30 June 2021

We recognise that employers wish to have a lawful and stable workforce after 30 June 2021 and maintain compliance with the Right to Work Scheme. You will have a continuous statutory excuse against a civil penalty if you carried out an initial right to work check in the prescribed manner as set out in legislation and guidance that applied at the time you completed the check, such as where an EEA citizen provided their passport or national identity card to you to prove their right to work prior to 30 June 2021.

If an EEA citizen or non-EEA family member applies for a job with you after 30 June, but has not applied to the EUSS by the deadline and has no alternative immigration status in the UK, then they will not be able to pass a right to work check and should not be employed. If they believe they are eligible for the EUSS, you could signpost them to make an application.

However, there may be situations after 30 June 2021 in which you identify an EEA citizen or non-EEA family member in your workforce who has not applied to the EUSS by the deadline and does not hold any other form of leave in the UK. You may have chosen to carry out a retrospective check, completed an internal audit or have been made aware that your employee does not have a lawful status in the UK. They may tell you that they have missed the deadline through no fault of their own and you may believe it to be disproportionate were you take immediate steps to cease their employment.

Where an EEA citizen or non-EEA family member has reasonable grounds for missing the EUSS application deadline, they will be given a further opportunity to apply. Non-exhaustive caseworker guidance has been published setting out a wide range of circumstances which will normally constitute reasonable grounds for a person's failure to meet the deadline, including where applicants lacked the mental capacity to apply, or where individuals have been unaware of the deadline for a variety of reasons. The Home Office has grant-funded 72 organisations with a total of £22 million to do outreach and make sure people who are vulnerable or require assistance, are helped to make an application.

It should be noted that the criminal offence of employing an illegal worker is generally reserved for the most serious cases of non-compliance with the Right to Work Scheme. It is not intended for employers who have employed EEA citizens or non-EEA family members in good faith having completed a right to work check in the prescribed manner and are acting in accordance with this guidance to support their employees to make an application to the EUSS.

EEA citizens employed prior to 30 June 2021:

You do not need to cease employment at the time you identify an EEA employee without status. In such circumstances, you should:

1. Advise the individual they must make an application to the EUSS within 28 days.

They must then provide you with confirmation that they have been issued with a 'digital' or 'non-digital' Certificate of Application (CoA). Where they have been issued with a CoA, you must request a right to work check from the Home Office Employer Checking Service (ECS) on GOV.UK at: <https://www.gov.uk/employee-immigration-employment-status>.

2. If they do not make an application within 28 days, you must take steps to cease their employment in line with right to work legislation.
3. Where a valid application has been confirmed, the ECS will give you a Positive Verification Notice (PVN). You must retain the PVN and a copy of the individual's CoA. This will then provide you with a statutory excuse against a civil penalty for six months. This allows sufficient time for the application to be concluded and enables the individual to maintain their employment with you during that time.
4. If the individual has been granted status before the PVN expiry date, they can prove their right to work to you using the Home Office right to work online service. If they have not been granted status at the time the PVN expired, you must do a further check with the ECS in order to maintain your statutory excuse against a civil penalty.
5. If the follow-up check confirms that the application is outstanding, you will be given a further PVN for six months and would then repeat step 4 until such time as the application has been finally determined. If the follow-up check confirms the application has been finally determined and refused, then you will not be issued with a PVN and you must take steps to cease the individual's employment.

Immigration Enforcement 28-day notice

From 1 July 2021, where Immigration Enforcement encounter EEA citizens, or their family members, who are working without status, they will be given a written 28-day notice before action is taken. This provides individuals who may have been eligible under the EUSS had they applied by 30 June 2021, with the opportunity to make a late application to EUSS demonstrating any reasonable grounds for missing the deadline.

Failure to make an application may impact upon their eligibility to access services in the UK and they may be required to leave the UK.

Family Members

Some individuals may be eligible for a permit to come to the UK if they are the family member of an EU, EEA or Swiss citizen, or a 'person of Northern Ireland'.

There were two different types of family permit: the EU Settlement Scheme family permit and the EEA family permit. The latter, EEA family permits, ceased to be valid after 30 June 2021, even if there was time left on the permit. For more information on the EEA family permit, please visit:

Those with a EUSS family permit will be issued with a vignette placed in their passport or on a separate card/paper if the individual has not used a passport to apply. Where an individual presents a vignette of this type, the employer must take a copy of the passport as well as the vignette and ensure the photographs represent the same person.

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, some countries have advised that expired passports should be considered as valid for an extended period of time. Where an individual presents an EUSS family permit in an expired passport, or where their EUSS family permit is on a separate card/paper along with an identity card (current or expired), you must contact the contact the Employer Checking Service (ECS) via GOV.UK to verify their status and obtain a defence against a civil penalty:

<https://www.gov.uk/employee-immigration-employment-status>.

You must make a copy of their expired passport or identity card, EUSS family permit (vignette in passport or on a separate card/paper) and retain this with the response from the ECS to have a statutory excuse against liability for a civil penalty.

Non-EEA family members of EEA citizens are required to make an application to the EUSS to continue living in the UK after 30 June 2021. Whilst they will be granted an eVisa, they may also have a valid Biometric Residence Card (BRC).

From 1 July 2021, non-EEA family members of EEA citizens can provide you with a share code and their date of birth which will enable you to check their Home Office immigration status via the online service available on GOV.UK:

<https://www.gov.uk/view-right-to-work>.

Alternatively, they may choose to present their valid BRC, for a manual check, which they can continue to use to prove their right to work until early 2022 when BRC holders will transition to utilising the online service for right to work checks.

Finally, where applicable, joining family members (JFM) may apply to the EUSS. Where a JFM makes a valid application to the EUSS, they will receive a Certificate of Application (CoA), issued by the Home Office. They will be able to use their CoA for the purpose of a right to work check.

9. Annex C: Employment of specific categories of workers

Skilled worker route

Since 1 January 2021, if you want to recruit workers from outside the UK's resident labour market, you will need to be a Home Office licensed sponsor. This will enable you to recruit workers from anywhere in the world.

Under the new skilled worker route, anyone coming to the UK to work will need to demonstrate that:

- they have a job offer from a Home Office licensed sponsor
- the job offer is at the required skill level – RQF 3 or above (A Level and equivalent)
- they speak English to the required standard

In addition to this, the job offer must meet the applicable minimum salary threshold. This is the higher of either:

- the general salary threshold set by Her Majesty's Government on advice of the independent Migration Advisory Committee at £25,600, or
- the specific salary requirement for their occupation, known as the “going rate”

Applicants will be able to ‘trade’ characteristics, such as their qualifications, against a lower salary to get the required number of points. If the job offer is less than the minimum salary requirement, but no less than £20,480, an applicant may still be eligible if they have:

- a job offer in a specific shortage occupation
- a PhD relevant to the job
- a PhD in a science, technology, engineering or mathematics (STEM) subject relevant to the job

There are different salary rules for workers in certain health or education jobs, and for “new entrants” at the start of their careers.

Further information on the “going rate” for specific occupations and further exemptions can be found in Annex E of the UK points-based immigration system: further details statement.

To identify whether a job meets the required skill level for the skilled worker route, can be found in the UK points-based immigration system: further details statement.

Students

Not all international students are entitled to work while they are in the UK, but some are allowed to take limited employment if the conditions of their permission to study permit this.

A student who has been granted permission to be in the UK and is permitted to work will have a clear endorsement in their passport or Biometric Residence Permit, which states that they are permitted to work and the number of hours of work permitted during term time e.g. 10 hours or 20 hours a week. A student may also have a digital record of their immigration status that you can check through the GOV.UK Employer Checking Service. A week is considered in this context to run from Monday to Sunday. If permission to work is not stated in one of these documents, the student is not permitted to work. Students who have the right to work are permitted to work full-time before their course starts, during vacations or after they have completed their course. Students are not permitted to fill a permanent full-time vacancy unless they are applying to switch into the skilled worker route following the completion of degree-level study in the UK, or they have permission under the Doctorate Extension Scheme. Students are not permitted to work as an entertainer or professional sportsperson.

Short-term students on an English language course are not permitted to work or undertake a work placement.

Visitors studying a course of up to six months in the UK are not permitted to work or to do a work placement.

For students who have limited permission to work during term-times, you must also obtain, copy and retain details of their academic term and vacation times covering the duration of their period of study in the UK for which they will be employed.

More information about student work entitlements is available in the Student route caseworker Guidance.

Work placements

Work placements are intended to enable the student to gain specific experience of working in the field for which they are studying. Work placements are distinct from any employment that a student may (if permitted) take while they are following a course of study.

Students, including child students aged 16 or over, are allowed to undertake work placements where they are integral and related to the course and are assessed as part of the course. Where their student sponsor is a Probationary Sponsor, such courses must be at least RQF level 6 or SCQF level 9. Activity as part of a course-related work placement is restricted to no more than one third of the total length of the course undertaken in the UK unless:

- the student is following a course at degree level or above and is sponsored by a Higher Education Provider (HEP) with a track record of compliance or by an overseas HEI to undertake a short-term Study Abroad Programme in the UK, in which case the work placement is restricted to no more than 50 per cent of the total length of the course; or

- the student is a child student aged 16 or over, in which case the work placement can form no more than 50 per cent of the total length of the course; or
- there is a statutory requirement for the course to include a specific period of work placement which exceeds this limit.

Student sponsors should provide a letter addressed to you as the work placement provider confirming that the work placement forms an integral and assessed part of the course and does not, by itself or in combination with other periods of work placement, breach the above restrictions. The letter must also include the terms and conditions of the work placement, including the work that the student will be expected to do, and how and when they will be assessed. You are strongly advised to obtain and retain such a letter as evidence of the work placement and that the work placement restrictions have not been breached as you may be liable for a civil penalty if your student employee does not comply with their immigration conditions.

While your student employee is undertaking a work placement as required by their course, this period of placement does not count towards the period of term time employment permitted by their immigration conditions.

Further information on Student visa, including work placements, is available on GOV.UK.

The Student route replaced Tier 4 on 5 October 2020. Where a student holds Tier 4 leave, they will be considered to hold the same work rights as someone who holds Student leave.

Impact of a change in circumstances on a student's right to work

1. The student has made an application to the Home Office to vary their leave – If the student is in the UK and has made a valid in-time immigration application (one made before their existing leave expired), their existing conditions of leave and work entitlements continue until their application is decided. If the application is approved, their leave will be varied, and they will get new conditions of leave. If the application is refused, their existing conditions of leave continue to apply until their leave expires.

2. The student has stopped studying or their sponsor has lost its licence – If there has been a significant change in the student's circumstances which means they no longer qualify for their grant of Student leave, the Home Office will curtail the leave. Any permission to work will expire on the new date that the student's leave will expire following curtailment. Curtailment can be with immediate effect or take effect 60 days from the date the student was notified that their leave was curtailed.

3. Employer Checking Service - If there has been a change in the student's circumstances, or you are unsure whether they have a right to work, you should contact the Employer Checking Service.

Tier 1 (Entrepreneur)

A person granted immigration permission under Tier 1 as an entrepreneur is not permitted to be employed. They are only allowed to work for their own business. The endorsement in the passport or Biometric Residence Card will clearly state what they are permitted to do. The Biometric Residence Permit currently states: -

Front:

T1 HS ENTREPRENEUR
LEAVE TO REMAIN
RESTRICTED WORK
BUS INVEST
NO SPORTSPERSON

Reverse:

NO PUBLIC FUNDS

Voluntary Work

Individuals, including students, who have been granted immigration permission to be in the UK are permitted to volunteer. Visitors can volunteer for a registered charity for a maximum of 30 days during their visit, but volunteering cannot be the main purpose of their visit. Individuals who have limited permission to work in the UK may not carry out any voluntary work.

The legal distinction between volunteering and voluntary work can be quite complex. However, there are some key questions to consider when assessing whether an activity is voluntary work:

It is likely to be voluntary work if:

- there is an obligation on the individual to perform the work and in return an obligation on the organisation to provide it. The obligation does not have to be in writing.
- the individual is rewarded for that work, either through money or benefits in kind.

An obligation to work or receipt of remuneration is likely to mean that the individual is working under a mutuality of obligation. Where there is mutuality of obligation, it is voluntary work.

However, as the legal distinction is not always clear, we recommend that those involved seek independent legal advice for their specific activity.

An individual who is not permitted to work might commit a criminal offence by engaging in voluntary work when they are subject to contractual obligations. In such circumstances, their employer might also be liable for a civil penalty for employing an illegal worker.

Students, including child students aged 16 and over, can do voluntary work if they are permitted to work, but this work and any other (for example paid) work must not exceed the total number of hours they are permitted to work during term time. For example, if a student is permitted to work 20 hours a week during term-time and has paid work of 15 hours a week during term time, they cannot do more than 5 hours voluntary work. If they are not permitted to work they cannot do voluntary work.

10. Annex D: Extension to COVID-19 temporary adjusted right to work checks

Following the positive feedback received on the ability to conduct right to work checks remotely, the Home Office initiated a review of the availability of specialist technology to support a system of digital right to work checks in the future. The intention is to introduce a long-term digital solution for many who are unable to use the Home Office online right to work checking service, including UK and Irish citizens. This will enable checks to continue to be conducted remotely but with enhanced security.

As a result, and in recognition of moves to hybrid and alternative working models, temporary COVID-19 adjusted changes to the Right to Work Scheme, introduced on 30 March 2020, will remain in place until 5 April 2022 (inclusive).

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, some countries have advised that their expired passports should be considered as valid for an extended period of time. Where an individual is required to present you with a current passport or travel document endorsed to show that the holder is allowed to stay in the UK for a 'time-limited period' and the leave is in a recently expired passport then you should contact the Employer Checking Service, to verify their status and obtain a defence against a civil penalty:

<https://www.gov.uk/employee-immigration-employment-status>.

You must make a copy of their expired passport and endorsement and retain this with the response from the ECS to have a statutory excuse against liability for a civil penalty.

Information on how to carry out these temporary adjusted checks is available at Coronavirus \(COVID-19\): right to work checks on GOV.UK. This page will be updated with any changes to the temporary measures.

The COVID-19 adjusted checks end on 5 April 2022 (inclusive). New guidance will be issued prior to 6 April 2022.

It remains an offence to knowingly employ a person who is not lawfully in the UK.

You do not need to carry out retrospective checks on employees who had a COVID-19 adjusted check between 30 March 2020 and 5 April 2022 (inclusive). You will maintain a defence against a civil penalty if the check you have undertaken during this period was done in the prescribed manner or as set out in the COVID-19 adjusted checks guidance. However, any individual identified with no lawful immigration status in the UK may be liable to enforcement action.

11. Annex E: Biometric card holders

The way in which Biometric Residence Card (BRC), Biometric Residence Permit (BRP) and Frontier Worker Permit (FWP) holders evidence their right to work is changing. This annex provides further information for employers on how to continue to conduct a right to work check before the change takes effect, and what they will need to do differently afterwards.

A Biometric Residence Card is provided to non-EEA family members of an EEA citizen. More information about applying to the EU Settlement Scheme as a family member is available on GOV.UK:

Apply to the EU Settlement Scheme \(settled and pre-settled status\): Applying as the family member of someone from the EU, Switzerland, Norway, Iceland or Liechtenstein - GOV.UK \(www.gov.uk\)

A Biometric Residence Permit is provided to individuals who apply to come to the UK or extend their UK visa for longer than 6 months, and to those who apply to settle in the UK. More information about BRPs is available on GOV.UK:

Biometric residence permits \(BRPs\) - GOV.UK \(www.gov.uk\)

A Frontier Worker Permit is provided to EEA citizens who are resident outside the UK but are economically active (employed or self-employed) in the UK. More information about Frontier Worker Permits is available on GOV.UK:

Frontier Worker permit - GOV.UK \(www.gov.uk\)

Right to work checks on biometric card holders up to and including 5 April 2022

BRC, BRP and FWP holders can currently choose to use either the Home Office online service or their physical card to evidence their right to work to an employer.

Up to and including 5 April 2022, employers can continue to conduct manual checks on physical cards for evidence of a right to work.

During this time, employers cannot insist individuals use the online service, and should not discriminate against those who wish to use their physical card. Employers can, however, ask individuals if they would like to use the online service.

Right to work checks for biometric card holders from 6 April 2022

From 6 April 2022, BRC, BRP and FWP holders will evidence their right to work using the Home Office online service only. Employers will no longer be able to accept physical cards for the purposes of a right to work check even if it shows a later expiry date. BRCs, BRPs and FWPs will be removed from the lists of acceptable documents used to conduct a manual right to work check.

Retrospective checks will not be required on biometric card holders who, before 6 April 2022, used their physical card to demonstrate their right to work. Employers will maintain a statutory excuse against any civil penalty if the initial checks were undertaken in line with the guidance that applied at the time the check was made.

If an employer chooses to undertake a retrospective check and identifies an existing employee who no longer has a right to work, they are required to take the appropriate action. If the employee is an EEA citizen or non-EEA family member, further information on what steps to take is available at pages 46 – 47 in Annex B of this guidance.

12. Annex F: Digital identity verification – Guidance for employers and Identity Service Providers (IDSPs)

1. Introduction

- 1.1 This guidance follows the Home Office announcement on 27 December 2021. It sets out how employers can comply with their responsibilities to conduct right to work (RTW) checks, when using certified Identity Service Providers (IDSPs) to complete the digital identity verification and eligibility element of checks involving British and Irish citizens who hold a valid passport (including Irish passport cards).
- 1.2 The relevant changes to legislation will take effect from 6 April 2022.
- 1.3 Digital identity verification conducted by IDSPs is the process of obtaining evidence of the prospective employee's identity, checking that it is valid and belongs to the person who is claiming it.
- 1.4 Verification of eligibility for RTW checks is the process of confirming that the prospective employee holds a specified document (as set out in this guidance). Where that document is the same as what was used to complete the digital identity verification process, the employer does not need to request it again.
- 1.5 IDSPs would act on behalf of the employer (with the employer becoming a 'relying party' in that transaction).
- 1.6 This guidance sets out the rules and standards to verify a person's identity and eligibility, for processing RTW checks in order to obtain a statutory excuse against liability for a civil penalty.
- 1.7 Changes to RTW regulations will make it a legal requirement for employers and IDSPs to apply identity evidence verification criteria set by the Home Office where using these services. The employer must:
 - Ensure the IDSP is certified to the required standards
 - Provide appropriate training and guidance to their staff for example, on what information they must obtain from an IDSP to confirm verification of identity, what the information can be used for, and what other requirements they still need to fulfil to establish eligibility to work
 - Discharge their duties in accordance with Home Office's RTW complete identity evidence verification criteria and in accordance with existing wider RTW legislation and guidance
- 1.8 The 2018 Identity Document Validation Technology guidance recognises the role of IDSPs in identity verification.
- 1.9 The employer's guide to right to work checks (page 14) also recognises the role of IDSPs in identity verification as likely to increase the security of checking procedures.

- 1.10 This guidance makes extensive reference to the UK Digital Identity and Attributes Trust Framework (UKDIATF). The UKDIATF will make provision for IDSPs to be certified as providers of identity verification services.
- 1.11 The UKDIATF defines:
- the organisational responsibilities of IDSPs that must be met, in order to be certified, and references the Government Good Practice Guide 45 (GPG45) as the standard that is used to define how identities should be verified
 - the criteria those IDSPs who use re-useable digital identity are also required to comply with, in accordance with the Government Good Practice Guide 44 (GPG44)
 - the ‘levels of confidence’ (LoC) in identity verification and ‘identity profiles’ that can meet the aforementioned levels of confidence
- 1.12 The UKDIATF is currently in a first stage industry prototype (or ‘alpha’) and will not move to the live phase until post-legislation, when parliamentary time allows. In the interim, IDSPs will be certified against the most current version of the UKDIATF available (alpha or beta) at the time of the certification process commencing. Once certified, IDSPs will be required to undertake annual surveillance audits and biennial recertification against the version of the UKDIATF which is current at the time.
- 1.13 All IDSPs certified to carry out RTW checks on behalf of employers will be required to become certified to the live version of the UKDIATF after their certification has expired. It is recommended that IDSPs monitor and feedback on the UKDIATF as it develops to ensure they can meet any additional requirements which are not part of the RTW Scheme checks during the UKDIATF alpha and beta phases.
- 1.14 In addition to this guidance, an Operational Procedures Manual (OPM) is available at Annex A for IDSPs. The OPM provides detailed guidance around how to verify an individual’s identity, alongside how GPG44 and 45 should be used to meet the requirements for Home Office digital identity verification.
- 1.15 This guidance and the OPM will also be used by auditors to certify IDSPs against Home Office specific requirements.
- 1.16 Successful IDSPs will be certified by an independent certification body to assure that their service meets Home Office standards for identity assurance and the UKDIATF. Further information about the certification bodies available to certify IDSPs will be published here.

2. Trust

Risk assessment

- 2.1 This guidance does not replace the employer’s responsibility to carry out a risk assessment for every transaction. The employer remains liable for undertaking their own due diligence. The identity verification process forms a part of the risk assessment. Certified providers must also undertake their own risk assessment during the identity verification process. The risk assessment will identify the LoC required and a relying party can rely on a verified identity from a certified IDSP as having met the required LoC. A relying party does not need to undertake additional due diligence on the IDSP or the verified identity if the LoC meets the required level.
- 2.2 The Home Office prescribes the checks required and the information that should be retained by employers in order to have a statutory excuse against liability for a civil penalty. The responsibility for the check remains with the employer, and they must ensure the IDSP they select to complete the identity verification element of the check complies with the specified requirements, including that they meet the LoC required.

Trusting an IDSP

- 2.3 Changes to the RTW regulations will permit the use of IDSPs for identity verification, enabling employers to delegate elements of the checking process to IDSPs. This guidance sets out that, in order for an IDSP to meet the identity verification requirement standards, the IDSPs must undertake identity verification following GPG45 and be certified to the requirements in the UKDIATF.
- 2.4 The Home Office has adopted specific profiles of GPG45 as the basis of its identity verification requirements for IDSPs carrying out RTW checks. This guidance is consistent with the requirements of the UKDIATF.
- 2.5 Therefore, IDSPs that are certified and assessed to meet the terms of the UKDIATF, and whose certification includes those specific profiles, will be able to certify their compliance with this guidance. IDSPs may choose to be certified to reach GPG45 medium confidence or above if their business needs require this, but for the purpose of conducting RTW checks, they are required to have reached a medium confidence only.

Certification and audit

- 2.6 Employers must use the services of a certified IDSP. This ensures that trust in the IDSP is founded on compliance with the rules of the Schemes. If employers choose to undertake digital identity verification using their own processes, they will be required to undergo certification as an IDSP.
- 2.7 Employers will obtain a statutory excuse where they can demonstrate that they have complied with all the requirements of the Schemes. Where they have used an IDSP, the statutory excuse will only be obtained where that IDSP is certified. Should they be found to be employing individuals without their identity and eligibility being verified to the requisite standard, via checks undertaken by a non-certified IDSP, the employer will not have a statutory excuse in the event the individual is found to be working illegally by reason of their immigration status.

3. Using a certified IDSP

- 3.1 Certified IDSPs are approved companies responsible for validating the identity of a prospective employee on behalf of an employer (with the employer becoming a 'relying party' in that transaction). Certification will align to the requirements and standards set out in the UKDIATF.
- 3.2 IDSPs carrying out identity verification for RTW checks must be:
 - certified against the requirements in the latest version of the UKDIATF available at the time of certification by an independent body. The list of acceptable certification bodies will be available from the United Kingdom

Accreditation Service (UKAS), and a list of certified IDSPs will be available here

- certified they are aware of the purpose of the checks (i.e. to demonstrate they know that the identity checking is to determine eligibility to work in the UK. IDSPs must be aware and acknowledge the sanctions and criminal offences that supplement the RTW Scheme and identity checking in the event of non-compliance
- certified that the above requirements are also met by ensuring appropriate training of their employees and members of staff involved in the identity checking process, with appropriate records maintained of such training
- certified they acknowledge their duty to ensure identity verification checks for the purposes of RTW carried out in their name are done so lawfully (such as, by providing an undertaking/declaration confirming such)
- certified to demonstrate the information security requirements in 3.1.1 are met
- certified to demonstrate the identity assurance requirements in 3.1.2 are met
- certified to demonstrate the identity verification requirements in section 4 below are met

Certified against industry standards for information security

- 3.3 Certified IDSPs must have appropriate information security management systems in place to look after people's data and keep it secure.
- 3.4 They must be certified to confirm that they meet an industry standard for information security management. This involves demonstrating that they have adequate processes in place to look after information securely and safely, and how they set up, maintain, and continuously improve an information security management system (ISMS). The ISMS must meet the requirements of ISO/IEC 27001:2013 or another recognised standard that includes all the requirements of ISO/IEC 27001:2013.

Certified against government standards for identity assurance

- 3.5 Certified companies also have to be certified by an independent certification body, to assure that their service meets Home Office standards for identity assurance.
- 3.6 The service auditors are accredited by the United Kingdom Accreditation Service (UKAS) for carrying out service assessments.
- 3.7 Certification will confirm the IDSP meets the requirements set out in the section 4 of this guidance, for example, that they have reached a medium level of confidence and identify profiles required.
- 3.8 Further details on how organisations become certified to the UKDIATF will be communicated by DCMS during alpha and beta stages.

Certified IDSPs

- 3.9 Certified IDSPs and associated authorised profiles will be published by the UK government and will also be available from the independent certification body.

4. Verifying identities

IDSPs

- 4.1 Verifying an individual's identity following GPG45 requires IDSPs to follow a process known as 'identity checking'. This process is made up of 5 parts:
- get evidence of the claimed identity
 - check the evidence is genuine or valid
 - check the claimed identity has existed over time
 - check if the claimed identity is at high risk of identity fraud
 - check that the identity belongs to the person who's claiming it

Each step of the process is scored, and these scores are used to determine what Level of Confidence (LoC) has been achieved.

Identity profiles

- 4.2 There are several ways to combine the scores you get for each part of the identity checking process. These combinations are known as identity profiles. GPG45 has four LoCs. IDSPs are required to meet a medium level of confidence in order to be able to rely on it for RTW checks.

Medium Level of Confidence identity check

- 4.3 This is the minimum LoC required for RTW checks. Employers may choose an IDSP who proofs individuals to a higher LoC (i.e. in employment situations, where there may be a requirement for a Standard, Enhanced, or Enhanced with Barred Lists DBS check) if their business needs require, but this is not needed for the purposes of undertaking eligibility checks for RTW.
- 4.4 You do not need to do an activity history or identity fraud check to meet some identity profiles. The Home Office recommends, where possible, an identity fraud check is undertaken on the claimed identity for all profiles, including those where GPG45 profile does not require it.

Documents

- 4.5 More than one document or a combination of documents may be accepted by IDSPs in order to verify identity to the required LoC in accordance with GPG45.
- 4.6 For the purposes of verifying eligibility for RTW checks through IDVT, only the following specified documents will be accepted:
- valid British passports
 - valid Irish passports

- valid Irish passport cards

- 4.7 If an individual is reliant upon an expired British or Irish passport (including passport cards) to prove their eligibility for a RTW check, the employer will need to carry out a manual check of the original document in the prescribed manner to obtain a statutory excuse.
- 4.8 Therefore, for employers to be able to rely upon the check carried out by an IDSP to prove eligibility for the purpose of a RTW check and obtain a statutory excuse, a valid British or Irish passport (including passport cards) must be checked and linked to the verified identity.
- 4.9 The employer must also confirm the image provided to the IDSP is a true likeness of the prospective employee. This can be face to face or via video call. A statutory excuse will not be obtained where it is reasonably apparent that the prospective employee is not the individual linked to the identity which was verified by the IDSP.
- 4.10 Where alternative forms of identity documentation are used by the IDSP to verify identity, the employer must perform a manual check of original document(s) or use the relevant Home Office online checking service to satisfy eligibility to work, in accordance with the relevant legislation. Only after completing the check in the prescribed manner will employers obtain a statutory excuse.

For example, where an EU identity card is provided for the purpose of identity verification (and is accepted in accordance with GPG45), the employer would require further evidence from the prospective employee in order to verify their eligibility to work.

In this example, the employer should use the relevant Home Office online checking service to confirm RTW. Guidance is available at Annex B of the employer's guide to right to work checks.

Additional attributes

4.11 Name verification and previous names

The employer must check the prospective employee's identity against that which was verified by the IDSP and on any documents provided to them to establish eligibility to work.

Where the name differs between documents, the employer must establish why this is the case and must not employ that individual unless they are satisfied that the documents relate to them.

4.12 Required subject information

For each identity verified by the IDSP the following attributes must be provided to the employer (relying party) in a clear, legible format that can be stored securely by the relying party in electronic or hard copy for audit and investigation purposes:

Subject	Mandatory / Optional	Sent to Relying Party
Forename	Mandatory	Y
Middle names	Mandatory if applicable	Y
Present surname(s)	Mandatory	Y
Date of birth	Mandatory	Y
Image of the biometric page of the identity document, including details of: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> i) the holder's personal details including name, date of birth and nationality ii) the holder's photograph iii) the date of expiry Please see 'Documents' above.	Mandatory	Y
Photograph / image IDSPs are required to verify that the image supplied with the IDSP check matches the identity document. Employers are required to verify that the image supplied with the check from the IDSP matches the prospective employee Please see 4.9 above.	Mandatory	Y
Identity verified (Y/N)	Mandatory	Y
Evidence checked by	Mandatory	Y
Date of ID check	Mandatory	Y
GPG45 profile	Mandatory	N
GPG44 profile	Mandatory if applicable	N

4.13 Check retention

Employers should retain this information securely for the duration of employment and for two years afterwards.

4.14 Choosing an identity profile

GPG45 treats all profiles within a level of confidence as being equal. The Home Office recommends that the strongest piece of evidence available is used to prove the identity exists, such as a passport, and the strongest method of matching the individual to this evidence.

4.15 Reusable identities

IDSPs or attribute providers that want to create a reusable digital identity or attribute service, must link the digital identity and/or attributes to an authenticator (such as a password, piece of software, or device). You must follow the guidance on using authenticators to protect an online service. This is also known as GPG44.

IDSPs protecting reusable digital identities must meet the requirements specified in GPG44 and include medium quality authenticators as a minimum.

4.16 OPM for identity verification

The OPM (available at Annex A) details how IDSPs can complete identity verification to the required LoC, in relation to the relevant GPG's.

Right to Work Scheme digital identity operational procedures manual (OPM)

1. Introduction

- 1.1. This OPM sets out how identity service providers (IDSPs) should undertake identity verification, on behalf of employers for the purposes of verifying an individual's identity, as part of a right to work (RTW) check.
- 1.2. This OPM references the UK digital identity and attributes trust framework (UKDIATF) and the Government Good Practice Guide 45 (GPG45). It only highlights requirements that are different to, or in addition to, the rules and standards to validate a person's identity for RTW checks.
- 1.3. Therefore, the UKDIATF and GPG45 should be followed as normal unless otherwise specified.

2. Verifying identities

- 2.1. This section should be read with reference to section 4 of the RTW digital identity verification guidance above.

Choosing an identity profile

- 2.2. GPG45 treats all profiles within a Level of Confidence (LoC) as being equal. Home Office recommends that the strongest piece of evidence available is used to prove the identity exists (for example, a valid passport), and the strongest method of matching the individual to this evidence.

Medium level of confidence

- 2.3. To achieve a 'medium' level of confidence, the following profiles can be used. A single document is acceptable using digital means, as long as it meets the strength, validity, and verification scores detailed below.

Score
Profile	Strength	Genuine / Valid	Activity history	Identity fraud	Verification
M1A	4	2	N/A	1	2
M1B	3	2	1	2	2
M1C	3	3	N/A	N/A	3
M1D	2	2	2	1	3
M2A	2	2	3	2	2
M2B	3	2	1	1	2
M2C	3	2	N/A	1	3

- 2.4. Profiles marked as 'M1' only require a single high-strength document. Profiles marked as 'M2' require two documents - the second document is only checked for 'Strength' and 'Genuine / Valid'. Profiles marked 'M3A' require three documents.
- 2.5. Although some identity profiles do not require an activity history or identity fraud check to be completed, the Home Office recommends, where possible, an identity fraud check is undertaken on the claimed identity for all profiles, including those where GPG45 profile does not require it.

3. Scoring identity evidence

- 3.1. GPG45 provides a detailed explanation of how identity evidence is scored. This document details specific requirements applicable to Home Office RTW check requirements. Home Office requirements may restrict how evidence is scored or may provide specific guidance where it is considered that GPG45 does not provide sufficient clarity to enable IDSPs to operate as Home Office intends.
- 3.2. IDSPs will be certified against the current published version of UKDIATF GPG45 in full and must, therefore, refer to the published versions of both UKDIATF and GPG45.
- 3.3. IDSPs will be required to undergo a specific audit and certification considering this OPM.
- 3.4. IDSPs must be certified by an independent certification body to assure that their service meets Home Office standards for identity assurance. The service auditors are accredited by the United Kingdom Accreditation Service (UKAS) for carrying out service assessments. Certification will confirm the IDSP meets the requirements set out in the Home Office OPM.

- 3.5. The following information provides additional clarity to enable IDSPs to operate as Home Office intends. Please note, headings correlate to those within GPG45.

Get evidence of the claimed identity:

- 3.6. No amended or supplementary requirements to GPG45.

If the user has changed their name:

- 3.7. No amended or supplementary requirements to GPG45.

Scoring evidence of the claimed identity:

3.8. Score 1

Evidence that only score 1 are not acceptable.

3.9. Score 2

No amended or supplementary requirements to GPG45.

3.10. Score 3

No amended or supplementary requirements to GPG45.

3.11. Score 4

A UK biometric residence permit cannot be used to achieve a score of 4, as the cryptographic keys cannot currently be validated.

Check the evidence is genuine or valid:

3.12. Score 1

Evidence that only score 1 are not acceptable, including expired passports.

3.13. Score 2

Detailed below are some clarifications to the GPG45 requirements and a number of examples.

If the evidence is being checked by a person, they must:

- be trained in how to detect false documents by a specialist trainer; evidence of the trainer's specialist capability will be required to be presented to the certification auditor
- refresh their training at least every 3 years

All other requirements are as documented in GPG45.

3.14. Score 3

The requirement to confirm any physical security features are genuine and assess UV or IR security features is for physical, in person checks only.

Any evidence protected by cryptographic security features will have a score of 3 if it is ensured that these security features are genuine. Therefore, for a mobile-based automated process, mobile chip checking capability must be used to obtain a minimum score of 3.

All requirements are as documented in GPG45.

3.15. Score 4

All requirements are as documented in GPG45.

Document validation technology:

3.16. Please refer to Identity Document Validation Technology guidance.

Check the claimed identity has existed over time – activity history

3.17. No amended or supplementary requirements to GPG45.

Check if the claimed identity is at higher risk of identity fraud

3.18. The Home Office recommends an identity fraud check is undertaken on the claimed identity for all profiles, including those where GPG45 profile does not require it.

Check that the identity belongs to the person who's claiming 3.19. The Home Office recommends the highest-strength identity document available is used to prove the identity belongs to the individual claiming it.

This means that biometric verification of an individual should be used where documents containing biometric information have been used to prove the identity is real. Sources such as digital authentication of bank accounts as verification of identity are preferred to knowledge-based verification (KBV) as they present a simpler user journey and are less susceptible to user error.

All other requirements are as documented in GPG45.

4. Reusable identities

4.1. IDSPs or attribute service providers who want to create a reusable digital identity or attribute service, must link the digital identity and/or attributes to an authenticator (such as a password, piece of software, or device).

4.2. You must follow the guidance on using authenticators to protect an online service. This is also known as GPG44.

4.3. IDSPs protecting reusable digital identities must meet the requirements specified in GPG44 and include medium quality authenticators as a minimum.

4.4. Where an IDSP is asserting an identity that is held as a reusable digital identity it is the IDSP's responsibility to ensure that the asserted identity meets the requirements of these guidelines at the time the identity is asserted. The IDSP must ensure that a reusable digital identity is protected and that the assertion being made is valid at the time of assertion.

Glossary

5.1 Attribute service provider

An attribute service provider (ASP) is a specialist data provider that collect, create, check or share attributes as part of the identity verification process. The UKDIATF may require that ASPs are certified under the framework. It is likely that IDSPs will use ASPs as part of their verification process, in which case it is likely that the IDSP certification process will include assessment of the accuracy of the attributes, rather than certification of the ASPs themselves.

5.2 Authoritative source

An authoritative source may verify a particular piece of information about the applicant's identity and is defined in GPG45.

5.3 Certification

Is when an independent auditor checks that organisations follow the rules of the trust framework.

Independent certification builds trust that approved IDSPs will protect an individual's privacy and keep their data safe and secure.

Certification will be undertaken by an independent certification body to assure their service meets Home Office standards for identity assurance.

5.4 Disclosure and Barring Service

The Disclosure and Barring Service (DBS) delivers disclosure and barring functions on behalf of government. This includes DBS checks for England, Wales, Jersey, Guernsey, and the Isle of Man, and barring functions for England, Wales, and Northern Ireland. More information about DBS and their work to make recruitment safer can be found on the DBS website.

5.5 Enhanced DBS check/certificate

An Enhanced DBS certificate is a DBS product that shows spent and unspent convictions, cautions plus any information held by local police that is considered relevant to the role being applied for.

5.6 Enhanced with Barred Lists DBS check/certificate

An Enhanced with Barred Lists DBS certificate is a DBS product that shows the same as an Enhanced DBS certificate, alongside whether the applicant is on the Adults' Barred List, Children's Barred List, or both.

5.7 Good Practice Guide 44

The Good Practice Guide 45 \(GPG44\) help IDSPs who use reusable identities to choose the authenticator level that will give them the right level of protection for their service.

5.8 Good Practice Guide 45

The Good Practice Guide 45 \(GPG45\) is the government standard for identity verification, against which IDSPs will be certified.

5.9 Identity profile

GPG45 has four levels of confidence in terms of proof of identity. These are:

- low confidence
- medium confidence
- high confidence
- very high confidence

This guidance document refers to medium confidence and high confidence only.

There are several ways to combine the scores you get for each part of the identity checking process. These combinations are known as 'identity profiles'.

5.10 Identity service providers

An identity service provider (IDSP) is a provider of identity verification services. In the context of this Home Office guidance document, they will be certified to provide identity verification to specific levels of confidence, specified by government standards. IDSPs are sometimes referred to as 'identity providers'.

5.11 Identity verification

Identity verification (IDV) refers to the process of proving that an identity exists and that the individual making the claim (proving eligibility to work) is the owner of the identity.

5.12 Level of confidence

Completion of the identity proofing process will result in a proof that has a 'level of confidence' (LoC). The higher the LoC, the stronger the evidence required to support that LoC. The evidence needed to achieve an LoC is defined within GPG45.

5.13 Operational procedures manual

The operational procedures manual (OPM) is a restricted document that provides detailed procedures for IDSPs to meet the Home Office requirements. The OPM aims to remove ambiguity and interpretation that exists within GPG45, to allow IDSPs to develop solutions with certainty and provide a simple reference for auditors to certify against.

5.14 Relying party

The role of relying party is defined in the UKDIATF as an organisation that receives, interprets, and, depending on the use case, stores information received from other trust framework organisations.

Relying parties do not need to be certified against the trust framework, but they will be subject to flow-down conditions from the trust framework organisations they have a relationship with, to ensure security of the ecosystem.

The employer is the relying party when a right to work (RTW) check is carried out.

5.15 Standard DBS check/certificate

A Standard DBS certificate is a product of DBS that shows spent and unspent convictions, cautions.

5.16 UK digital identity and attributes trust framework

The UK digital identity and attributes trust framework (UKDIATF) is being implemented by the Department for Digital, Culture, Media, and Sport, and will be backed by legislation to enable the legal development of digital ID services. This guidance is being created in line with the UKDIATF.
