1. I am a solicitor of the Senior Courts of England and Wales and employed by the First Claimant as Litigation Counsel (Land & Property).

3. On 07.05.2022 at the direction of the First Claimant, a notice was published on page 50 of The Guardian Newspaper advertising the existence of these proceedings and including the address of the HS2 Proceedings website. The notice published was as follows:

4. The First Claimant's instructions were that the notice should be placed in the Legal Notices section of the paper, but The Guardian mistakenly placed it in the Classified section. In view of the mistake The Guardian will also be publishing the notice in the newspaper again on 13.05.2022.

BT unable to accept I paid 90-year-old uncle's bill

I care for my uncle who is 90 years old and has recently been diagnosed with dementia. On 11 March, I paid his BT phone bill online and my bank confirmed the payment of £72.87 had reached the account and sort code on the paper bill.

But I had misquoted his BT account reference by one digit and, although no reminders were received, on 20 April BT blocked him from making outgoing calls.

I have explained what happened in calls and emails to the missing payments department. I have also sent a letter to BT, with a copy of the transaction and proof that I have a lasting power of attorney (LPA).

He has given permission over the phone numerous times to allow me to deal with his account but I have been told the LPA must be registered before BT can speak to me (I will do this once I receive a certified copy). I'm loth to pay the bill a second time without sorting out where the first payment has gone.

He lives alone and is frail. The phone is his lifeline. JR, Tunbridge Wells

BT quickly restored your uncle's ability to make outgoing calls when you alerted it. But getting it to join the dots on the missing payment was a more painful process. You made a small mistake that had big consequences. Since we got in touch, BT has located the payment and is giving him a £30 credit to make up for some of the stress he experienced.

BT says: "While making an online bill payment, the incorrect account number was entered, which caused restrictions on outgoing calls because payment was not received. We were made aware of this and rectified the issue on the same day. We have applied a gesture of goodwill to apologise for the inconvenience and have registered the customer with priority fault repair."

Readers who have a chronic illness or are disabled might qualify for this scheme. To find out call 0800 800 150 and ask for the PHME 87180 form. There are strict criteria and applications require a doctor's or consultant's signature.

You have also applied on his behalf for BT's protected services scheme for vulnerable people.

Do I have a hope of getting £530 flights deposit back?

Last summer I booked flights to New York for our family with Aer Lingus for a holiday in April 2022.

After receiving the initial booking confirmation in July, I heard from Aer Lingus twice, in August 2021 and February 2022, to inform me of schedule changes.

On 6 April 2022, I visited the Aer Lingus website to check in and discovered the booking had been cancelled in February because the balance had not been paid.

▲ Aer Lingus failed to send an email to remind a customer their balance was due before cancelling a booking PHOTOGRAPH: NURPHOTO/REX/SHUTTERSTOCK

This was a shock. I had not received a reminder. My complaint and request for the return of the £530 deposit has been rejected.

Do I have any hope of retrieving the money from Aer Lingus? DF, Hebden Bridge

Well, the good news is that there is hope, as after we contacted it Aer Lingus relented and agreed to give you your money back.

On its website it says that after 24 hours, the deposit paid on a booking is non-refundable. It also says it will send a reminder email when the balance is due, which in this instance it did not do.

The airline says: "Aer Lingus offers customers travelling to or from North America the option to pay just 50% of their fare at the time of booking and pay the remaining balance 60 days before their travel date. In this case the balance was not paid within the communicated deadline, which resulted in the booking being cancelled."

However, it adds: "We appreciate on this occasion the customer did not receive a reminder email advising her to pay the balance, and as a gesture of goodwill we have issued a refund for the inconvenience caused."

The Consumer Champions inbox is bulging with complaints linked to Covid travel turmoil. You missed out on your holiday but in the current climate getting your money back seems like a good result.
