The role of the Youth Justice Board

The Youth Justice Board was established in 1998 to advise the Secretary of State on the youth justice system:

- oversee the youth justice system in England and Wales;
- prevent offending and reoffending by children and young people;
- commission secure establishments and place young people in custody;
- ensure that all young people in custody are kept safe and secure; and
- identify and share effective practice.

YOTS & the secure estate

Youth Offending Teams (YOTS)

- 160 YOTS
- within each local authority

Secure Estate

- 11 Youth Offender Institutions
- 4 Secure Training Centres
- 10 Secure Children's Homes

1898 young people in custody

YOTs as multi-agency bodies

The idea of multi-agency working is not new to youth justice:

- Under the Crime & Disorder Act 1998, local authorities must establish YOTs with responsibility for co-ordinating provision of youth justice services for all those in the local area;

The YOT is overseen by a non-statutory management board made up of senior officers from the local authority and its partners ... membership of a YOT must include at least one of the following:

- probation board/services officer;
- a local authority social worker;
- a police officer;
- a representative from the Primary Care Trust or a Local Health Board;
- an education expert;

A YOT may also include such other persons as the local authority thinks appropriate after consulting the partner agencies.

- This multi-agency approach has become widely recognised as a good model of public service delivery and for having a positive impact on outcomes.

Youth Justice & IOM

- YOTs are involved in IOM across England and Wales & three key areas of benefit:
 - prevention of youth crime and reducing number of first-time entrants;
 - working together to reduce offending and reoffending; and
 - transitions into the adult justice system.

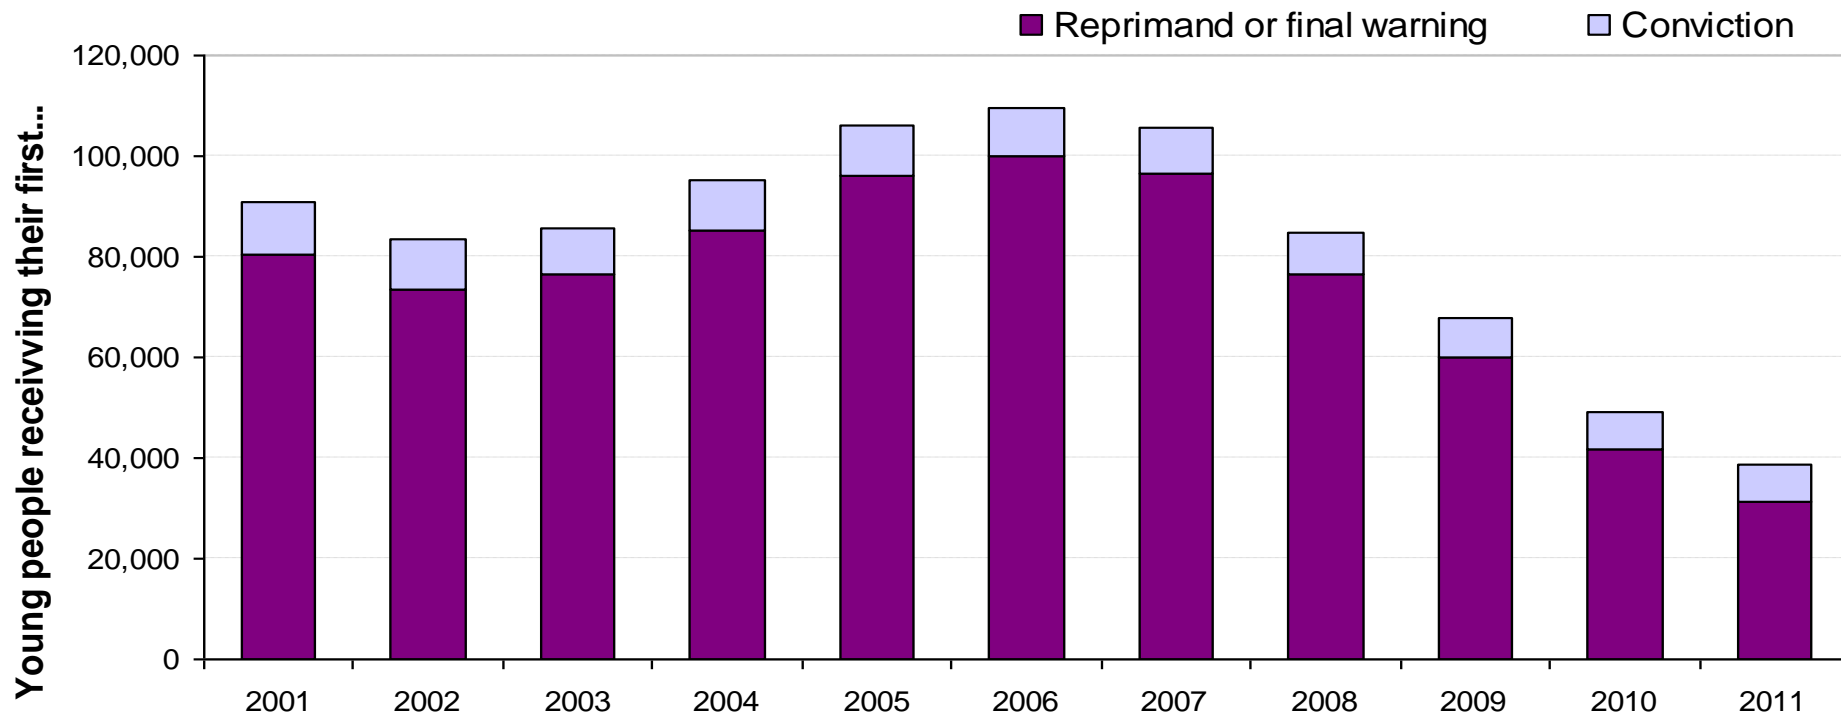

“Integrated Offender Management [in Cheshire North Division] via the Navigate scheme has been a significant success locally...there are clear benefits to involving YOTs in this process as ... targeting of collective resources allows for an effective impact on both youth and adult offenders. YOT staff contribute knowledge .. which adds to the overall knowledge base... We have seen better information sharing for those young people, some of whom will unfortunately progress into the 'adult' system and this also is a major benefit to how ... partners address the individual needs and issues of those young people in the future.”

Assistant Chief Exec of Cheshire Probation Trust & HWYOT Management Board Member

 - impacting on YOT's ability to deliver effective interventions
 - affecting structure of YOTs and place within Local Authority
- LASPO Act
 - creation of single remand framework and associated changes
 - sentencing changes
- Introduction of Police & Crime Commissioners
 - transfer of community safety budget
 - keen to ensure that YOTs are linked into decision-making processes
