Numbers of Sure Start Children's Centres as at 30 April 2010

INTRODUCTION

This publication reports on the number of phase 1, 2 and 3 designated (open) Sure Start children's centres as at 30 April 2010. Data is given for the total number of children's centres designated as a percentage of the total number of children's centres planned to reach all under 5 year olds in a local authority area.

KEY POINTS

- The aggregate total number of children's centres planned by LAs was 3620.
- As at 30 April the total number of designated children's centres was 3,631.
- As at 30 April four London local authorities had not reached their planned number of children's centres. Others had opened more than their planned number, resulting overall in 11 more children's centres open than planned across England.

TABLES

Table 1.1 Number and Percentage of Designated Children's Centres as at 30 April 2010

TECHNICAL NOTES

- Sure Start children's centres provide services for children under the age of five and their families. This includes access to: family support, health care, advice and support for parents, outreach services, childcare and to training and employment advice.
- The aggregate number of planned children's centres is based on the total numbers of centres from phases 1 and 2 (those designated up to March 2008) plus the planned numbers of centres for phase 3 (those centres designated from April 2008). These figures take account of any mergers that were agreed by the then Department for Children, Schools and Families.
- The process under which local authorities agreed their planned numbers of children's centres for phase 3 involved the then Department for Children, Schools and Families and its delivery partner, Together for Children, agreeing an indicative number of phase 3 centres needed to reach all under 5 year olds in a local authority area (based on child benefit data and an average reach figure of 800 children per centre).
- The overall number of children's centres expected by local authorities remains at 3638, once the remaining 7 centres in London have been designated.

- Together for Children is responsible for designating children's centres. As a minimum, children's centres can be designated when:
 - activities for children and families and provided on site, (such as 'stay and play' sessions or childcare)
 - links with Jobcentre Plus are operating
 - plans are in place to provide or link to health, outreach and family support services.
- The process used by Together for Children to collect evidence to designate children's centres includes:
 - face to face meetings with the local authority and children's centre staff
 - visits to the children's centre
 - local authorities completing a designation checklist
- Data collected on the number of children's centres per local authority was used to inform the previous Government's National Indicator 109: Delivery of Sure Start children's centres. The rationale for which was to measure progress against the national target to deliver 3,500 Sure Start children's centres, one for every community, by 2010.
