Introduction

This document provides details of the Non-Departmental Public Bodies (NDPBs) sponsored by the Ministry of Defence in 2010/11, as well as a Public Corporation. Further information on the organisations and individual roles and responsibilities can be found on the MOD website:

Public Bodies Background

Public bodies carry out a wide range of functions on behalf of Government. A public body is not part of a Government department, but carries out its function to a greater or lesser degree at arm's length from central Government.

Ministers are ultimately responsible to Parliament for the activities of the bodies sponsored by their departments and in almost all cases (except, for example, where there is separate statutory provision) Ministers make appointments to their boards. Departments are responsible for funding and ensuring good governance of their public bodies.

There are three types of NDPBs included in this publication. These denote different funding arrangements, functions and kinds of activity as follows:

- Executive NDPBs – established in statute and carrying out administrative, regulatory and commercial functions, they employ their own staff and are allocated their own budgets.
- Advisory NDPBs – provide independent and expert advice to Ministers on particular topics of interest. They do not usually have staff but are supported by staff from their sponsoring department. They do not usually have their own budget, as costs incurred come within the department's expenditure.
- Independent Monitoring Boards – formerly known as 'Boards of Visitors' – watchdogs of the prison system. Their duty is to satisfy themselves as to the state of the prison premises, their administration and the treatment of prisoners. The sponsoring department meets the costs.
- Public Corporations are mainly trading, market bodies – operating commercially and recovering most of their costs from fees charged to customers.

Bodies are usually classified as Public Corporations where at least 50% of costs are met from such outside income. The 50% criterion is applied by looking over a range of years to avoid frequent reclassifications through minor fluctuations in one year, which are not repeated or expected to be repeated in the future.

As at 31 March 2011 the Ministry of Defence sponsored 28 public bodies, comprising 3 Executive NDPBs, 23 Advisory NDPBs, 1 public corporation and 1 Independent Monitoring Board. Since the last publication one NDPB and a Stakeholder Advisory Board have been abolished: the Animal Welfare Advisory Committee and the Op Telic Health Research Review Board.

Regulating the appointment process

The role of the Commissioner for Public Appointments is to regulate, monitor and report on the Ministerial appointments to health bodies, non-departmental public bodies, public corporations and other public bodies in England and Wales.

The Commissioner is appointed by HM The Queen (on the advice of the Prime Minister) by Order in Council and is independent of the Government. Northern Ireland and Scotland have their own commissioners for Public Appointments.

Public bodies falling within the Commissioner's jurisdiction are shown in this publication as 'OCA regulated'. Departments seek to follow the Code of Practice established by the Commissioner as good practice for all public appointments wherever possible, even where not formally regulated by OCA.

Public Bodies Information

Each public body provides a short narrative explaining their purpose, role and general arrangements, together with a table of information concerning their constitutional administration and appointments details for the year as at 31 March of each annual reporting year. A key describing the entries to main tables is provided at Annex A.

Executive NDPBs

National Museum of the Royal Navy

The National Museum of the Royal Navy, a single entity embracing the four naval service museums, commenced operations on 1 April 2009. It is a registered charity and has the status of a national museum. It aims to capture the enduring spirit of the naval service linking the rich legacy of history with the challenges faced by the Royal Navy today. It recognises the strong role that heritage plays in nurturing and sustaining Service ethos and fighting spirit.

The four naval service museums (Royal Naval Museum, Royal Navy Submarine Museum, Fleet Air Arm Museum and Royal Marines Museum) together with HMS Victory have between them told the tale of the Royal Navy's history with scholarship, wit and skill. Without losing the individual identities of the museums, the creation of the National Museum will provide a clearer strategic focus, thus giving the new body more leverage in the competition for resources.

The National Museum will tell the story of Command of the Sea, the projection of maritime force and the Royal Navy's contribution to military operations through the ages, via the unique collections held by its constituent museums. Through its affiliate programme the National Museum will develop and extend regional partnerships thus allowing the story of the Royal Navy, past, present and future to be told across the country.

The National Museum will also play an instrumental role in the education of Royal Navy and Royal Marines personnel: in initial training, through the Heritage Centre at HMS Raleigh, in contributing to recruiting and retention and by encouraging and maintaining the ethos and fighting spirit of the Naval Service. Equally, it will reinforce the Royal Navy and Royal Marines reputation by raising awareness of the vital contribution the Naval Service has made to national security and prosperity in the past and its continued relevance today.

Royal Air Force Museum

The RAF Museum was founded in 1963 to preserve, conserve and exhibit the history of the Royal Air Force and its relationship with aviation. It is the only UK national museum to concentrate solely on the development of aviation and it aims to promote an understanding of the role and achievements of the Royal Air Force in that context. It is a registered charity and the collections are held at the Museum's two public sites at Hendon, London, and Cosford, West Midlands. A reserve collection is held at Stafford.

Advisory Committee on Conscientious Objectors

The Advisory Committee on Conscientious Objectors was established in 1970. It advises the MOD on all conscientious objection claims to further service in the Armed Forces from Service personnel, where an application to retire or to resign a commission on the grounds of conscience has not been accepted by the Service authorities. The Committee does not exist to consider cases of conscientious objection to conscription or call-up in the event of war.

Central Advisory Committee on Pensions and Compensation

The Central Advisory Committee on Pensions and Compensation (previously the Central Advisory Committee on War Pensions) was established by the War Pensions Act 1921 "to consider such matters as may be put before them by the Minister for their advice". The Committee was the subject of a review during 2007/08 to refocus its work so that it might be more effective in providing advice on policy issues affecting all service pension and compensation schemes; and act as a credible and visible consultative mechanism for the Service pensions and compensation schemes. In addition to this, the Committee's role was broadened to include providing advice, support and monitoring of the Department's implementation of the review of the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme which was fulfilled in March 2010.

There are currently representatives of Service organisations, occupational pensions groups, and regional Veterans Advisory and Pensions Committee Chairs. The Chair of the Independent Medical Expert Group, single Service representatives and officials of the Department also serve on the Committee. Ministerially-chaired meetings normally take place twice a year.

Defence Scientific Advisory Council

The Defence Scientific Advisory Council is established to provide independent advice to the Secretary of State for Defence on matters of concern to the Ministry of Defence (MOD) in the fields of science, engineering, technology and analysis. Its terms of reference are:

- a. To advise on all aspects of the MOD research and development programme, including direction, content, exploitation, balance and changes, and value for money.
- b. To advise on the use of science, engineering, technology and analysis resources within MOD.
- c. To advise on ways of achieving cross cutting capabilities, from conception to disposal and across all Defence Lines of Development.
- d. To advise on operational issues.
- e. To advise on ad hoc issues, including broad strategic issues, priorities and policies internal to MOD and those that are external to, but will impact upon, MOD.
- f. To advise on emerging external developments, innovation, opportunities and threats to MOD, both national and international.

Whilst the MOD and the Council will work together to instigate studies in all these areas, the Council should identify and drive the instigation of studies and reviews in areas of research and science, engineering, technology and analysis capability.

The Defence Scientific Advisory Council works with key international partners where appropriate.

The Chairman of the Council reports annually to the Secretary of State.

The Council's remit has evolved from its primary role of reviewing and advising on the research programme to taking a more strategic view of all science, engineering, technology and analysis aspects across MOD on behalf of the Secretary of State. The Council does not provide scientific or technical advice to suppliers of research.

The Council is supported by a register of independent advisors which provides a pool of expertise that can be drawn upon for specific tasks. Only members of the Council hold public appointments.

Review Board for Government Contracts

The Review Board was set up in 1968, under an agreement between the Government and the Confederation of British Industry. It was charged with two functions:

- a) to review periodically (normally at three-yearly intervals) the operation of the profit formula used in pricing non-competitive Government contracts;
- b) to determine any price adjustments which may be appropriate in relation to any particular contract which is referred to the Board on the basis of a complaint by either party that the price negotiated was not fair and reasonable.

Following its Report on the Fourth General Review published in March 1984, the Board carries out intermediate reviews at the end of the first and second year of each succeeding three-year period. Such reviews are normally limited to examination of the profit formula target rate of return. Reports on both the General and Annual Reviews are published by the Stationery Office and placed in the libraries of the Houses of Parliament.

The Review Board comprises a Chairman, two Government nominated members and two Confederation of British Industry nominated members, all appointed under open competition.

The Science Advisory Committee on the Medical Implications of Less Lethal Weapons

The Science Advisory Committee on the Medical Implications of Less Lethal Weapons was established in 2009 to replace the Defence Scientific Advisory Committee Subcommittee on the Medical Implications of Less Lethal Weapons (DOMILL). The role of the Committee is to provide advice on the biophysical, biomechanical, pathological and clinical aspects of generic classes of Less Lethal Weapons systems; provide independent statements on the medical implications of use of specific Less Lethal Weapons systems given published operational guidance to users; and provide advice on the risk of injury from specific Less Lethal Weapons systems striking specific areas of the body in a format that will assist those responsible for developing policy and, separately, guidance to users, as well as operational users themselves in making tactical decisions.

The Committee is currently recruiting for a Chair and Members but as yet has not formally appointed any members and has not stood up as a committee.

Veterans Advisory and Pensions Committees

The Veterans Advisory and Pensions Committees are appointed by the Secretary of State to represent the interests of war disablement pensioners and war widow(er)s. There are 13 Committees covering the whole of the United Kingdom, each having between 12 and 20 members. There are also committees in the Republic of Ireland and the Isle of Man which have a similar role.

The Veterans Advisory and Pensions Committees are independent of the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency but work very closely with the Agency's staff to carry out their functions.

Raise awareness

1. Raise awareness especially at local level of the War Pensions Scheme, Armed Forces Compensation Scheme, SPVA Veterans Welfare Service and the availability of cross government support to the Armed Forces, their families and Veterans.

Welfare Pathway

1. Support the Ministry of Defence by acting as advocates for the implementation of cross government support to injured personnel, their dependants and veterans. Highlighting gaps or issues in provision and feeding these back initially through SPVA or any mechanism put in place by the service provider.
2. Understand the Welfare Provision Network in the local areas and assist Veterans and dependants in accessing local service as envisaged under the Service Personnel Command Paper, where individuals are unable to obtain the required support – i.e. work with all parties to act as advocates for individuals experiencing difficulty in accessing services.
3. The committees do not provide welfare support themselves but can support individuals and should refer cases for SPVA Welfare assessment where appropriate.
4. Support the SPVA by monitoring its welfare service and liaising with other organisations with a view to ensuring the welfare needs of veterans and their dependants are addressed.

Advising and representing

1. Assisting individuals with any problems or complaints they have regarding the war pensions or AFCS claims process, where there is no formal recourse to an independent body, liaising closely with SPVA.
2. Offer an independent explanation of the War Pensions and AFCS scheme(s) as it relates to an individual, assessing issues in response to specific complaints.
3. Providing a formal independent review of complaints, convening an Independent Complaints Panel where necessary, as outlined by the SPVA complaints procedure.

Consultation

1. Based on their involvement in the wider process and their contact with individuals in the local areas, act as a conduit for local consultation by Ministers, the Ministry of Defence and the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency (SPVA) on issues affecting recipients of pension from the War Pensions Scheme and Armed Forces Compensation Scheme.

Independent Monitoring Board NDPB

Independent Monitoring Board for the Military Corrective Training Centre

The Military Corrective Training Centre Colchester, provides detention facilities for Armed Forces personnel (and, occasionally, civilians who are subject to Service law). It holds a number of different categories of detainees. Most are sentenced for non-criminal conduct offences and return to their military duties on release. A smaller number leave the Services after detention and so receive training to prepare them for civilian life. The Military Corrective Training Centre is also capable of holding persons in safe custody on remand or pending their discharge to serve a period of imprisonment.

The Independent Monitoring Board is a requirement under the provisions of the Service Custody and Service of Relevant Sentences Rules. Board Members are appointed by the Secretary of State for Defence. The Independent Monitoring Board inspect the Military Corrective Training Centre at least twice a year and reports its findings to Ministers. It inspects, amongst other things, the condition of the premises and the treatment, health and welfare of detainees. The arrangements are very similar to those in place for civilian detention facilities in the UK.
