1 Summary

1.1 NCTL is undertaking a review of the Mandatory Qualification (MQ) to ensure that it:
- Reflects the changing landscape
- Is sufficiently flexible to ensure that it continues to meet the needs of the profession and children and young people with sensory impairment.
- Aligns with DfE and NCTL priorities to ensure schools, Higher Education Institutions and others across the sector working collaboratively on the design and delivery of training.

The outcomes of the review will inform a set of options and recommendations to be put to Ministers in spring 2015 for the future model of the MQ and the process for identifying and approving providers to deliver the MQ.

This consultation document provides background to the Mandatory Qualification, an overview of work already undertaken in 2014, and the rationale for, and scope of this consultation.

Part 1 of the document sets out:
- The background to the review and the purpose of the consultation

Part 2 of the document sets out:
- The assumptions underpinning the review
- The scope of the review

We would like to hear your views on two questions, these can be found on the consultation response form.
2 Executive Summary

Part 1 - Background

- To teach a class of pupils with hearing impairment (HI), vision impairment (VI) or multi-sensory impairment (MSI), a teacher is required to hold a Mandatory Qualification (MQ) approved by the Secretary of State as well as qualified teacher status. This is part of the statutory requirements for Qualified Teacher Status set out in the regulations governing QTS. In addition, paragraph 6.6.1 of the Special educational needs and disability code of practice: 0 to 25 years states that:

Schools should work closely with the local authority and other providers to agree the range of local services and clear arrangements for making appropriate requests. This might include schools commissioning specialist services directly. Such specialist services include, but are not limited to:

- educational psychologists
- Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services (CAMHS)
- specialist teachers or support services, including specialist teachers with a mandatory qualification for children with hearing and vision impairment, including multi-sensory impairment, and for those with a physical disability. (Those teaching classes of children with sensory impairment must hold an appropriate qualification approved by the Secretary of State. Teachers working in an advisory role to support such pupils should also hold the appropriate qualification.)
- therapists (including speech and language therapists, occupational therapists and physiotherapists)

- The MQ is underpinned by a specification and assessment is outcomes based.

- The Secretary of State delegated responsibility to the TDA (now National College for Teaching and Leadership, NCTL) to approve providers to deliver courses leading to the award of the MQ.

- In 2009 the TDA approved 8 providers to deliver programmes leading to the award of the MQ for a 5 year period, ending on 31st August 2014. Those providers who are delivering programmes leading to the award of the MQ for a further cohort from September 2014 are listed on our website.

- In 2014 we worked in partnership with DfE colleagues and a national stakeholder group including NatSIP (National Sensory Impairment Partnership), provider representatives and other experts to undertake a light touch review of the 2009 MQ specification in time for programmes being delivered from September 2014. (Phase 1 of the current project). The main changes made were:

  * Updating the specification to reflect Special educational needs and disabilities (SEND) reforms and the revised SEND Code of Practice
  * Updating the specification with new knowledge and understanding of sensory impairment and innovations in practice and;
  * Improving consistency and 'read-across' between the three different specifications, HI, MSI and VI.

Part 2 – The consultation

Purpose of the consultation

- Phase 2 offers a timely opportunity to undertake a wider review of the Mandatory Qualification to ensure that it:

  * Reflects the changing landscape
  * Is sufficiently flexible to ensure that it continues to meet the needs of the profession and children and young people with sensory impairment.
  * Aligns with DfE and NCTL priorities to ensure schools, Higher Education Institutions and others across the sector working collaboratively on the design and delivery of training.

- We are holding a consultation during autumn 2014, the outcomes of which will inform a set of options and recommendations to be put to Ministers in spring 2015 for the future model of the MQ and the process for identifying and approving providers to deliver the MQ.

- The aim is to ensure that the MQ remains a high quality qualification that is sufficiently flexible in content and delivery model to meet the needs of the sector within a changing landscape.
Assumptions underpinning the review

The consultation is underpinned by the following assumptions:

- There is, and will continue to be, no central funding attached to delivery of the qualification
- The specification that underpins the MQ is, and will continue to be recognised as, the minimum requirement for teachers of children and young people with VI, MSI and HI. It will continue to be an expectation that those approved to deliver the qualification will draw on their own expertise and that of partners and the wider sector to ensure that their programme is based on cutting edge research, latest scientific and technological advances and best practice. This will enable the detailed programme content to develop and maintain currency as the landscape continues to change and knowledge/expertise within the specialisms evolves.

Scope of the review

The consultation is time limited and will focus on the:

- Structure of the qualification
- Broad content of the specification in the context of it as a minimum requirement
- Delivery approaches

- The following issues will not form part of the consultation:
  - The equivalence of international qualifications
  - Continuous professional development
