The Commonwealth Scholarship Commission in the United Kingdom (CSC) is responsible for managing Britain's contribution to the Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Plan (CSFP).

The CSC supports over 900 scholarships and fellowships for postgraduate study and professional development each year. Awards are funded by the Department for International Development (for developing Commonwealth countries), and the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills and the Scottish Government (for developed Commonwealth countries), in conjunction with UK universities. The CSC also nominates UK citizens for scholarships to study in other Commonwealth countries under the CSFP.

The CSC offers the following types of award:

Commonwealth Scholarships for PhD research or Master's study – available for postgraduate study at any UK university which has a funding agreement with the CSC. Candidates should apply in the first instance to the national nominating agency of their resident country. Additional nominations are sought each year from developing country universities and other sources.

Commonwealth Split-site Scholarships – to support PhD candidates to spend up to one year in the UK as part of their doctoral studies. Candidates should apply directly to the CSC.

Commonwealth Shared Scholarships – for developing country students who would not otherwise be able to undertake Master's level study in the UK, jointly supported by UK universities. Universities are invited each year to bid to host these scholarships.

Commonwealth Distance Learning Scholarships – enabling developing country students to study UK Master's degree courses while living in their home countries. UK universities are invited to register expressions of interest for the CSC to support their course(s) each year.

Commonwealth Academic Fellowships – aimed at early career staff in developing country universities, including the CSC's own PhD alumni. Alumni should apply directly to the CSC; nominations are also invited from selected universities.

Commonwealth Professional Fellowships – for mid-career professionals from developing countries. Applications are invited each year from UK organisations from any sector that wish to host these fellowships.

Commonwealth Medical Fellowships – for mid-career medical and dental staff in developing countries to enhance their clinical skills. Nominations are invited from selected universities.

The CSC was established by Act of Parliament in 1959, and is a non-departmental public body in its own right. The CSC's Secretariat is provided by the Association of Commonwealth Universities; overseas services are provided by the British Council.

The CSC is part of a larger Commonwealth-wide scheme: the Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Plan (CSFP). The CSFP is an international programme under which member governments offer scholarships and fellowships to citizens of other Commonwealth countries. It was established at the first Commonwealth education conference in 1959 and is reviewed by Commonwealth education ministers at their triennial meetings. The CSFP has enabled almost 30,000 individuals to study in over 20 countries across the Commonwealth.

Full information on the scholarships and fellowships administered by the CSC, including application procedures and eligibility requirements, is available at www.dfid.gov.uk/cscuk

Foreword

We have the honour to submit, pursuant to Schedule 2, Section 13, Clause (5) 2 of the International Development Act 2002, the following report of the Commonwealth Scholarship Commission in the United Kingdom for the year ending 30 September 2014.

The past year has seen significant discussion of both the role of international development and the value of the Commonwealth. The Commonwealth Scholarship Commission in the United Kingdom (CSC) is proud of the distinctive contribution that it makes to both spheres.

As the UK's leading scholarship programme for international development, 87% of award holders supported during the past year have come from low or lower middle income countries. Our alumni and evaluation programmes confirm that around 95% of our award holders return to influence the development of their home countries. Many also undertake work that directly addresses development needs while they are on award.

At its best, the Commonwealth provides a unique gathering of like-minded governments and peoples who focus primarily on shared values and the common good. Yet the value of the Commonwealth is sometimes challenged. Recent articles published in The Times and The Economist were disappointingly sceptical, though each recognised Commonwealth Scholarships as one of the ways in which the Commonwealth has gained real recognition, particularly among young people. The scheme is a high-profile reminder of the commitment of host governments to these values. We are pleased that the United Kingdom remains the lead contributor to the scheme.

Commonwealth Scholarships are now available in no less than 16 countries. Much of this expansion has been made possible by the new Commonwealth Scholarships endowment fund, to which governments and some 200 alumni have so far contributed – another indication of how highly the distinctive Commonwealth Scholarships brand is valued. To maintain this, we need to ensure that our UK awards remain available to all Commonwealth countries, both developed and developing, and that the brand retains its global prestige.

We aim to deliver these benefits with maximum efficiency. The administrative costs of the CSC have reduced again this year by a further 1.8% of our budget, enabling us to offer more awards. Our work also benefits from substantial in-kind contributions from national nominating agencies across the Commonwealth, some £3.5 million in contributions from UK universities, and weeks of work by leading UK academics who contribute to our selection processes free of charge.

We would like to record our thanks to the above; to the Department for International Development, the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills, and the Scottish Government for their funding; to all of the staff of the Association of Commonwealth Universities, which hosts our Secretariat; and to the British Council, for its promotion of our work overseas. Above all, we acknowledge the outstanding work of our Scholars, Fellows and alumni, whose determination and achievements make Commonwealth Scholarships the distinctive force that they are.

Professor Tim Unwin	Dr John Kirkland
Chair	Executive Secretary

Monitoring progress

The CSC places great emphasis on monitoring and evaluation, as part of its responsibility to both funding bodies and award holders. This is reflected in the programmes and procedures established to assess both the progress of Commonwealth Scholars and Fellows and that of the scheme as a whole.

Maintaining contact with award holders

Each award holder is the responsibility of a named officer within the Secretariat (based at the Association of Commonwealth Universities) who, from the point of provisional selection, becomes the main point of contact for subsequent dealings with the CSC.

Secretariat staff make contact with award holders shortly after arrival in the UK to check that all is well, and communicate with award holders at regular intervals throughout the year. In addition, Secretariat staff visit a number of institutions each year, meeting with award holders and their supervisors to provide information and advice. Access, as required, is provided by the Secretariat to specialist services for matters such as welfare and immigration.

The British Council provides pre-departure support in the form of a pre-departure briefing, which provides useful information for award holders to assist them in their preparations for, their journey to, and their stay in the UK, as well as being responsible for booking their airfare to the UK.

Monitoring progress of award holders

- If necessary, contact is made with the prospective supervisor at the time of arrival, pointing out special needs and problems that may be encountered.
- Award holders and, for research degrees, supervisors are required to write a report at the end of their first term, enabling potential problems to be highlighted at an early stage.
- Award holders and their supervisors/tutors are required to write a detailed report at the end of each year.
- First term and annual reports are monitored for emerging issues and referred for specialist advice; each annual report is read not only by Secretariat staff, but also by at least one member of the Commission.

Evaluating the scheme

- The CSC Evaluation and Monitoring Programme is responsible for the acquisition and analysis of data relating to the outcomes and impact of the CSC's scholarship and fellowship schemes. During this report year, new tools, methods and processes such as surveys were further refined, and projects such as the counterfactual study were further developed. Two reports were published: a study of research methodologies employed by international scholarship programmes, and a review of the Professional Fellowship scheme.
- Host institutions are systematically surveyed each year to obtain information on progress, qualifications gained, submission dates, and, where studies are still in progress, likely dates of completion (see 'Completion of courses' on right). The Secretariat compares performance by gender and subject.
- Each year, the Secretariat administers an anonymous survey of award holders, enquiring about their experiences of studying and living in the UK and the administration of the scheme. These responses are analysed for review by the CSC (see 'Award holders' views' on right).
- Feedback is sought from delegates at the CSC's Welcome Programme and other student events.

The report year saw the full introduction of a comprehensive student engagement strategy, designed to enhance the scholarship experience. The strategy focused on increasing the engagement of award holders through regular communications (including monthly email newsletters), a programme of events (including the formal Welcome Programme and Farewell Event), residential workshops for Master's Scholars, and the Development Module, which aims to increase the development impact of PhD scholarships.

Completion of courses

The successful completion of qualifications is monitored closely by the CSC. For taught Master's courses, the completion rate is consistently over 90%, and the composite rate for a five-year average (2007-2011 cohorts) is 96%. For Commonwealth Shared Scholars, the completion rate for the last five years (2007-2011 cohorts) is 94%.

Doctoral completion rates also continue to be high, with that for the most recent five-year period (PhDs started in 2004-2008) at 87%. The submission rate (those who submitted their thesis within four years of commencing their PhD) for this group is 65% but, with some data from this cohort still to be reported, this figure is expected to rise; the submission rate excluding these pending results is 69%.

Award holders' views

In 2014, 395 award holders returned the annual anonymous questionnaire. This questionnaire asks award holders to rate various aspects of their experience on a five-point scale, ranging from 'excellent' through to 'very poor', enabling year-to-year comparison. Respondents are asked to comment on these ratings and also at greater length on their award and their experience in the UK.

Respondents continue to rate the ACU's overall administration of the scheme highly, as shown in Table 2. 89% rated this 'excellent' or 'good' (3 percentage points less than in 2013, with the 'satisfactory' rating rising by 3 points). 85% of new award holders rated selection and placement procedures as 'excellent' or 'good', compared with 91% in 2013 (6 points less than in 2013, with the 'satisfactory' rating rising by 5 points).

Respondents' comments in both areas related to the period of restructuring and changing service provision in 2013. Some were related to the length of time between receiving notification of selection for an award and receiving final confirmation documents, though timetables were in line with previous years. Greater use of electronic communication tools and some adjustments to staffing levels to shorten the time taken to respond to queries have streamlined processes, but specific comments on selection and placement also resonate with feedback from candidates who withdraw after selection that CSC scholarship offers are issued later than those of other awards. Other comments were related to CSC policies.

Respondents rated academic facilities highly, with 97% deeming them to be 'excellent' or 'good', and 96% also rated their overall academic experience in these top two categories. The combined 'excellent' and 'good' rating for institutions' provision of welfare advice continues to rise, and was 78% in 2014 (see Table 2).

Positive aspects of respondents' time on award included good relationships with supervisors, staff, and fellow students; benefiting from the UK's infrastructure and resources (not only academically, but also in terms of transport, health services, and a sense of stability); friendly and welcoming people and a multicultural environment to live and work in; opportunities for both career development and personal development; and increased confidence and skills.

On the other hand, there were comments relating to less positive social and academic experiences, issues of loneliness and homesickness, difficulty adjusting to the weather, and feeling a lack of support. Financial worries and difficulty finding suitable and affordable accommodation were some of the most common issues raised. Suggestions for improvement included increased stipend and resources, and more help with finding accommodation, in particular for those on shorter awards. In addition, there were requests for more time on award, better pre-departure information, and for CSC events to be held in locations around the UK other than London.

In additional questions not shown in Tables 1 and 2, 81% of respondents felt that the stipend was at least 'fairly adequate'. Levels of satisfaction have risen gradually over recent years. Comments reflect those made in previous years; many respondents described being able to manage basic costs adequately, but a restricted ability to participate in as many activities as they might wish, and little room for additional or unforeseen costs. Some respondents were living in more expensive areas or had difficulty securing affordable accommodation, and those with families also found it harder to manage.

Overall, out of those respondents nearing the end of their award, 89% (of the 218 responding to this particular question) felt that their academic programme had 'completely' or 'mostly' fulfilled the purpose for which they came to the UK.

In this report, we both present the total numbers of awards held in 2013-2014 and show which of these are new awards taken up in 2013-2014. During the report year, a number of meetings took place to select the 2014 intake; these will be reported as new awards for 2014 in the next Annual Report for the year ending 30 September 2015.

1,641 awards were held in the 2013-2014 report year. 945 of these were new 2013 awards taken up, representing the intake for the third year of the 2011-2015 funding period. A breakdown of these new and on award figures can be seen in Tables 3, 4 and 5.

For 2013 awards, there was a further increase in the number of invitations to nominate issued to national nominating agencies, reflecting the increased budget available. The CSC received an increased number of nominations for DFID-funded awards (not including Distance Learning Scholarships and Shared Scholarships). For 2013 awards (excluding Distance Learning and Shared Scholarships), 1,001 nominations were received, compared to 907 in 2012, 763 in 2011, and 832 in 2010. From these 1,001 nominations, 597 selections were made – again a higher number than previous years (522 in 2012, 421 in 2011, and 414 in 2010). The proportion of selections from eligible nominations also continued to rise, and was 60% in 2013. Increased numbers of awards taken up in 2013 compared with 2012 can be seen in Table 5.

UK universities directly recruit and select Shared Scholarship and Distance Learning Scholarship candidates, whose awards are confirmed by the CSC's selection committees. For Shared Scholarships, universities approved applications from 433 candidates and the CSC selected 272 candidates for a take-up of 218 awards (in 2012, applications from 323 candidates were approved and 215 were selected for a take-up of 188 awards). For Distance Learning Scholarships, universities approved 344 applications and the CSC made 259 selections (equivalent figures in 2012 were 346 applications and 236 selections). Both these schemes also had increased numbers of selections in 2013.

There were also 13 selections for awards for doctoral study funded by BIS and the Scottish Government, out of 30 nominations. 6 candidates took up awards.

It should be emphasised that, before nomination to the CSC, most candidates have undergone a highly competitive selection process in their own country.

Region

44 countries were represented in the 2013 intake for Commonwealth Scholarships and Fellowships (see pages 18-20). When selecting candidates, the CSC's primary concern is that successful applicants should be of the highest calibre. As a result, the CSC does not operate specific quotas for individual Commonwealth countries. It does, however, have broad regional selection targets for those scholarship candidates funded by DFID. For the 2013 intake, awards to sub-Saharan Africa were higher than their quota at 58%, while awards to South Asia and small states encompassing the Pacific, Caribbean and Southeast Asia were lower than the quota, at 31% and 11% respectively.

Level of study

63% of selections for 2013 DFID-funded scholarships were for Master's programmes and 37% for doctoral study. Doctoral-level scholarships remain a significant part of the CSC's portfolio of awards, in both traditional and split-site modes, and it is committed to offering these for the foreseeable future. In addition to the DFID-funded scholarships already mentioned and Split-site Scholarships for doctoral study, 86% of scholarships awarded to university staff in developing countries in this report year were for doctoral study. Across all scholarship schemes, 148 candidates were selected for research awards and 595 for taught awards, reflecting the diverse and relevant range of UK Master's courses available (see Table 5).

Gender

This year, the CSC continued to focus on encouraging the participation of women in all its programmes. While positive discrimination is not a factor in selection, the importance of a fair gender balance is highlighted to nominating agencies.

In 2013, 44% of nominations received for all DFID-funded scholarships (including Distance Learning Scholarships and Shared Scholarships) were female candidates, up 4 percentage points from 2012. 46% of selected candidates were female, the same percentage as in 2012. The CSC continues to invite nominations from women's universities in South Asia and from the Forum for African Women Educationalists, to increase female participation.

Women comprised 40% of selected candidates for the Academic Fellowships scheme in 2013, although the scheme had the lowest proportion of nominated female candidates, at 34%. Both figures are an improvement on recent years – across a five-year period (2009-2013 awards), 32% of selected candidates and 29% of nominated candidates were female.

For Professional Fellowships, 36% of nominated candidates were female, but the selection rate of female candidates was the lowest, at 34%. However, nomination and selection rates for female candidates tend to fluctuate from year to year and, in previous report years, have been higher. Across a five-year period (2009-2013 awards), 41% of both nominated and selected candidates were female.

In terms of support on award, provision is made for award holders on longer awards who are accompanied by their families.

The CSFP

As part of the UK's contribution to the Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Plan (CSFP), the CSC also nominates UK candidates for Commonwealth Scholarships offered by other Commonwealth countries. In 2013-2014, a total of 5 award holders from the UK were funded for doctoral study in New Zealand, studying Geography, Biology, Library and Information Management, Anatomy, and English Language and Literature and Comparative Studies.

National nominating agencies

Applications for Commonwealth Scholarships for PhD research and Master's study in the UK should be made in the first instance to the nominating agency in the candidate's home country. These are listed below. Full details are available on the Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Plan website at www.csfp-online.org

Each agency is responsible for its own selection criteria. The CSC Secretariat in the UK is able to advise on which agency to approach in particular circumstances, but is not responsible for the decisions or procedures adopted by the agencies concerned.

Working with UK universities

The CSC plays an important role in attracting the best and brightest talent to UK universities. In return, UK universities support the CSC's activities through:

- part funding Commonwealth Scholarships for developed Commonwealth country citizens
- part funding Commonwealth Scholarships for developing Commonwealth country citizens through tuition fee contributions
- providing funding for Commonwealth Shared Scholarships
- hosting Commonwealth Academic Fellowships
- partnering with overseas institutions to offer Commonwealth Split-site Scholarships and Commonwealth Distance Learning Scholarships

The following universities currently have part funding agreements with the CSC for Commonwealth Scholarships for developing Commonwealth country citizens:

Governance statement

The Commonwealth Scholarship Commission in the United Kingdom (CSC) was established by Act of Parliament in 1959 in order to manage the UK contribution to the Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Plan (CSFP), launched by Commonwealth education ministers in 1958. Its status was subsequently reaffirmed in the International Development Act of 2002.

The CSC is a non-departmental public body, for which the Department for International Development (DFID) is the lead department and main sponsor, focusing exclusively on awards that deliver on poverty reduction. However, other financial contributions have been received in recent years from the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills, the Scottish Government, and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, especially for awards to scholars from richer Commonwealth countries. The CSC is independent of Government in its decision-making and operations, and the Act of Parliament expressly forbids political interference in the selection of individual candidates for scholarships. The CSC submits an Annual Report on its work each year to the Secretary of State; this forms the basis of a report submitted by the Secretary of State to Parliament, to which (s)he is ultimately responsible for the work of the CSC.

In addition to regulations provided in the 1959 Act (which have been confirmed in subsequent Development Acts) and subsequent Ministerial Directives, detailed governance arrangements for the CSC have been set out in a Framework Document. The Framework includes an associated Financial Memorandum and the CSC's three-year corporate and one-year business plans. The DFID Internal Audit Department (IAD) provides the CSC's internal audit function. The CSC's annual income and expenditure are incorporated in the overall accounts of DFID, and the CSC account is held with the Government Banking Service.

The Commission comprises 15 members, including the Chair, who are appointed in line with the principles of the Code of Practice for Ministerial Appointments to Public Bodies. Members are appointed by the Secretary of State for an initial period of three years, with the possibility of renewal for one further three-year appointment. The Executive Secretary of the Commission is the Accounting Officer for the CSC, with responsibility to the Secretary of State for its conduct and performance. It is expected that the Chair and other relevant officials will meet with relevant Ministers at least annually to discuss the work of the CSC.

The full Commission meets three times per year. It is supported in its work by specialist committees, made up of Commissioners, which deal with Finance, Audit and Risk Management, Awards Policy, External Liaison, and Evaluation and Monitoring. Separate committees of Commissioners are convened to handle the selection of scholarship recipients. The CSC has no employees, contracting out its Secretariat and other management functions to two external bodies: the Association of Commonwealth Universities (ACU) and the British Council. The effectiveness and value for money of these arrangements are formally evaluated annually by the Finance Committee, which recommends appropriate action to the full Commission. The CSC operates an Evaluation and Monitoring Programme which provides evidence of the impact of its work, through interviews and surveys of alumni and other stakeholders. The results of this programme influence the CSC's decision-making processes.

The status of the CSC was subject to an independent assessment by DFID in 2013, as part of the Government's rolling programme of triennial review of public bodies. This review reported in September 2013 that the functions carried out by the CSC are required and that the delivery model is appropriate and offers value for money.
