Users and their Uses

The products listed above are exploited by a wide range of users in a variety of ways:

User	Uses
Ministers and officials in the Department for Communities and Local Government	The statistics are used internally in the formulation and monitoring of policy; for resource allocation; for performance monitoring; and in cost-benefit analyses
Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC)	DECC use the EHS data to monitor and evaluate progress towards the achievement of energy efficiency and climate change targets

User	Uses
HM Treasury and the Bank of England	The Bank uses house building statistics in their deliberations on monetary policy
Department for Work and Pensions (DWP/ODI)	Modelling - DWP and ODI use EHS data to provide information on housing conditions for private rented sector tenants and for those with disabilities
Department for Transport (DfT)	DfT use our Household Projections in their transport modelling work
Department for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA)	DEFRA use data from the EHS to monitor rodent infestations
Environment Agency	The EA use our Household Projections to forecast water use, and our Traveller Caravan Count in their work on flood risk management
Local Government	Their main uses are: Service planning; performance monitoring; benchmarking against surrounding and similar authorities; resource allocation. The household projections are used in the formulation of local housing plans
Professional Institutes, Academia (e.g. Building Research Establishment, Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors)	Modelling (e.g. of housing condition indicators); analysis and evaluation of housing supply/need; evaluating the impact of homelessness funding and intervention.
House Building, Construction and Timber industry	Evaluation of housing trends; Market Research (e.g. the market for double-glazing, DIY, etc)
Voluntary Sector (e.g. Shelter, Joseph Rowntree)	Promotion and analysis of housing and homelessness issues; campaigning and fundraising
Media	These statistics provide the raw material for articles in the Trade press (such as 'Inside Housing'; 'Construction News'; 'Building Magazine'; )
Citizens	The Traveller Movement have used our Count of Traveller Caravans within their research work

Main Channels for User Engagement

Public consultations - A formal consultation took place in August 2010 seeking views on plans for the English Housing Survey (EHS). A further consultation was launched in November 2012 covering the dissemination strategy for the EHS. In March 2010 a technical consultation took place on Household Projections looking at proposed changes to the methodology.

CLIP – CLIP-Housing considers proposals for changes to collections and publications. CLIP-Planning discusses changes to household projections. Minutes from these meetings are published on the CLIP website<sup>1</sup>. CLIP-Population (chaired by the Office for National Statistics) deliberates on the household projections data.

Housing Statistics Network<sup>2</sup> – DCLG is represented on the steering group of the Housing Statistics Network which is working to improve dialogue between users and producers of housing statistics.

Consultative Committee on Construction Industry Statistics (CCCIS) - DCLG is a member of the CCCIS which includes representatives from the industry, other government departments, academia, and the analytical community.

National House Building Council - DCLG arranges frequent bilateral meetings with the NHBC.

Homeless Link – DCLG colleagues regularly attend Homeless Link meetings to discuss current research and publications to see how the homelessness data is being used and to seek feedback on recent publications.

Contact points – The statistical releases provide contact details for any queries or comments.

Listening Events - Homelessness specialist advisors carry out free training, road shows, regional seminars and conferences inviting Local Authorities to feed back their views on the P1E and publications. Advisors and statisticians also make individual visits to Councils. Open seminars are also held when the household projections are published in order to go through any changes and to promote understanding of the data. We also hold workshops with Local Authorities to discuss options for changes to the housing data collections.

Contact lists – Most business areas in DCLG maintain e-mail contact lists for each publication and will send out details of recent publications or related consultations to this list. Anyone can request to be added to these lists.

The English Housing Survey (EHS) - this survey is managed in accordance with its own User Engagement Strategy which lists the main channels for user engagement (dedicated and comprehensive website, EHS Bulletins, Advisory Group, launch events and the UK Data Archive). The dedicated EHS Strategy document can be found at the following address:
