ICT Services for Education

The ICT Services for Education deal provides access to specialist ICT services, hardware and infrastructure for educational establishments and complements the Crown Commercial Service deal for software - Information Management and Learning Services. It was developed in collaboration with the Department for Education and the Education Funding Agency, replacing the former British Educational Communications and Technology Agency (BECTA) agreement.

With access to a diverse pool of suppliers ranging from small to large enterprises, the agreement provides a flexible and quick route for education establishments (including academies, free schools, colleges and universities) to meet their ICT requirements.

Through this agreement you can buy anything from a complete solution for a new school through to ongoing IT maintenance.

Products and services available

The delivery models available under the agreement include:

- supply and fit
- support and maintenance
- systems configuration and management
- partial or fully managed ICT service
- complete integrated service with other technologies/ partners
- supply and integration of solutions into both green field (new build) situations and legacy
- ICT environments requiring integration and repurposing of existing ICT

The ICT solutions available include, but are not limited to:

- hardware (servers and user computing devices)
- software (operating systems, office productivity, network, security etc.)
