

FFR Consultation

Leisure and Outdoor Furniture Association response

Terry,

LOFA fully supports the British Furniture Confederation response to the FFSR consultation.

It remains the view of the LOFA Technical Committee that the FFSR regulations should NOT apply to dedicated outdoor garden furniture that is not used indoors or in a conservatory. The current legislation do not distinguish between indoor, conservatory and outdoor furniture. (see question 6)

When the furniture is intended for conservatory use, or COULD be used as conservatory furniture then FFSR regulation should apply, but in the many cases where its dedicated OUTDOOR furniture only there should be a relevant exemption.

Clarification of the rules and requirements for our members products is sought at your earliest convenience.

Kind regards
