Evaluation Level 5: Evidence presented does not demonstrate that the product is more efficient or efficacious at improving infection prevention and control interventions to reduce healthcare associated infections than other available products currently in use.

- These products are a range of probiotic cleaners intended to replace traditional cleaning agents with claims of reducing levels of pathogens on surfaces.
- Further evidence is required to demonstrate the efficacy of using the product(s) to prevent the transmission of HCAs within an NHS healthcare setting.

Evaluation Disclaimer: The RRP does not formally review cost-effectiveness or implementation barriers during its evaluation of products; these factors may be considered in a separate process. It is the responsibility of the applicant to carry out any further required development, including trials, cost-effectiveness assessments or product implementation within the NHS. All statements comparing the efficiency or efficacy of products are in the context of products available for use to the NHS at the date of evaluation.
