Withdrawn

This publication is withdrawn.
This publication is no longer current.
Older People’s Day

People are living longer and we want to ensure that we adapt successfully to the fundamental long-term changes that this will bring to society. Numerous organisations and individuals are actively working together to make a difference and build on the successes of previous years.

Get Involved

This year, 2013, we want to utilise the positive aims for Older People’s Day to encourage activities and celebrations throughout the year; culminating in flagship events on 1 October. You can make an impact by organising an event or activity or just by taking part. Events vary from short half-day activities to month long festivals offering many different, and often ongoing opportunities. We know that there are hundreds of fantastic things happening around the UK and so many inspiring older people, and we want to capture the information to share it with everyone.

Find out more

Visit the Older People’s Day website – www.olderpeoplesday.co.uk

Free resources and branding are available to help you organise an Older People’s Day event or you can find events and activities to take part in local to you. The website also features:

- a news section
- regular updates
- post your news and stories
- an easy and quick way to promote your event by featuring your brochures, posters or links to your website

You can also follow Older People’s day on Facebook and Twitter @olderpeoplesday (#opduk)

For more information about Older People’s Day or to send your stories contact us through the www.olderpeoplesday.co.uk or email dwp.fulloflife@dwp.gsi.gov.uk