The Armed Forces Covenant

An Enduring Covenant Between

The People of the United Kingdom

Her Majesty's Government

– and –

All those who serve or have served in the Armed Forces of the Crown and their Families

The first duty of Government is the defence of the realm. Our Armed Forces fulfil that responsibility on behalf of the Government, sacrificing some civilian freedoms, facing danger and, sometimes, suffering serious injury or death as a result of their duty. Families also play a vital role in supporting the operational effectiveness of our Armed Forces. In return, the whole nation has a moral obligation to the members of the Naval Service, the Army and the Royal Air Force, together with their families. They deserve our respect and support, and fair treatment.

Those who serve in the Armed Forces, whether Regular or Reserve, those who have served in the past, and their families, should face no disadvantage compared to other citizens in the provision of public and commercial services. Special consideration is appropriate in some cases, especially for those who have given most such as the injured and the bereaved.

This obligation involves the whole of society: it includes voluntary and charitable bodies, private organisations, and the actions of individuals in supporting the Armed Forces. Recognising those who have performed military duty unites the country and demonstrates the value of their contribution. This has no greater expression than in upholding this Covenant.

Section 1: Principles of The Armed Forces Covenant

1.1 We, Teesside University, will endeavour in our business dealings to uphold the key principles of the Armed Forces Covenant, which are:

- no member of the Armed Forces Community should face disadvantage in the provision of public and commercial services compared to any other citizen
- in some circumstances special treatment may be appropriate especially for the injured or bereaved.

Section 2: Demonstrating our Commitment

2.1 Teesside University recognises the value serving personnel, reservists, veterans and military families bring to our business. We will seek to uphold the principles of the Armed Forces Covenant, by:

- promoting the fact that we are an armed forces-friendly organisation and publicising our Armed Forces Covenant commitments through our website and displaying the Armed Forces Covenant logo;
- seeking to support engagement in Higher Education by ensuring that admissions and recruitment policies and processes reflect the needs of the Armed Forces community;
- providing advice and guidance for those within the Armed Forces seeking to achieve Higher Educational qualifications to progress within the Armed Forces or to enhance their resettlement options;
- benchmarking military experience and qualifications against course entry requirements, offering fast-track and/or tailored programmes to members of the Armed Forces Community.
- striving to support the employment of Service spouses and partners by focussing recruiting effort on the Armed Forces community, such as advertising through 'service-friendly' recruitment agencies and service charities;

- endeavouring to offer a degree of flexibility in granting leave for Service spouses and partners before, during and after a partner's deployment, and taking consideration when special paid leave is appropriate for employees who are bereaved or whose loved ones are injured;
- seeking to support our employees who choose to be members of the Reserve forces, including by accommodating their training and deployment where possible;
- offering support to our local cadet units, either in our local community or in local schools, where possible;
- aiming to actively participate in Armed Forces Day and Reserves Day.

2.2 We will publicise these commitments through our literature and/or on our website, setting out how we will seek to honour them and inviting feedback from the Service community and stakeholders on how we are doing.
