Animal Disease Testing Service from APHA

Direct. Fast. Easy.

The Animal Disease Testing Service (ADTS) is the new innovative digital service for veterinary customers of APHA's surveillance and diagnostic service.

Based on extensive customer research it utilises the latest in easy-to-use on-line technology to offer streamlined paper-free sample submission, sample management and results delivery.

Sample tracking, processing updates and live results are all available with ADTS; including direct contact with the appropriate testing centre.

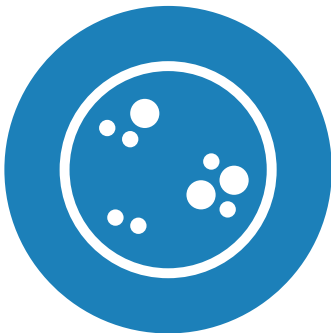

ADTS is fully mobile and can be used on a variety of PCs, Laptops, Tablets, Mobile Phones and other devices to provide real-time results; either in the field or in practice.

ADTS will help vets detect and control disease by speeding up the process of sending on-farm samples directly to APHA testing laboratories; enabling them to deliver a speedier, more efficient and more responsive service.

ADTS enables the sending of samples directly to the relevant testing laboratory, the tracking of the safe arrival of samples and the automatic printing of barcoded address labels and dispatch notes; resulting in faster results, reduced administration and improved sample security.

ADTS offers an easy to use interactive format including secure login with real-time submission reports and access to on-line prices, test details and turnaround times that enhances testing and record handling, and improves data management and protection.

ADTS provides expert based algorithms for test and sample selection, tracking of test progress, e-mail notification of results and remote field based access delivering faster results and improved clinical treatment and client management.

ADTS is supplied with free of charge pre-paid postage labels for submissions. This unique added feature enables cost savings on postage and the flexibility of out-of-hours dispatch directly to the testing laboratory for a faster service.
