Summary

About this guidance

This is statutory guidance from the Department for Education¹. This means that local authorities must have regard to it when carrying out their duties in developing their transport policy and publishing their transport policy statements for young people of sixth form age² and adults aged 19 and over (including those with an Education, Health and Care (EHC) plan) in education and training³.

We use the term ‘must’ when the local authority is required to do something in law. When setting out the department’s expectations we have highlighted areas where the local authority should also take reasonable account of the circumstances of learners.

Local authorities should take their own legal advice when preparing the policy statement and devising a local response to transport needs, to ensure that they are exercising their duties and powers in a manner which complies with the legislation and public law.

Expiry or review date

This guidance will be kept under review and updated versions will be published if necessary.

What legislation does this guidance refer to?

The guidance refers to legislation⁴ regarding the provision of transport to post-16 education and training for young people of sixth form age and legislation regarding the provision of transport to post-19 education and training for those aged 19 to 25 and for whom an EHC plan is maintained. Relevant legislation is set out in ‘Appendix A – statutory provisions’.

Who is this guidance for?

This guidance is for local authorities in England. It may also be of interest to:

- schools;
- parents;
- organisations involved in advising parents; and
- transport providers.

² Section 509AC(1) of the Education Act 1996 defines persons of sixth form age for the purposes of the sixth form transport duty.
³ Sections 508F and 508G of the Education Act 1996.
⁴ Education Act 1996.
Main changes from 2017 guidance

There have been no changes to existing policy in this guidance update but changes have been made to:

- Further clarify the sixth form age and adult duties, including clearer explanation of when each applies;
- Include good practice suggestions;
- provide additional annexes containing an example Local Authority Transport policy template, information on compliance checks conducted by the department and Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs).

Key points

1. We are striving for world class education, training and care for everyone – whatever their background. This will create a more productive economy, fit for the future and ensure that everyone has a chance to reach their potential to live a more fulfilled life. Local authority transport policies play an important role in supporting young people’s participation in education and training. By publishing their transport policies each year, local authorities enable young people (and their parents) to take reasonable account of the arrangements available when choosing between different options.

2. Local authorities must act reasonably, taking into account all relevant matters, such as the needs of their population, the local transport infrastructure and the resources available.

3. The planning of transport provision at a local level should take the following into account:

   - young people are now required to stay in education or training until their 18th birthday\(^5\). Local authorities are responsible for promoting the effective participation in education and training of young people who are subject to the duty to participate\(^6\); and
   - under the September Guarantee, every young person aged 16 or 17 should be offered a suitable place in education or training - further details are available at www.gov.uk/government/publications/september-guarantee-offers-of-education-or-training-for-16-to-17-year-olds.

\(^5\) Education and Skills Act 2008.

Local authority responsibility

4. The statutory responsibility for transport for 16-19 year olds (who have started a course before their 19th birthday) rests with local authorities. Local authorities have a duty to prepare and publish an annual transport policy statement specifying the arrangements for the provision of transport, or otherwise that the authority considers necessary, to make to facilitate the attendance of all persons of sixth form age receiving education or training\(^7\).

5. The sixth form age duty applies to young people of sixth form age and young people with EHC plans up to age 25 where they are continuing on a course started before their 19th birthday.

6. The overall intention of the sixth form age transport duty is to ensure that:

   - learners of sixth form age are able to access the education and training of their choice; and
   - if support for access is requested, this will be assessed and provided where necessary.

7. Additionally local authorities have a duty under sections 508F and 508G of the Education Act 1996, as inserted by section 57 of the Apprenticeships, Skills, Children and Learning Act 2009. Under section 508F, the local authority is required to make such arrangements for the provision of transport as they consider necessary in respect of:

   (a) adults (i.e. those who are aged 19 or over) for the purpose of facilitating their attendance at local authority maintained or assisted further or higher education institutions or institutions within the further education sector; and

   (b) relevant young adults with an EHC plan (which can only be maintained up until the age of 25) for the purpose of facilitating their attendance at institutions where they are receiving education or training outside the further and higher education sectors. For those young adults, the local authority’s duty only applies where the local authority has secured the provision of education or training at that institution and the provision of boarding accommodation in connection with that education or training.

8. The adult duty applies only to young people who are attending a course which they started after their 19th birthday, including those with EHC plans.

9. Where the local authority makes such arrangements, any transport provided must be free of charge. Where the local authority decides not to provide transport arrangements in a particular case, they still have discretion to pay all or part of the reasonable travelling expenses for the student.

\(^7\) Section 509AA of the Education Act 1996.
10. The local authority also has a duty under section 508G to prepare a transport policy statement setting out any transport or other arrangements that it proposes to make for that academic year in respect of adults aged under 25 with EHC plans.

11. The overall intention of the adult transport duty is to ensure that:

- Those with the most severe disabilities with no other means of transportation are able to undertake further education and training after their 19th birthday to help them move towards more independent living.

Sustainable transport

12. Section 508A of the Education Act places a general duty on local authorities to promote the use of sustainable travel and transport. The duty applies to young people of sixth form age who travel to receive education or training in a local authority’s area. The duty relates to journeys to and from institutions where education or training is received.

13. There are five main elements to the duty which local authorities must undertake:

- an assessment of the travel and transport needs of children, and young people within the authority’s area;
- an audit of the sustainable travel and transport infrastructure within the authority’s area that may be used when travelling to and from, or between schools/institutions;
- a strategy to develop the sustainable travel and transport infrastructure within the authority so that the travel and transport needs of young people are best catered for;
- the promotion of sustainable travel and transport modes on the journey to, from, and between schools and other institutions; and
- the publication of Sustainable Modes of Travel Strategy.

14. The Education Act 1996 defines sustainable modes of travel as those that the local authority considers may either improve the physical well-being of those who use them, the environmental well-being of all or part of the local authority’s area, or both.

Extent and coverage of the duties

15. The Education Act 1996 section 509AA duty applies to all local authorities in England in respect of arrangements for young people (over compulsory school age) aged 16-18 and those continuing learners up to age 25 with EHC plans who started their programme of learning before their 19th birthday.

16. The legislation recognises that a local response to transport arrangements is important in enabling young people’s participation in education and training and as such the flexibility of the extent of an individual policy lies with individual local authorities. A local approach allows local circumstances to be taken into account. The legislation therefore gives local authorities the discretion to determine what transport and financial support are necessary to facilitate young people’s attendance. The local authority must exercise its power to provide transport or financial support reasonably, taking into account all relevant matters.

17. The local authority must publish a transport policy statement on or before 31 May each year. The statement must include the details of the transport arrangements and the details of the financial support in respect of reasonable travelling expenses that the local authority considers it necessary to make to facilitate access to education or training for learners of sixth form age\(^8\) for the following academic year. These arrangements could include but are not limited to:

- The availability of a concessionary fares scheme
- A bus pass or cash equivalent of a bus pass
- A bus pass or cash equivalent plus a companion pass or cash equivalent
- Independent travel training
- A fixed mileage allowance
- Provision of actual transport

18. The section 509F and 508G duties apply to all local authorities in England in respect of arrangements for adults aged 19 and over, who started their programme of learning after their 19th birthday.

19. The legislation recognises that it is important that decisions on whether local authority arranged transport for this age group is necessary, sits at a local level and, as with the previous duty, the flexibility of the extent of an individual policy lies with individual local authorities. Where local authorities do decide that it is necessary for them to provide transport, this must be provided free of charge, however, the legislation also gives local authorities the flexibility to contribute to, fund or charge for other transport solutions where it wishes.

20. Local authorities must prepare a transport policy statement by the end of May each year setting out any transport or other arrangements that it proposes to make for that academic year in respect of adults aged under 25 with EHC plans under the 508F duty.

Transport policy statement audience and content

21. The transport policy statement is intended to inform young people, in years 11, 12 and 13, and their parents about what transport arrangements and support are available locally. The statement should be a single point of reference providing information about transport arrangements to all types of provision, including arrangements made by bodies other than the local authority, including local transport providers. The statement must set out what the local authority’s overall transport policy is in regard to young people and should include the rationale behind the policy. It is important that the local authority does not differentiate between providers or institutions in its arrangements.

\(^8\) See section 509AA(2), (3) and (7)(a) of the Education Act 1996.
The arrangements must be set out for learners of sixth form age who are receiving education or training at:

- a school;
- a further education institution;
- a local authority maintained or assisted institution providing higher or further education;
- a 16 to 19 Academy; or
- at any establishment (not falling within the above categories) at which the authority secures the provision of education or training under section 15ZA of the Education Act 1996.

22. Arrangements to support learners undertaking apprenticeships and traineeships should also be set out in the transport policy statement. These may include the costs of travelling to or from the place of learning or work placement. Employers and learning providers will want to take account of young people’s likely transport arrangements when planning off-the-job training, particularly outside normal working hours.

23. The transport policy statement must also specify the arrangements proposed to be made by the governing bodies of schools maintained by the local authority and further education institutions in the local authority’s area which may include support with transport costs or transport provision. The local authority should only include arrangements that are actually going to be made and not make assumptions about what arrangements it thinks schools and colleges should make. Governing bodies are under a duty to co-operate in giving the local authority any information and other support that is reasonably required by the authority to enable them to prepare their statement.

24. The transport policy statement should be clear and provide sufficient detail about the transport arrangements and support provided to inform young people in making their post-16 choices. Young people should be provided with information through the transport policy statement about who is eligible for transport support and how and when they should apply for support. Details of any concessionary fares, discounts, subsidies or travel cards should be included alongside the eligibility criteria for this support and how eligibility will be assessed. Clear signposting from the statement should point young people to sources of further information, for example local authority, college or transport provider websites or contact details.

25. Additionally the policy statement must include full details of how a young person or parent can appeal if they disagree with a local authority’s decision and further avenues of complaint open to them if they remain dissatisfied following completion of the local procedure. Further details about complaints and appeals can be found at para 38 onwards.

10 Section 509AA(5) of the Education Act 1996.
11 Section 509AA(2) of the Education Act 1996.
26. A template of a post 16 transport policy is included at Appendix B.

27. The DfE will undertake annual compliance checks on local authority statements in June each year, further details of these can be found at Appendix C.

Funding

28. Local authorities fund their responsibilities through the grants they receive from national government, which are not ring-fenced, and through generated income, such as council tax.

Assessment of what arrangements are needed

29. In assessing what transport arrangements or financial support may be required, the local authority has flexibility over the decisions it makes but must have regard to the following:

   a. The needs of those for whom it would not be reasonably practicable to access education or training provision if no arrangements were made\(^{12}\)

   Local authorities should satisfy themselves that they have made the transport arrangements or arrangements for financial support necessary to facilitate young people’s participation in education or training. In doing so, they should consider the needs of the most vulnerable or socially excluded. The needs of young people with special educational needs and disabilities should be specifically considered and the arrangements in place for each group must be documented in the transport policy statement (see section ‘Specific consideration of learners with special educational needs and disabilities.’)

   Local authorities should also consider the needs of:

   - those who are vulnerable to becoming not in education, employment or training (NEET) at the age of 16 or 17 or who have already become NEET. These young people should be offered a suitable course of education or training and provided with any transport support that is necessary to enable them to participate\(^{13}\);
   - young parents – Care to Learn (C2L) can help pay for childcare and travel costs for learners aged 19 and under at the start of their course\(^{14}\). Learning providers should be encouraged to support young people to apply for C2L – further details are available at www.gov.uk/care-to-learn; and \(^{12}\) Section 509AB(3)(a) of the Education Act 1996.

\(^{13}\) Local authorities are reminded that all 16 and 17 year olds (i.e. those completing compulsory education in the current year, or who completed in the previous year) are entitled to an offer of a place in post-16 learning under the September Guarantee.

\(^{14}\) The additional costs of taking a child to and from childcare may be claimed, within a set weekly limit. C2L does not support the costs of travel to the learning provider.
• those who live in particularly rural areas where the transport infrastructure can be more limited.

b. The need to ensure that young people have reasonable opportunities to choose between different establishments at which education and training is provided

Young people should have a reasonable opportunity to choose between the courses available to them at 16 and be supported to access their choices. Local authority transport policies must be supportive of reasonable choice. In defining what is ‘reasonable’, local authorities will want to take into account any complaints received in previous years in respect of local transport policy statements.

We would expect reasonable choice to include enabling young people to choose courses outside their home local authority boundaries if it makes sense for them to do so. Local authorities will want to be mindful of neighbouring transport policies and consider how their own transport policy can support movement across boundaries. The transport policy statement should set out the local authority’s policy for travel to neighbouring local authority areas.

Reasonable choice should also include enabling young people to choose an establishment of education or training that is not the closest to where they live if it makes sense to do so.

When developing their transport policy, local authorities are required to consider their responsibilities to secure suitable education and training to meet the reasonable needs of young people of sixth form age and those aged 19 or over [and for whom an EHC plan is maintained]. Transport arrangements will need to support commissioning arrangements to ensure that young people have access to the education and training provision that has been commissioned.

c. The distance from the learner’s home to establishments of education and training

Local authorities must consider distance in determining eligibility for support with transport. Young people in rural areas should not be worse off financially because they may need to travel further to access education and training provision than their peers in urban areas.

The statutory walking distance of 3 miles to school (along the nearest available route) for those of compulsory school aged 8 and over is set out under section 444(5) of the Education Act 1996. This can be taken into account by local authorities in defining the distance a young person might reasonably be expected to walk to access education or training.

15 Section 509AB(3)(b) of the Education Act 1996.
16 Section 15ZA(1) of the Education Act 1996.
17 Section 509AB(3)(c) of the Education Act 1996.
In determining whether transport arrangements are necessary, local authorities should take into account other factors, such as the impact a learning difficulty or disability may have on a young person’s ability to walk this distance, and the nature (including safety) of the route, or alternative routes, which a young person could be expected to take.

d. The journey time to access different establishments\(^\text{18}\)

Journey time also needs to be taken into account. Young people should be able to reach their education or training without incurring such stress, strain, or difficulty that they would be prevented from benefiting from the education provided.

For example, a young person should not have to make several changes of public service bus to get to their education or training, if that would result in an unreasonably long journey time. In this context, local authorities should consider which mode of transport will best meet the need to ensure a reasonable journey time.

Good practice suggests that a child of secondary school age may reasonably be expected to travel up to 75 minutes each way to access learning. Local authorities should apply similar expectations to young people of sixth form age.

e. The cost of transport to the establishments in question\(^\text{19}\)

Local authorities are expected to target any support on those young people – and their families – who need it most, particularly those with a low income. The transport policy statement should set out clearly the criteria used to establish a learner’s eligibility to receive transport/financial support.

Local authorities may ask learners and their parents for a contribution to transport costs and in exercising their discretion they should:

- ensure that any contribution is affordable for learners and their parents;
- ensure that there are arrangements in place to support those families on low income; and
- take into account the likely duration of learning and ensure that transport policies do not adversely impact particular groups. For example, as young people with special educational needs and disabilities are more likely to remain in education or training longer than their peers, any contribution sought from these families would need to allow for the fact they may have to contribute for longer.

Local authorities can take receipt of 16-19 bursary funding into account in assessing an individual’s need for financial help with transport.

To aid transparency, it is good practice for local authorities to set out the average cost per young person of post-16 transport in their area before any subsidies are deducted. Clearly setting out average costs will enable learners and parents to understand the extent of the local authority subsidy.

f. Alternative means of facilitating attendance at establishments[^20]

Local authorities must consider alternative, safe means of facilitating attendance at establishments of education or training. Suitable and appropriate alternatives may include transport solutions, for example:

- cycle schemes – which can support independence and also offer a sustainable form of transport provision.
- moped schemes – which can support individual learners (over the age of 17) to travel to education and training from rural areas where public transport may not be available.
- independent travel training to enable young people (often with special educational needs and disabilities) to travel on public transport independently. See section ‘Specific consideration of learners with special educational needs and disabilities’ for further details.

g. Preferences based on religion

Local authorities must have regard to any preference the individual may have for a particular institution based on their religion or belief.

For the purposes of section 509AD[^21] “religion” means any religion and “belief” means any religious or belief[^22]. References to “religion” or “belief” include references to a lack of religion or belief.

h. Non-transport solutions to facilitate learner access

Local authorities should consider whether non-transport solutions could facilitate learner access to education or training: for example peripatetic teachers, mobile provision and e-learning options.

Specific consideration of learners with special educational needs and disabilities

30. The 16–19 transport duty applies to young people of sixth form age with special educational needs and disabilities aged up to 19 (and beyond the age of 19 if they are continuing on a particular course started before the age of 19).

[^20]: Section 509AB(3)(d) of the Education Act 1996.
[^21]: Section 509AD(3) of the Education Act 1996 (as inserted by section 84 of the Education and Inspections Act 2006).
[^22]: The Department’s position is that Belief includes philosophical belief.
31. Local authorities also have a duty under the Education and Skills Act 2008 to encourage, enable and assist the participation of young people with special educational needs and disabilities up to the age of 25 in education and training. It therefore follows that local authorities should include information on what transport arrangements are available and whether they are adequate to enable these young people to participate.

32. Section 509AB(1) of the Education Act 1996 requires local authorities to set out the extent to which the arrangements they have put in place pursuant to the transport statement prepared under section 509AA facilitate the attendance of young people with special educational needs and disabilities.

33. The transport needs of young people with special educational needs and disabilities must be reassessed when a young person moves from compulsory schooling to post-16 education, even if the young person is remaining at the same educational setting. Arrangements cannot be limited to those young people who had been assessed as having particular transport needs prior to the age of 16. The Children and Families Act 2014 places a duty on local authorities to publish a ‘local offer’ setting out their services for children and young people with special educational needs and disabilities, and this must include information on the arrangements for travel to and from post-16 institutions.

34. Young people with an EHC plan will have an institution named in their plan at Section I. There is no entitlement to transport to and from this named provider and transport should only be named in an EHC plan in exceptional circumstances. Local authorities should ensure during EHC plan discussions that parents are made aware that transport support will be considered in accordance with the local authority’s own post-16 transport policy.

35. A learner with special educational needs and disabilities may take longer to complete a programme of learning or training, and therefore it will be good practice for the local authority to extend the arrangements for the provision of transport until a learner has completed their programme even if that is after they have reached the age of 19.

36. If the local authority and/or providers operate an independent travel training scheme it is good practice to include such initiatives in the transport policy statement.

37. Local authorities should be aware of the adult transport duty in carrying out their responsibilities for this group, and it is would be good practice not to charge a contribution for transport for a young person assessed under the sixth form age duty if it likely that they will be eligible for free transport under the adult transport duty.

Local complaints process

38. Local authorities should publish as part of the transport policy statement the process which will be followed should a complaint or an appeal against a local authority decision be made on behalf of, or by, a young person. Complaints and appeals must first be taken up with the local authority\(^{23}\). Good practice suggests using a similar 2 stage

\(^{23}\) Section 509AE(4) of the Education Act 1996.
Complaints process as that used for pre 16 appeals and once an application has exhausted the complaints process advising that no further applications can be made within the academic year unless there has been a material change in circumstances or further supporting evidence has been obtained. If these do not result in a satisfactory outcome, it may be appropriate for young people or their families to consider contacting the Local Government Ombudsmen (LGO) or complaining to the Secretary of State for Education. The LGO is an independent organisation that looks into complaints against councils. This is a free service and information can be found online at www.lgo.org.uk.

Complaints to the Secretary of State for Education

39. To complain to the Secretary of State, young people or their families should use the contact form on gov.uk - www.education.gov.uk/help/contactus. Any complaint should outline the case, set out the decision taken by the local authority and include any other relevant documentation, for example any advice or decisions from the LGO where appropriate.

40. Under section 509AA (9), of the Education Act 1996, the Secretary of State may direct a local authority to make transport arrangements to facilitate the attendance of those of sixth form age receiving education or training, or provide reasonable travelling expenses. This only applies where particular transport arrangements or financial support have not been included in, or are not covered by, the local authority’s transport policy statement. The Secretary of State can make a direction where he/she considers it expedient to do so, having regard to the particular circumstances of the case.

41. Under section 508I of the Education Act 1996, the Secretary of State may choose to use his/her powers under sections 496 and 497 of the same Act to direct a local authority where they have exercised (or are proposing to exercise) their functions unreasonably or where they have failed to discharge a duty in relation to the adult transport duty. If the Secretary of State is satisfied that an authority has acted (or is proposing to act) unreasonably, he/she may give such directions as to the exercise of the power or performance of the duty as appear to him/her to be appropriate.

42. The Secretary of State may exercise his/her section 496 and 497 powers following a complaint, or if the matter is brought to the department’s attention by other means. When a complaint is submitted to the department, officials will consider the evidence received and where appropriate, seek further information. If the department finds that it is not appropriate for the Secretary of State to intervene by making a direction, they will communicate this decision to the correspondent and, where appropriate, the local authority.

43. If the complainant is dissatisfied with the way in which the department has handled the case they can log a service complaint. Further information on the department’s complaints process can be found on gov.uk at www.gov.uk/government/organisations/department-for-education/about/complaints-procedure. A service complaint will prompt consideration of how the case has been managed but there will not be a review of the substance of the decision made. The substance of the decision would only be considered if the complainant provided additional information relevant to the decision not to intervene.

44. If the complainant remains dissatisfied, they can ask their local MP to refer their case to the Parliamentary and Health Service Ombudsman (PHSO). If the PHSO accept a complaint for further consideration they could normally look at the department’s handling of the case. The PHSO’s role is not to reverse decision-making, but where it upholds a complaint, it can make recommendations to the department to put things right. Information on the PHSO can be found online at: www.ombudsman.org.uk.

Consulting key partners on the transport policy statement

45. The transport policy statement is the responsibility of the local authority. However, the local authority should try to achieve a consensus and work with other partners and stakeholders to develop a collaborative approach to transport solutions and the production of the transport policy statement. It is good practice for the different departments within each local authority to take a joined up approach. For example, the transport department might need to speak to the social services department if the social services department also procures transport.

46. The local authority must consult with the following stakeholders in developing the statement to ensure that it provides a full picture of the available transport and support:

- any other local authorities it considers appropriate (including neighbouring local authorities that are in Wales or Scotland)\(^{24}\). There will be occasions where learners will travel across local authority boundaries and this should not be a barrier for the learner. There are also clear benefits for local authorities to collaborate where similar challenges exist or to share good practice;
- the governing bodies of schools and further education institutions\(^{25}\). It is important to note that the power of schools and colleges to make arrangements is in addition to, and not instead of, the power of the local authority to make arrangements;
- the appropriate transport administration body for your area\(^{26}\);
- Transport for London, if the local authority is a London borough council or the Common Council of the City of London\(^{27}\); and
- persons who will be of sixth form age at the time of the transport policy statement and their parents\(^{28}\). Local authorities should set out in their transport policy statements how and when they propose to consult young people and their parents to inform the development of their transport policy statements in the following year.

Introduction

Local authorities do not have to provide free or subsidised post 16 travel support but do have a duty to prepare and publish an annual transport policy statement specifying the arrangements for the provision of transport or other support that the authority considers it necessary to make to facilitate the attendance of all persons of sixth form age receiving education or training.

All young people carrying on their education post 16 must reapply for travel support.

‘Sixth form age’ refers to those young people who are over 16 years of age but under 19 or continuing learners who started their programme of learning before their 19th birthday (years 12,13,14).

Local authorities also have a duty to encourage, enable and assist young people with learning difficulties / disabilities to participate in education and training, up to the age of 25.

This policy uses the term ‘Post 16’ to include both learners of sixth form age and those with learning difficulties / disabilities up to the age of 25.

This policy document specifies the support that xxxxx Council (the council) considers necessary to facilitate the attendance of Post 16 learners receiving education or training.

Education or training refers to learning or training at a school, further education institution, a council maintained or assisted institution providing higher or further education, an establishment funded directly by the Education Skills Funding Agency, learning providers delivering accredited programmes of learning which lead to positive outcomes and are funded by the council, for example, colleges, charities and private learning providers.

Aims and Objectives

The council has the following aims and objectives when assessing transport / travel support:

2. Discretionary bursaries which institutions award to meet individual needs, for example, help with the cost of transport, meals, books and equipment

To be eligible for the discretionary bursary young people must:

Appendix D – Frequently Asked Questions

Q: Why isn’t post 16 transport free for everyone, in the same way as it is for school age pupils?

A: We expect local authorities to make reasonable decisions about what support should be available based on the needs of their population, local transport infrastructure and the resources they have available. It is, however, recognised that the cost of transport can be an issue for some young people and to help with this there is further support available. Information about what support is available locally is available from the local authority in their post-16 transport policy statement. The statement can be accessed on the LA website or through the postcode search at gov.uk

The Bursary Fund for 16-19 year olds has the flexibility to help meet transport costs for those young people who need this support most. You can find out more about the 16-19 Bursary Fund here.

In addition, most transport companies also give some kind of discount for young people such as discounted fares or subsidised travel passes.

Some education and training providers also provide subsidised or free transport for example college buses, and travel subsidies from private training providers.

Q: What support is available for young people with special educational needs?

A: The post-16 transport duty also applies to young people with special educational needs aged up to age 25 (who have an EHC plan and started a course before their 19th birthday). Local Authorities’ post-16 transport policy statements must include specific arrangements for these young people to ensure they have the necessary support. The transport needs of young people with special educational needs should also be reassessed by their local authority when a young person moves from compulsory schooling to post-16 education so that the appropriate support is put in place in accordance with the LA’s post-16 transport policy.

Q: How do the duties apply for people with Special Educational Needs and Disabilities (SEND) as they turn age 19?

A: The duty a young person is assessed under is dependent on when they started their current course. If a young person with SEND started the course before their 19th birthday then they are assessed under the 16-18 duty. If they have started a new course after their 19th birthday then they are assessed under the adult duty.

Young people will qualify for free transport under the adult duty where the local authority assesses that in order to attend education or training they require transport arranged by the local authority, such as a specialised vehicle or minibus. If the young person’s requirements are a personal travel budget, mileage allowance or public transport pass then this does not need to be provided free by the local authority as they have not put the travel arrangements in place. However, in these circumstances the local authority has discretion to pay some or all of the travel expenses.

Young people can also receive free transport if they are attending institutions outside of the HE and FE sector and started after their 19th birthday in residential provision if the provision, boarding accommodation and transport were all arranged by the local authority. Again, in these circumstances the local authority has discretion to pay some or all of the travel expenses.

Q: What support is available to young people who live in rural areas to get to college or another type of education provider?

A: It is the responsibility of local authorities to put in place transport arrangements to help young people aged 16 to 18 to access education or training, using funds they have available locally.

The transport provided by local authorities varies in accordance with local needs, for example it sometimes involves giving 16-18 year olds access to school transport or to bus travel for payment of a flat fee.

Most young people in rural areas have access to a discount or concession on local bus or train travel, either from their local authority or local transport providers. The government also supports local bus travel, including in rural areas, through the Bus Service Operators Grant.

Guidance makes it clear that local authorities need to look at the transport needs of those who live in particularly rural areas where the transport infrastructure can be limited.
