Clergy Newsletter

Introduction

Hello and welcome to the 8th edition of the Clergy Newsletter.

In this issue you will find information on the forthcoming changes resulting from the Registration of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Civil Partnership (Fees) (Amendment) and Multilingual Standard Forms Regulations 2018.

There are also some reminders on best practice in relation to the quarterly return process and the security of registration stock and how it aligns with our wider public protection and counterfraud agenda..

We hope you find this information useful.

General Register Office

Immigration Act 2016

Members of the clergy will be aware that in November 2017 the Registrar General for England and Wales (RG) introduced some new fees under Schedule 15 of the Immigration Act 2016.

- At the time we explained that this was the first phase of new fees. The second phase will commence on 16 February when the fees charged by the General Register Office for certificate services will change.
- Certificate fees have remained unchanged since 2010. The new fees, as agreed by Parliament, will introduce charges to reflect the cost of the service provided by GRO. This includes accounting for the additional work required to process an application that is not made online, the cost of searching for an index reference number and the work involved in the processing an application where we are unable to produce a certificate. Certificates issued by local registration officials have also been revised and remove the current three-tier fee currently in place. Certificate fees will be £11 for all certificates issued as a standard service and a new priority service for a fee of £35.
- Additionally the current two tier fee system for the clergy will be replaced with a single (standard) fee for marriage certificates of £11.00, regardless of when the application is made.
- Also from 16 February, following a successful pilot, copies of register entries for historical birth and death records in England and Wales will be made available in Portable Document Format (PDF) as part of our regular services.
- The fees follow “Managing Public Money” principles and have been approved by Her Majesty’s Treasury.

Details of the changes/new fees for GRO services are listed overleaf.

In October 2017 we included an article with some hints and tips on how to complete your quarterly returns. We would like to thank you for your continued assistance in reducing the number of quarterly copies received requiring clarification or further information. As general reminders:

- Illegible information – please note in pencil any information, in particular signatures, that are not clear. This will enable a complete record to be captured on the Registration on-line system (RON) and avoid the need for contact with you.
- Omitted information – if any information is not available, for example, father's occupation please put a horizontal line in the appropriate box. Again this will prevent the need for further contact.
- Certification - please check that all quarterly copies are certified, un-certified copies have to be sent back to the Register Office.
- Multiples - ensure only marriages for the same quarter are on the quarterly copy please. GRO administration and filing is organised by quarters.

MULTI-LINGUAL STANDARD FORMS

A new EU regulation will also be coming into force on 16 February to promote the free movement of citizens by simplifying the requirements for presenting certain public documents in EU countries. It introduces the Multilingual Standard Form (MSF) which will translate the fields from a certificate issued in England and Wales into the official language of the EU country that is required by the customer. The MSF benefits the citizen by providing a cheaper alternative to official translations and will be issued on behalf of the Registrar General by the General Register Office.

Why are we telling you this?

Some countries will only accept an MSF where the corresponding certificate has been issued recently. It is therefore possible you may receive a request for a marriage certificate so the customer may then apply for an MSF. In these circumstances you may wish to inform the customer that a certificate will be issued by the General Register Office at the same time as the MSF. The customer should be directed to the General Register Office to avoid them having to pay for the certificate twice.

Facts and Figures

All England and Wales marriages are entered onto our booking in system by district, church or building and entry number.

The details from the quarterly copy are manually input on the RON system and when a full quarter has been actioned, all quarterly copies are sent to a secure storage facility.

Since the introduction of the RON system in 2011, over 400,000 marriages have been captured by the Keying Team. This enables customers to apply directly to GRO for a copy of their marriage certificate (from 2011 onwards). Information is also extracted from the RON system for the Office for National Statistics (ONS) who then produce annual marriage statistics for publication. BEST PRACTICE

Over recent years there has been an increase in the number of burglaries at religious buildings and in many cases marriage certificate stock has been specifically targeted. Stolen blank certificates are often used to facilitate criminal activity and the creation of false identities leading to serious crimes and fraud.

In following the best practice outlined below you can contribute to public protection in helping ensure certificate stock is kept safe to prevent its misuse

- Storage – Registers and stock must be kept in a fire resistant safe (ideally with internal dimensions of no less than 310mm or 465mm) and must be kept within the registered building, or in another building approved by the Registrar General. Keys to safes should be held securely at all times to prevent any unauthorised access to registration data or blank certificates. It is recommended that a record should be kept of anyone who holds any spare sets of keys which allow access to registers and stock and these should be signed for when transferring responsibility to a new recipient.
- Assurance – It is good practice to undertake an annual check of certificate stock held to provide a level of assurance that nothing is missing and to likewise check on the physical condition of registers held. Checks on certificate stock must include checking the serial numbers of any part used and full books. Additionally it is good practice to retain a record of certificate stock that has been issued to you by GRO and note when certificate books have been used.
- Reporting lost/stolen stock – Where you find stock missing or stolen the loss must be reported immediately to GRO on telephone number 0300 123 1837 (select Option 1). You should also inform your Local Superintendent Registrar. You may also be advised to contact the police in relation to the incident.

And Finally

The Government Secure Intranet or 'gsi' domain was created in 1996 to allow government agencies to communicate in a secure and reliable way. However, advances in technology have meant that the inclusion of 'gsi' is no longer necessary and in March 2019 the domain will be withdrawn and all government agencies need to have removed the '.gsi' from their email addresses before this date. Members of the clergy are advised that the current GRO email address is therefore going to change. This means that '@gro.gsi.gov.uk' will change to '@gro.gov.uk'. There will however be dual running of both email addresses until at least 31st March 2019. Members of the Clergy should continue to use the publicised email addresses. GRO are currently updating the guidebook for the clergy and related documentation to ensure that the new email address will be shown by 31 March. Members of the clergy may wish to make a note of the commencement date of the new email address in the paragraph 1.8 and Appendix A of the guidebook.
