Summary of consultation details

Scope of the consultation

Topic of this consultation:	This consultation is on the draft regulations that set out the procedures for revoking or making changes to a development consent order for nationally significant infrastructure that has been granted by the Infrastructure Planning Commission (IPC) or the Secretary of State. Although the present Government has announced that the IPC will be abolished, these regulations are still needed to enable such a development consent order to be changed or revoked.
Scope of this consultation:	This consultation is to ensure that the legislation appropriately reflects what is needed to implement the relevant parts of the Planning Act 2008. Amendments to these documents will be considered as a result of the consultation responses.
Geographical scope:	The proposals in this document would, if taken forward, apply to England, Wales and Scotland in accordance with the scope of the Planning Act 2008.
Impact Assessment:	A consultation stage impact assessment is being published alongside this consultation document.

Basic information

To:	This consultation is aimed at any person or organisation that has an interest in an application for nationally significant infrastructure that will be considered by the Infrastructure Planning Commission. It will include infrastructure promoters, infrastructure regulators, statutory consultees, local authorities, business communities, civic and environmental organisations, members of the public.
Body/bodies responsible for the consultation:	Department for Communities and Local Government (Planning – Major Infrastructure Division).
Duration:	Consultation published on 1 November 2010 and ends on 24 December 2010.
Enquiries:	Paul Lancaster Tel: 0303 444 1597 Email: MIP.changesandrevocations@communities.gsi.gov.uk
How to respond:	Responses can be submitted by email to: MIP.changesandrevocations@communities.gsi.gov.uk Alternatively, hard copy responses should be sent to:

	Paul Lancaster Planning - Major Infrastructure Division Department for Communities and Local Government Zone 1/J6 Eland House Bressenden Place London SW1E 5DU
Additional ways to become involved:	The department periodically holds events on changes to the planning regime, as well as giving presentations and talks at relevant conferences and meetings.
After the consultation:	A summary of responses to the consultation will be published on the Department's website within three months of the closing date of the consultation, i.e. 23 March 2011. Information on the department's consultation is available from: www.communities.gov.uk/corporate/publications/consultations
Compliance with the Code of Practice on Consultation:	This consultation will be carried out for eight weeks because many of the proposals, and underlying principles, have been consulted on previously as part of consultations on the application and examination procedures relating to an application for a development consent order.

Background

Getting to this stage:	There was a public consultation on the Planning white paper between May and August 2007. The Planning Bill was introduced to Parliament in November 2007, and received Royal Assent in November 2008. Previous consultation documents have sought opinions on a range of topics relating to statutory consultees for national policy statements, and the application and examination procedures relating to an application for a development consent order. This is the fourth in the series, and which sets out procedures which are proposed for enabling a development consent order to be changed or revoked.
Previous engagement:	There has been significant engagement and a number of publications on the earlier regulations on which these procedures are based, namely those covering pre-application procedure; applications; Environmental impact assessments; examinations and decision making.

Chapter 1

About the consultation

- 1.1 The Planning Act 2008 ('the Planning Act' or 'the Act') made provision for a new independent body, the Infrastructure Planning Commission (IPC), to take over responsibility for considering and deciding on major infrastructure applications, and for the Government to produce national policy statements which will set out the national need for infrastructure and set the policy framework for IPC decisions.
- 1.2 Secondary legislation is needed to provide the procedures for making changes to, or revocation of, a development consent order for nationally significant infrastructure projects granted by the IPC or the Secretary of State. This consultation is on the draft regulations that are intended to fulfil this requirement.
- 1.3 The IPC was set up under the previous Government. The present Government has already announced that it will abolish the unelected IPC and replace it with an efficient and democratically accountable system that provides a fast-track process for major infrastructure projects. The Government intends to establish a major infrastructure planning unit, but in the interim the IPC will continue to consider applications for nationally significant infrastructure projects, as defined in the Act.

How to respond

- 1.4 The Government welcomes your views on the proposals set out in this consultation paper. Consultation responses should be submitted by email to:

The consultation criteria

- 1.5 The Government has adopted a code of practice on consultations. Though they have no legal force, and cannot prevail over statutory or other mandatory external requirements (e.g. under European Community Law), the criteria in the Code of Practice on Consultation should otherwise generally be regarded as binding on UK departments and their agencies, unless Ministers conclude that exceptional circumstances require a departure.
- 1.6 The criteria below apply to all UK national public consultations on the basis of a document in electronic or printed form:
- Formal consultation should take place at a stage when there is scope to influence the policy outcome.
 - Consultations should normally last for at least 12 weeks with consideration given to longer timescales where feasible and sensible, however this consultation will last for 8 weeks because the principals on which we are consulting have been consulted on previously in the context of applications to the IPC.
 - Consultation documents should be clear about the consultation process, what is being proposed, the scope to influence and the expected costs and benefits of the proposals.
 - Consultation exercises should be designed to be accessible to, and clearly targeted at, those people the exercise is intended to reach.
 - Keeping the burden of consultation to a minimum is essential if consultations are to be effective and if consultees' buy-in to the process is to be obtained.
 - Consultation responses should be analysed carefully and clear feedback should be provided to participants following the consultation.
 - Officials running consultations should seek guidance in how to run an effective consultation exercise and share what they have learned from the experience.
- 1.7 Representative groups are asked to give a summary of the people and organisations they represent and, where relevant, who else they have consulted in reaching their conclusions when they respond.

Will my comments be made public?

- 1.8 Information provided in response to this consultation, including personal information, may be published or disclosed in accordance with the access to information regimes (these are primarily the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (FOIA), the Data Protection Act 1998 (DPA) and the Environmental Information Regulations 2004).

- 1.9 If you want the information that you provide to be treated as confidential, please be aware that, under the FOIA, there is a statutory Code of Practice with which public authorities must comply and which deals, amongst other things, with obligations of confidence. In view of this it would be helpful if you could explain to us why you regard the information you have provided as confidential. If we receive a request for disclosure of the information we will take full account of your explanation, but we cannot give an assurance that confidentiality can be maintained in all circumstances. An automatic confidentiality disclaimer generated by your IT system will not, of itself, be regarded as binding on the department.
- 1.10 The Department for Communities and Local Government will process your personal data in accordance with DPA and in the majority of circumstances this will mean that your personal data will not be disclosed to third parties.
- 1.11 Individual responses will not be acknowledged unless specifically requested.
- 1.12 Are you satisfied that this consultation has followed these criteria? If not, or you have any other observations about ways of improving the consultation process please contact:

Chapter 2

Context of the consultation

- 2.1 The previous Government set out detailed proposals for the reform of the planning system for nationally significant infrastructure projects in the Planning white paper, Planning for a Sustainable Future, which was published on 15 May 2007. The white paper was subject to public consultation between May and August 2007.
- 2.2 Following this consultation, the previous Government introduced a Bill to create a new system for dealing with development consent for nationally significant infrastructure projects. The Planning Bill was introduced to Parliament on 27 November 2007, and received Royal Assent on 26 November 2008 as the Planning Act 2008¹.
- 2.3 This Act made provision for:
 - A new independent body, the Infrastructure Planning Commission (IPC), to take over responsibility for considering and deciding such applications. Decisions will be based primarily on national policy statements.
 - National policy statements produced by Government for nationally significant infrastructure. These will integrate environmental, social and economic objectives, including climate change commitments, for the delivery of sustainable development. They will set out the national need for infrastructure development.
 - A new duty on promoters to ensure that proposals are properly prepared and consulted on before they submit an application for nationally significant infrastructure projects.
- 2.4 Many of the detailed procedures have already been implemented by regulations and rules. A list of these procedures is at Annex 1.
- 2.5 The draft regulations that are being consulted on here are those at Annex 2.

Aim of the consultation

- 3.1 This consultation aims to give you the opportunity to comment on the draft of the regulations that will prescribe the procedures for dealing with changes to, and revocation of, a development consent order.
- 3.2 Although the Government has announced that the IPC will be abolished and a major infrastructure planning unit established to take its place, it is the Government's intention to retain a streamlined process for dealing with major infrastructure projects.
- 3.3 For as long as the processes already established by secondary legislation continue to be used there will be a need for a further process by which necessary changes to, and revocation of, a development consent order are dealt with. The Planning Act says that an application for a change to a development consent order must be made in the prescribed manner. The draft regulations on which we are now consulting will prescribe what that actually means in practice. The draft of the regulations is at Annex 2.

Chapter 4

Principles explained

CORRECTIONS

4.1 The regulations on changes and revocations will not cover corrections to a development consent order. Corrections are covered in Schedule 4 to the Act. However they are briefly mentioned here because we think it is important to highlight at the outset that there is a difference in the treatment of minor errors which are treated as a correction to a development consent order and a change or revocation. By putting changes and revocation in this context it helps to explain what may be covered by regulations on changes and revocations.

4.2 For information, corrections are covered in Schedule 4 to the Act as follows:

Schedule 4 paragraph (1)(3)

A correctable error is an error or omission which -

- (a) is in a part of the decision document which records the decision, and
- (b) is not part of the statement of reasons for the decision.

Schedule 4 paragraph (1)(2)

The decision document is -

- (a) in the case of an order granting development consent, the order;
- (b) in the case of a refusal of development consent, the document recording the refusal.

4.3 A correction may only be made if certain conditions are met, these are not relevant in respect of defining a correction but are broadly that the appropriate authority (i.e. the authority that granted the development consent order - either the IPC or the Secretary of State) receives a request for the correction in writing, before the specified time limits; or that the appropriate authority notifies the applicant in writing of the error and of its intention to correct the error. The appropriate authority must also inform the relevant local planning authorities. The appropriate authority would then issue a correction notice.

4.4 Neither Schedule 4 to, nor section 119 of, the Act defines a correction, nor does it provide powers to define a correction. It is, however, implicit that corrections are only those changes that restore the consent order or the refusal to what was intended to be issued but which suffered from what was effectively human error in its compilation.

CHANGES AND REVOCATIONS

4.5 Changes and revocations are covered in Schedule 6 to the Act. The terms used are 'non-material changes' and 'material changes'. A revocation would be a material change.

- 4.6 The Act does not define non-material or material, nor does it provide any power to define these terms by regulation. Whether a change is to be treated as material or non-material is left to the discretion of the authority to which the application is submitted. By implication a material change will be a change that is more significant than a non-material change. However, there is no clear dividing line between the two.
- 4.7 For non-material changes the Act provides powers to prescribe an application process; and the publicity, consultation and notification duties of the authority that receives the application. There are no powers to prescribe how the appropriate authority should examine an application for a non-material change or about how they make their decision.
- 4.8 For material changes the Act provides powers to prescribe the pre-application requirements; the application process, including what information must be provided; an examination process; a decision making process; and a notification process.
- 4.9 These procedures will be prescribed by regulation, but because of the lack of clarity about the type of application that is likely to come forward under each category it will be necessary to frame the regulations widely.

PUBLIC BODIES

- 4.10 On 24 May 2010 the Government announced a review of public bodies. The list of statutory consultees included in the draft regulations will be updated before the regulations come into force to reflect any changes made as part of that review.

HABITATS

- 4.11 We propose to amend regulation 81 of the Conservation of Habitats and Species Regulations 2010 (SI 2010/490) to make it clear that the assessment procedures contained in article 6(3) of the Habitats Directive would also apply to any changes made to a development consent order, as well as to the original grant of the development consent order.

MARINE ENVIRONMENT

- 4.12 A development consent order for a project that affects the marine environment may include deemed licences under Part 2 of the Food and Environment Protection Act 1985, consents under Part 2 of the Coast Protection Act 1949 and, from April 2011, Marine Licences under Part 4 of the Marine and Coastal Access Act 2009. Changes to such deemed marine consents will be dealt with by the Marine Management Organisation and the devolved administrations (as appropriate) and are outside the scope of this consultation.

Chapter 5

Regulations on non-material changes

POWERS IN THE ACT AND THE POLICY INTENTION

5.1 Working within the powers contained in the Act it is intended to prescribe a simplified scheme for non-material changes. This will be significantly quicker than the fuller scheme that is necessary for material changes because the policy intention is that non-material changes will be insignificant or unsubstantial changes with negligible impact.

APPLICANTS

5.2 For non-material changes it is intended to provide for a simplified scheme. This will require an application to the appropriate authority, i.e. the authority that granted the original development consent order (either the IPC or the Secretary of State).

5.3 It is intended that the application will be made in writing and will contain:

- details of the applicant
- agents name, if any
- the reference number of the development consent order that has been granted
- details of the change requested
- any documents and plans necessary to support the application
- confirmation that the applicant is either: the person who applied for the development consent order that they wish to change, or their successor in title; or a person with an interest in the land to which the order relates; or any other person for whose benefit the development consent order has effect
- if so requested, paper copies of the application and supporting papers

5.4 The application must be accompanied by the application fee, which will be a fixed fee of £6,534. A breakdown of how this fee has been calculated is at Annex 3.

5.5 This is all that it is intended to be required of the applicant for a non-material change.

APPROPRIATE AUTHORITY

5.6 The Act makes the authority that receives the application responsible for consultation and publicity and contains powers to prescribe requirements in respect of this. There are also powers to prescribe those persons whom the authority must notify about the decision it makes.

5.7 It is intended to prescribe that the authority must publicise the application in the same way as the applicant would have publicised its original application. This should ensure, as far as is possible, that those persons who saw the publicity for the original application will also see the publicity for the proposed non-material change. To give effect to this the provisions in these regulations are based on the provisions of regulation 4 of The Infrastructure Planning (Applications: Prescribed Forms and Procedure) Regulations 2009 (SI 2009/2264)².

- 5.8 The authority will also be required to consult those persons who were consulted about the original application, the relevant local authority and any other person they think appropriate.
- 5.9 The authority will also be required to notify its decision to each person that it consulted and each person that made a relevant representation.

Consultation question 1:

Do you have any comments on the application process for non-material changes? In particular do you think the balance is right between simplicity of process and transparency and opportunity for third parties to comment?

² Document can be found at <http://www.legislation.gov.uk/uksi/2009/2264/contents/made>

Chapter 6

Regulations on material changes

POWERS IN THE ACT AND THE POLICY INTENTION

- 6.1 The policy assumption is that a material change is likely to be significant and/or substantial and that consequently it is likely to have an impact on third parties. These third parties may be people who commented on the original application or who, given the content of the application, chose not to comment. If there is a request for a significant and/or substantial change to the development consent order that was granted then our view is that third parties should be given the opportunity to make representations about that change irrespective of whether or not they commented on the original application. To do otherwise would remove people's legitimate right to be heard and would weaken the legitimacy of the regime. If a proposed change does not have significant or substantial effects we would expect it to be treated as a non-material change.
- 6.2 We also want to clearly signal that the policy intention here is that these provisions should be used only where the proposed change to the development consent order is one that could not have been foreseen at the time of the original application. These provisions are not intended to allow an application to be made in stages, as that would weaken the provisions on applications which are very clear that there must be full consultation and that people must have sufficient facts on which to comment. Consequently, the provisions in the draft regulations attached at Annex 2 are deliberately full and robust.
- 6.3 There is also a further compelling reason for a robust process to deal with material changes and that is to comply with our obligations on environmental impact assessments. This is a European requirement which has been implemented through The Infrastructure Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 2009 (SI 2009/2263)³. This ensures that applications for a development consent order are subject to the required environmental impact assessment. Any significant changes to the development consent order must also be assessed. A recent ruling in the Baker Case (CO/397/2007) about how changes or extensions to existing development should be assessed in conjunction with that development was made in the high court. The effect of the ruling is that when determining whether an environmental impact assessment is required, authorities must look at the effect of the development, as modified, and not at just the modification alone.
- 6.4 However, we have been careful to ensure that the regulations do not allow for a reconsideration of the original application for the development consent order that has been granted because that decision has already been taken.

- 6.5 It is not possible to have a number of different processes for material changes depending on how significant the change would be because that would effectively be defining material change, and the Act does not provide the power to do that. Even if it were possible to create a myriad of application schemes it would in our view create uncertainty and confusion and would not be our preferred approach.
- 6.6 As the impact of a material change could be as significant as the impact of the original application, it is intended that the process for such a change will be closely modelled on the process for the original application. The advantage of this is that this process has already been the subject of full consultation⁴ and has been refined in response to comments received. The various elements of the application process were found, after consultation, to be necessary. Our view is that they would also be necessary elements of any process that deals with material changes.
- 6.7 There is a further advantage to using the same process and that is that those involved will already be familiar with the process. We must of course ensure that there are no unnecessary burdens on those involved, so we intend to make it clear in the regulations that the developer is not required to resubmit information already submitted but can cross refer as appropriate. Only new information related to the change applied for needs to be provided with the application. We think it is reasonable to expect that the amount of information that it is necessary to submit will reflect the size of the intended change, and in this respect the size of the application should be self limiting.

INTENDED SCOPE OF REGULATIONS

- 6.8 For material changes it is intended to provide a full and robust application process.

Pre-application

Pre-application procedure - consultation

- 6.9 It is intended that the applicant will be required to carry out a pre-application process that is comparable to that required for the original application. We intend to prescribe that the applicant must consult:

⁴ Two consultations covered a range of topics including pre-application, application, examination and fees. The documents can be found at <http://www.communities.gov.uk/archived/publications/planningandbuilding/consultationpreapplication>
<http://www.communities.gov.uk/archived/publications/planningandbuilding/consultationexaminationnsips>

- the statutory consultees who were consulted about the original application
- relevant local authorities
- persons with an interest in the land to which a proposed application relates
- the person who has the benefit of the development consent order (if not the applicant)
- any other person the appropriate authority requires the applicant to consult

Pre-application procedure – requirement to notify the appropriate authority

6.10 It is intended that the applicant will be required to notify the appropriate authority to whom the application will be made (i.e. either the IPC or the Secretary of State) of its proposed application by sending to it the pre-application consultation material.

Pre-application procedure – consulting local community

6.11 It is intended to require the applicant to produce a statement explaining how it will consult the local community. As already happens with the original application for development consent, the applicant will be required to consult the relevant local authority about this statement. The applicant will then be required to publish the statement and to carry out the consultation in accordance with it.

Pre-application procedure – publicising a proposed application

6.12 It is intended that the applicant will be required to publicise a proposed application in the same manner in which the original application was publicised. To give effect to this we intend to use the provisions of regulation 4 of The Infrastructure Planning (Applications: Prescribed Forms and Procedure) Regulations 2009 (SI 2009/2264)⁵. As before, there will be a duty on the applicant to take account of responses to the consultation and publicity.

Consultation question 2:

Do you think the pre-application process covers that which is necessary? Is there anything else you would like to see included, or anything you would like to see excluded?

Submission of an application

6.13 It is intended that the application will be made in writing and will contain:

- details of the applicant
- details of the agent, if any
- the reference number of the development consent order that has been granted
- details of the land to which the application relates
- an explanation of the purpose and effect of the application

⁵ Document can be found at <http://www.legislation.gov.uk/uksi/2009/2264/contents/made>

- confirmation that the applicant is either: the person who applied for the development consent order that they wish to change, or their successor in title; or a person with an interest in the land to which the order relates; or any other person for whose benefit the development consent order has effect
- details of the applicant's interest in the land to which the application relates
- if the applicant is a local planning authority, evidence of the matters specified in paragraph 3(5)(a), (b) or (c) of Schedule 6 to the Act
- if the IPC is the appropriate authority and the Secretary of State is the applicant, evidence of the matters specified in paragraph 3(6) (a) or (b) of Schedule 6 to the Act
- a statement that identifies which information submitted as part of the original application is still correct and relevant, and which information has been updated (this provision has been included to avoid the need for resubmission of information which has not changed)
- any plans and documents necessary to support the application (as before, note that this will not require the resubmission of unchanged plans and documents)
- a statement as to whether the application involves environmental impact assessment development
- a report of the pre-application consultation. The applicant will also be required to make consultation responses available to the appropriate authority, if so requested
- a statement that the applicant has complied with the pre-application consultation and publicity requirements
- if requested by the appropriate authority, paper copies of the application

Application fee

6.14 The application fee will be calculated in broadly the same manner as for the original application - see The Infrastructure Planning (Fees) Regulations 2010 (SI 2010/106)⁶. This reflects the fact that an application for a material change is expected to be significant and/or substantial, and as mentioned previously if it is not significant or substantial we would expect it to be treated as a non-material change and dealt with through the simplified process outlined above. There will, however, be one slight change as, unlike for a development consent order application, there is no concept of a 'formal acceptance stage' for an application for material change. The appropriate authority will still need some funding to undertake its initial work upon receipt of an application, and so a fee of £4,500 will still be payable at that stage. However, the fee at the pre-examination stage has been reduced by that £4,500 so as to reflect the overall reduction in processes that the appropriate authority will undertake.

⁶ Document can be found at <http://www.legislation.gov.uk/ukxi/2010/106/contents/made>

Environmental impact assessment

- 6.15 It is intended that an application for a material change will be treated as a 'subsequent application' as defined in The Infrastructure Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 2009 SI 2009/2263⁷. The effect of this will be that the appropriate authority must not grant consent for a material change unless it has either taken the environmental information into account, or it has given a screening opinion to the effect that an updated environmental statement is not required to enable it to determine the application.
- 6.16 The policy intention is that an application for a material change should require consideration of, and possible amendment to, the environmental impact assessment submitted with the original application. If this is not necessary then careful consideration should be given as to whether the change is in fact non-material. Of course environmental factors are not the only way in which communities can be significantly or substantially affected by an application, but the requirement or otherwise of an amended environmental impact assessment may be one indication of whether the proposed change should be treated as material or non-material.
- 6.17 It is not intended that any material changes are consented without first considering environmental information.

A submitted application

- 6.18 If an applicant proceeds to submit an application it is intended that they notify those persons that were consulted at the pre-application stage, and that they publicise the application. The format for this notification and publicity will broadly follow that for the pre-application stage. The reason for requiring notification and publicity at this stage is that the application may well have changed following the pre-application consultation, and it is important that third parties are able to comment on the application actually submitted.
- 6.19 If the applicant proposes to acquire more land by compulsory acquisition, then it will be a requirement to notify persons interested in that land.

Consultation question 3:

Is the information required to be submitted with an application appropriate? Are the consultation, notification and publicity requirements appropriate? Is there anything you think should be done differently?

⁷ Document can be found at <http://www.legislation.gov.uk/uksi/2009/2263/contents/made>

Examination

6.20 Before the appropriate authority makes its decision on an application we intend to prescribe that it must follow an examination procedure, unless the change is one of those described in paragraphs 6.27 and 6.28. This procedure will broadly follow that for an application that is specified in The Infrastructure Planning (Examination Procedure) Rules (SI 2010/103)⁸.

Consultation question 4:

Do you think there are any aspects of the examination process that it is not appropriate to use for the examination of a material change?

Compulsory acquisition

6.21 If an application for a material change includes a request for authorisation for the compulsory acquisition of land it is intended that sections 122 to 134 of the Act will apply.

Decision

6.22 It is intended that the provisions of sections 104 and 105 of the Act will be applied to decisions made by the appropriate authority. Regard should be had to the relevant national policy statement and to the local impact report.

6.23 The provisions of The Infrastructure Planning (Decisions) Regulations 2010 (SI 2010/305) will also apply⁹. These apply specific considerations to specific types of applications.

6.24 It is intended to prescribe that the appropriate authority must give a written statement of its reasons for granting a material change. This statement should be sent to the applicant, to persons consulted, to relevant local authorities and to anyone who has made a relevant representation. Where the appropriate authority is the Secretary of State, it should send it to the Commission. Where the appropriate authority is the Commission, it should send it to the Secretary of State. The statement must also be published.

Consultation question 5:

Is there anything else that you think should be taken into account in making the decision?

⁸ Document can be found at <http://www.legislation.gov.uk/uksi/2010/103/contents/made>

⁹ Document can be found at <http://www.legislation.gov.uk/uksi/2010/305/contents/made>

Effect of a decision

6.25 It is intended that the effect of a decision to make a material change to a development consent order should be the same as that specified in paragraph 2(12) of Schedule 6. Namely that if a material change is made to a development consent order the original order will continue in force as amended, unless of course the change is a revocation of the order.

Compensation

6.26 It is intended to provide a procedure for dealing with any compensation claims that may be submitted following a material change to a development consent order. This will be based on the principles for assessing compensation contained in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 at sections 107–118¹⁰.

CHANGES TO DEVELOPMENT CONSENT ORDERS WITHOUT AN APPLICATION BEING MADE

6.27 The Act provides that the appropriate authority may make a change to a development consent order without an application being made if the appropriate authority decides that the order contains a significant error that it would not be appropriate to correct using the correction provisions of Schedule 4. The Act does not define the circumstances when this would be appropriate nor does it provide the power to so define.

6.28 The Act also provides that the Secretary of State may make a change to a development consent order without an application being made if the development would contravene community law or convention rights, or if there are exceptional circumstances that make this necessary.

6.29 It is intended to provide that before any changes are made without an application the appropriate authority must give notice of its intention to the following: the person for whose benefit the development consent order has effect, the relevant local authorities, persons with an interest in the land and the statutory consultees. The proposed change must also be publicised in the same way that an application would be publicised and an opportunity for comment must be given.

(3) At the hearing, each interested party is entitled (subject to the Examining body's powers of control over the conduct of the hearing) to make oral representations about the issue.

Compulsory acquisition hearings

34.—(1) This regulation applies where the application includes a request for authorisation to compulsorily acquire land or an interest in or right over land (a "compulsory acquisition request").

(2) The Examining body must fix, and cause each affected person to be informed of, the deadline by which an affected person must notify the Commission that the person wishes a compulsory acquisition hearing to be held.

(3) If the Commission receives notification from at least one affected person before the deadline, the Examining body must cause a compulsory acquisition hearing to be held.

(4) The Examining body may vary the date, time and place fixed for any hearing and must give such notice of any variation as appears to it to be reasonable.

(5) The place at which a hearing is to be held shall be determined by the Examining body in consultation with the applicant and, where the Examining body is satisfied, having regard to the nature of the application, that it is reasonable to do so, the Examining body may direct that different parts of a hearing shall be held at different locations.

(6) Unless the Examining body otherwise directs, the applicant must not later than 21 days before the date fixed for the commencement of a hearing—

(a) post and maintain a notice of the hearing in a conspicuous place or (in the case of an application for an order making provision for land-based linear works more than 5 kilometres in length) at intervals of not more than 5 kilometres on, or as close as is reasonably practicable to, the land to which the application relates;

(10) A notice of a hearing posted or published pursuant to paragraph (6) must contain a statement of the date, time and place of the hearing, and of the section of the Act under which the application has been made, together with a description of the proposals contained in the application sufficient to identify the location of the proposed development with or without reference to a specified map, and details of a place where a copy of the application can be inspected.

(4) Without prejudice to the Examining body's discretion as to the conduct of the hearing, nothing in paragraph (2) or (3) precludes a person from referring to issues which they consider relevant to the examination of an application but which are not issues identified by the Examining body pursuant to paragraph (2) or included in their relevant or written representations.

(5) The Examining body(a) shall be responsible for the oral questioning of a person giving evidence ("A") except where, in the view of the Examining body, oral questioning of A by another person ("B") is necessary in order to ensure—

- (a) adequate testing of any representation; or
- (b) that B has a fair chance to put B's case.

(6) The Examining body may refuse to permit the oral questioning of persons giving evidence, or may require such questioning to cease, if it appears to the Examining body that permitting such questioning or allowing it to continue (as the case may be) would have the effect that the timetable referred to in regulation 30 could not be met.

(7) The Examining body may proceed with a hearing in the absence of a person entitled to appear at it.

(8) The Examining body may from time to time adjourn a hearing and, if the date, time and place of the adjourned hearing are announced at the hearing before the adjournment, no further notice shall be required.

(7) In making decisions under paragraph (4)(a), the Examining body must apply the principle that any oral questioning of a person making representations at a hearing (whether the applicant or any other person) should be undertaken by the Examining body except where the Examining body thinks that oral questioning by another person is necessary in order to ensure--

- (a) adequate testing of any representations, or

- (b) takes into consideration any new evidence or new matter of fact, and is for that reason disposed to disagree with a recommendation made by the Examining body, the appropriate authority shall not come to a decision which is at variance with that recommendation without—

- (i) notifying all interested parties of the appropriate authority's disagreement and the reasons for it; and
- (ii) giving them an opportunity of making representations in writing to the appropriate authority in respect of any new evidence or new matter of fact.

(4) This paragraph applies if the appropriate authority is satisfied that deciding the application in accordance with any relevant national policy statement would lead to the appropriate authority being in breach of any duty imposed on it by or under any enactment.

(5) This paragraph applies if the appropriate authority is satisfied that deciding the application in accordance with any relevant national policy statement would be unlawful by virtue of any enactment.

(6) This paragraph applies if the appropriate authority is satisfied that the adverse impact of the proposed development would outweigh its benefits.

(7) This paragraph applies if the appropriate authority is satisfied that any condition prescribed for deciding an application otherwise than in accordance with a national policy statement is met.

(8) The Infrastructure Planning (Decisions) Regulations 2010(a) shall apply in relation to the decision of the appropriate authority, subject to the following modifications—

Assumptions:

- Application is determined by a single commissioner.
- There is an equal split of applications – 50 per cent are 'straightforward' and 50 per cent are 'complex' cases. These are relative terms – both are less costly to process than applications for a material change.
- There are significant costs to the IPC for undertaking the publicity requirements – e.g. preparing relevant statements, making arrangements for plans to be available for local inspection, arrangements for placing of site notices, etc.
- A Grade 7 and a commissioner will need to undertake site visits for 'complex' cases.
- All applications are examined through written representations.
- The fee is payable regardless of whether the appropriate authority eventually rejects the application on grounds that it was not a valid non-material change under paragraphs 2(1) and 2(2) of Schedule 6 to the Planning Act 2008.
- Seventy-five per cent of applications are approved, and require Legal Grade 6 drafting.
