Regulatory Policy Committee

Declaration of interest - Guidance to members

For the RPC to maintain the highest standards of integrity and reputation, it is essential that all members declare any interest that they, or members of their family, may have that could give the appearance of a conflict, even where no actual conflict exists.

A 'conflict of interest' is considered to be any connection or association with a third party that is (or appears to be) against the best interests of the RPC, or which could enable you reasonably to be suspected of using your position within the RPC to gain an unfair advantage for or from a third party.

Conflicts of interest are best avoided altogether; however, the RPC acknowledges that conflicts of interest (and potential conflicts) are sometimes unavoidable. In such circumstances the principles of openness and integrity apply, and you are required to disclose and manage the conflicts accordingly.

Conflicts of interest are not restricted to just financial interest but include non-financial interests as well, for instance enhancement of an individual's career, education or professional reputation; access to privileged information or facilities (see Determining conflict of interest).

There may be times when a member has private interests that could be construed as being in conflict with the nature of their work for the RPC. This applies to both conflicts of a financial and/or personal interest.

A 'personal' conflict of interest may involve individuals known to you or your family; or by affiliation or a 'pecuniary interest', such as benefiting from a programme or a project's awarded contract, investment or grant. If there is any doubt, it is better to declare a conflict of interest (or a potential conflict) than ignore it or conceal it.

Declarations should ideally be made in advance when it is recognised that a conflict may occur, or if unknown at the time, as soon as when the conflict becomes known.

The RPC subscribes to the Nolan Committee's first report 'Standards in Public Life'. This report sets out the seven principles of public life and these are summarized at Annex A

The categories of interests are set out in Annex B.

Committee members' interests are set out in Annex C.

Disclosure of Personal Interests

Corporate values

THE SEVEN PRINCIPLES OF PUBLIC LIFE

Selflessness

Holders of public office should take decisions solely in terms of the public interest. They should not do so in order to gain financial or other material benefits for themselves, their family, or their friends.

Integrity

Holders of public office should not place themselves under any financial or other obligation to outside individuals or organisation that might influence them in the performance of their official duties.

Objectivity

In carrying out public business, including making public appointments, awarding contracts, or recommending individuals for rewards and benefits, holders of public office should make choices on merit.

Accountability

Holders of public office are accountable for their decisions and actions to the public and must submit themselves to whatever scrutiny is appropriate to their office.

Openness

Holders of public office should be as open as possible about all the decisions and actions that they take. They should give reasons for their decisions and restrict information only when the wider public interest clearly demands.

Honesty

Holders of public office have a duty to declare any private interests relating to their public duties and to take steps to resolve any conflicts arising in a way that protects the public interests.

Leadership

Holders of public office should promote and support these principles by leadership and example.
