Openness and accountability in local pay: Guidance under section 40 of the Localism Act 2011

Supplementary Guidance
Openness and Accountability in Local Pay: Supplementary Guidance

1. Sections 38 to 43 of the Localism Act 2011 require relevant authorities to prepare a pay policy statement for the financial year 2012-13 and each subsequent financial year. Section 40 of the Act includes provision for the Secretary of State to issue guidance on the content and application of senior pay statements. Relevant authorities must have regard to this guidance in the exercise of their functions under the pay accountability provisions.

2. Openness and Accountability in Local Pay: Guidance under section 40 of the Localism Act was published in February 2012 and can be accessed here: Pay Accountability Guidance. That Guidance still stands. This note supplements that Guidance and authorities in England must take account of when preparing their pay policy statements for 2013-14 and each subsequent financial year.

3. If a relevant authority has concluded that a particular section(s) of the Guidance is not applicable to their local circumstances, the relevant authority should set out clearly in their pay policy statements why they consider this to be the case.

Presentation and accessibility

4. Pay policy statements are public documents to be used as an information source to enable local taxpayers to hold their councillors to account on pay matters.

5. The Localism Act 2011 requires that as soon as is reasonably practicable after approving or amending a pay policy statement, authorities must publish the statement or the amended statement in such manner as they see fit which must include publication on the authority’s website. In addition, section 38 (4) requires authorities to set out in their pay policy statements their approach to the publication of and access to information relating to the remuneration of chief officers.

6. Once approved, authorities should ensure their pay policy statement is published as soon as is reasonably practicable. Evidence suggests that, while authorities had prepared their pay policy statements and published them online for 2012-13, a significant number of statements were not easily accessible and readily available to the public. Authorities should

2 One Society published a report: Leading the way on fair pay – which is an assessment of principal local authorities in England & Wales using local authorities' pay policy statements as source of information. On availability and accessibility of pay policy statement it found that the statements in the majority of cases could not easily be found. http://www.onesociety.helencross.co.uk/wp-content/uploads/2012/09/FairPayReport2012.pdf ensure that statements can be easily found, for example, by a simple search on their website. The statement itself should be published as a stand alone document in its final form, perhaps within the website’s transparency section or with other pay and workforce information.

7. The information within pay policy statements should be presented in a clear and accessible format. Evidence suggests that authorities should do more to ensure that that jargon is kept to a minimum, any acronyms used are explained, and that any hyperlinks used to access other documents or websites work properly. In addition, authorities should set out clearly and separately their policies against each of the requirements listed in the relevant sections of the Localism Act 2011. Where this is done effectively, it will help enable taxpayers to decide whether they are getting value for money in the way that public money is spent on local authority pay and reward.

Accountability

Salaries on appointment

8. The existing Guidance makes clear that full council (or a meeting of members for fire authorities) should be given the opportunity to vote before large salary packages offered in respect of a new appointment. The Guidance states that the Secretary of State considers that £100,000 is the right level for that threshold to be set and that figure remains the same.

9. For 2012-13, it appears that not all authorities chose to articulate in their statement if this was being done. Local taxpayers should know what their authority’s policy is on senior appointments and, specifically, have a right to expect that decisions about the most senior - and most costly - appointments are being taken by those who are directly accountable to local communities. As with all aspects of this Guidance, authorities should address this issue within their policy statements and make clear how they have taken account of this policy.

10. There will be some authorities whose salary structures do not include posts or appointments over £100,000. Where this is the case, those authorities should seek to achieve a similar degree of openness and accountability. Specifically, such authorities should set their own salary threshold which is more suited to their local circumstances and should allow full council an opportunity to vote on salary packages for new appointments above that level.

Severance payments

11. There has been a great deal of public scrutiny of the level of severance payments awarded to senior local government staff and rightly so. Authorities should ensure that they manage their workforces in a way that best delivers best value for money for local taxpayers and sets the right example on restraint. This includes any payments offered to staff leaving the authority.

12. Authorities are already required to publish their policies on severance for chief officers⁵ and their policy on discretionary compensation for relevant staff in the event of redundancy.⁶ In addition, other regulations provide for disclosure of remuneration of senior employees including details of severance payments within authorities’ annual statement of accounts. ⁷

13. Taken together, these measures enable greater scrutiny of the money spent by authorities on severance. However, given continuing public concern about the level and frequency of such payments, there is a case for going further to ensure that decisions to spend local taxpayers’ money on large pay-offs are subject to appropriate levels of accountability. Authorities should, therefore, offer full council (or a meeting of members in the case of fire authorities) the opportunity to vote before large severance packages beyond a particular threshold are approved for staff leaving the organisation. As with salaries on appointment, the Secretary of State considers that £100,000 is the right level for that threshold to be set.

14. In presenting information to full council, authorities should set out clearly the components of relevant severance packages. These components may include salary paid in lieu, redundancy compensation, pension entitlements, holiday pay and any bonuses, fees or allowances paid.

15. This follows on from the Secretary of State’s announcement⁸ that he intends to remove the costly and bureaucratic requirement for a designated independent person to investigate allegations of misconduct by senior officers from the Local Authorities (Standing Orders) (England) Regulations 2001. We are currently consulting with the Local Government Association and others on the draft regulations to give effect to these changes.

Role of Mayors

16. The Localism Act requires that pay policy statements must be approved by full council. Our expectation would be that where councils have directly elected mayors, they would involve the directly elected mayor and have regard to any proposals the mayor may have before the statement is considered and approved.
