Data Retention Schedule

UK Football Policing Unit

This schedule outlines the length of time the Home Office retains personal data in accordance with its statutory function to administer Football Banning Orders for England and Wales, and the UKFPU function to prevent violence and / or disorder at or in association with football matches involving a UK domestic or international team.

The UKFPU collects data to be able to carry out its statutory and other functions, including those related to law enforcement, safeguarding against, and the prevention of, threats to public security.

Under the DPA 2018, GDPR, specially law enforcement, UKFPU must only retain data for as long as is necessary and the purpose for which it is processed. UKFPU will retain personal data to comply with the Football Spectators Act 1989 14 C (5).

Review of Retention Periods and Data Storage

UKFPU will review their data retention schedule regularly and or as required by legislative changes, to ensure data continues to be held for as long as is necessary, and for the purpose for which it is processed.

This document will be updated at each review.
