

Consultant 186

3 December 2012

Dear Sir/Madam

I would like to make a submission that I believe the insurance companies work directly together to undermine doctors.

I am sure this appears to be the case as Consultants have not received an increase for more than a few consecutive decades. This is despite the fact that insurance premiums rise. The cost of living for Doctors and Consultants also go up. It is inexplicable to explain how the remuneration goes down for Doctors, both as a result of inflation changes as well as direct changes to the level of remuneration.

This needs to be investigated by the Competition Commission reporting in line with all other areas of trade and industry.
