What is the Transport Training Initiative?

- TTi is a non-profit association and a network that aims at improving human capacities in the transport sector of Developing Countries.
- The idea is to train transport experts in their motherland using national and international training institutes, teachers and appropriate curricula.
- TTi generates and conducts own projects.
- The main focus is sustainable transport.

Main Challenges

- High demand for skilled personnel in private sector and administration
- Training institutions missing or having difficulties in satisfying the demand
- Brain drain of skilled experts
- Inadequate career entry after university

Main TTI Activities

- Review and improvement of transport training curricula at training institutes
- Implementation of training programmes and modules
- Exchange programs for lecturers and students
- Internships and trainee programs
- Training near the job or on the job
- Targeted problem-solving research programs
- International cooperation and networking

Network Members

- Northern and southern training institutions
- Private companies working in the field of transport in Developing and Industrialised Countries
- Public and private donors
- Public administrations in Developing and Industrialised Countries
- NGOs and interested private persons

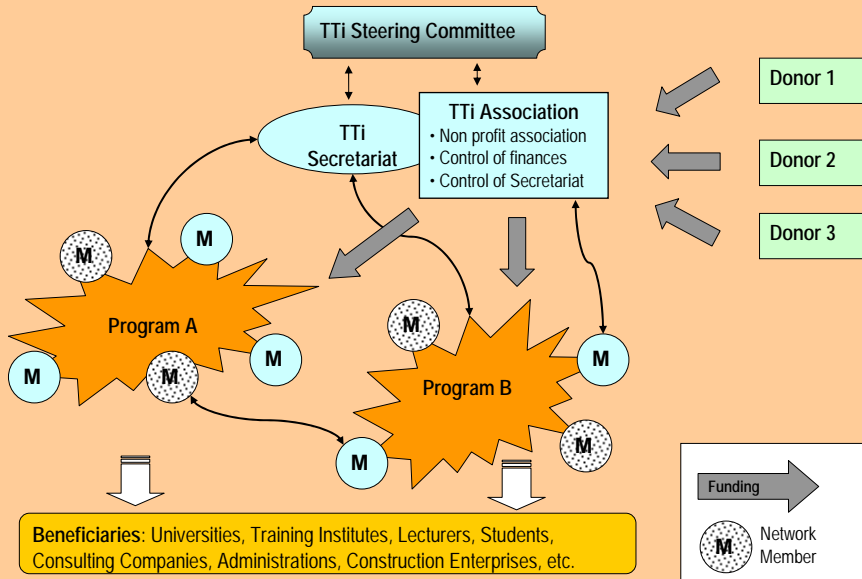

A Demand-Driven Approach

- TTI develops demand-driven projects in the South.
- Members are invited to formulate their ideas on transport training.
- The TTI Secretariat picks up the ideas and supports the members in fund-raising and developing projects.
