Dear [REDACTED]

Re: Reduced Harm Products

Thank you for your response (dated 18 June 2012) to my 5 April email. PMI does have a non-tobacco product in development. Developed by Professor [REDACTED] Director of the Duke University Center for Smoking Cessation and a leader in the development of novel smoking cessation therapies, the product is based on a simple acid-base reaction which results in a respirable, nicotine-containing aerosol. [REDACTED] continues to consult with us on the development of this and other harm reduction products.

[REDACTED] will be in London on 20-21 September. He and I would very much welcome the opportunity to meet with you on one of those days if possible, in order to share information and research plans for this product as well as for PMI's approach to tobacco harm reduction more generally. Of course, we understand that any meeting with the Department of Health would be completely transparent, and we would abide by whatever terms you chose in that regard.

We look forward to discussing these issues with you.

Yours sincerely,
