Introduction

This statistical release contains Official Statistics on the government's Help to Buy: mortgage guarantee scheme, covering the number of mortgage completions, types and values of properties, borrower incomes and breakdowns by geographical area. Excel tables with all the data set out in this release are available at:

www.gov.uk/government/collections/help-to-buy-mortgage-guarantee-scheme-quarterly-statistics

The release is compatible with the Help to Buy: Equity Loan statistics released by the Department for Communities and Local Government:

www.gov.uk/government/collections/help-to-buy-equity-loan-and-newbuy-statistics

In order to provide context for users of the Help to Buy: mortgage guarantee scheme statistics, comparisons are made to various Council of Mortgage Lending (CML) statistics, which cover the UK mortgage lending market as a whole. More information about CML statistics is available at:

www.cml.org.uk/cml/statistics

Help to Buy: mortgage guarantee

The Help to Buy: mortgage guarantee scheme opened on 8 October 2013 and is available across the United Kingdom. Under the scheme the government offers lenders the option to purchase a guarantee on mortgage loans where the borrower has a deposit of between 5% and 20%. The scheme can be used for mortgages on both new build and existing homes, by first time buyers, home movers and those remortgaging.

In order to qualify for a loan supported by the Help to Buy: mortgage guarantee, there are a number of eligibility criteria which are set out in the scheme rules.¹ For example, the scheme is not available on buy-to-let mortgages or second homes, and the property value must be £600,000 or less. Since 1 October 2014, no new loans with a loan-to-income ratio of 4.5 and above can be included in the scheme.

The guarantee compensates participating mortgage lenders for a portion of net losses suffered in the event of repossession. The guarantee applies down to 80% of the purchase value of the guaranteed property covering 95% of these net losses. The lender therefore retains a 5% risk in the portion of losses covered by the guarantee. This ensures that the lender retains some risk in every mortgage originated.

Over the life of the scheme the government will make available up to £12 billion of guarantees, which is sufficient to support up to £130 billion of high loan-to-value (LTV) mortgages.

Monthly figures

Table 1 below shows the number of mortgage completions through the scheme alongside the total value of these loans, the value of the associated government guarantee and the total value of the properties. There were 30,269 mortgage completions through the scheme to the end of September, which represents 3% of all residential mortgage completions in the UK over the same period.² The corresponding value of the guarantees was £644 million while the overall value of loans supported by the scheme was £4.5 billion. These mortgages were used to finance properties worth £4.7 billion in total.

No claims on the government guarantee have yet been made.

Property value

Table 2 below shows the number of completed mortgages supported by the scheme broken down by property value.

³ Minor changes in previously published data are due to lenders updating their total recorded completions.

The mean value of a property purchased or remortgaged through Help to Buy: mortgage guarantee scheme to the end of September 2014 was £155,759 compared to an average UK house price of £273,000.⁴ The median property value was lower at £138,000, reflecting a distribution where most properties are in the lower value bands. Over half of all mortgage completions through the scheme were on properties worth £150,000 or less. 8% of mortgage completions were made on properties valued at £250,000 and above. This reflects the fact that most mortgage completions through the scheme have been on properties outside London and the South East, in regions where prices are lower.

Property type

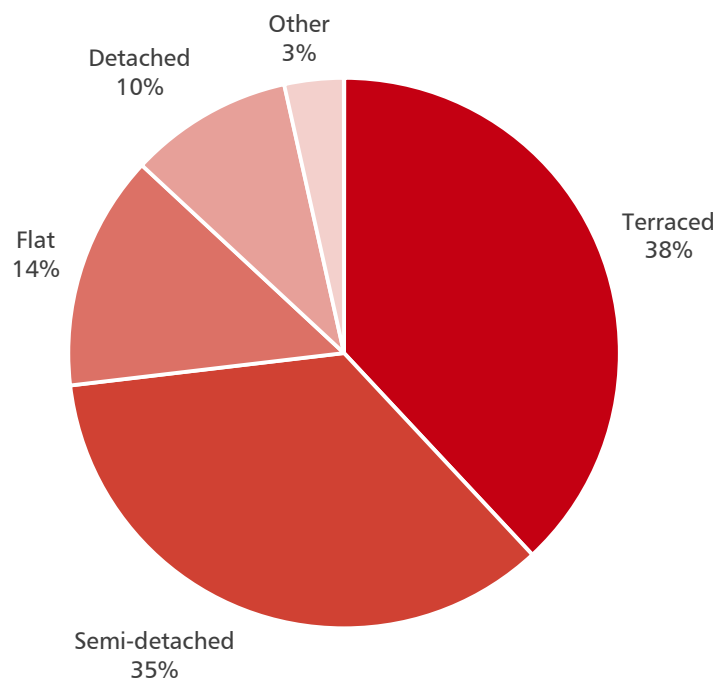

Table 3 and Chart 2 show the number of mortgage completions broken down by property type.

The majority of mortgage completions through the scheme were on terraced houses, making up 38% of total completions. The next most popular property type was semi-detached properties (35%), while completions for detached houses and flats were much lower, making up 10% and 14% respectively.

Borrowers

Table 4 shows the number of Help to Buy: mortgage guarantee scheme completions, broken down by borrowers' household income.⁶

Most households who completed a mortgage with the support of the scheme had a household income of £20,001 - £50,000. Take-up is lower for those on higher incomes: households with an income over £80,000 made up 10% of all completions.

The median household income for borrowers using the scheme was £42,683 which is in line with the median household income across the market for those buying a house with a mortgage (£43,097).⁷ The mean income for borrowers using the Help to Buy: mortgage guarantee was £49,072.

Table 5 shows the number of mortgage completions through the scheme, split between first time buyers and others (i.e. home movers or those remortgaging).

It shows that 79% of mortgage completions through the Help to Buy: mortgage guarantee scheme to date have been for purchases by first time buyers.

Country and regional breakdowns

Table 6 shows the regional distribution of the number of mortgage completions through the scheme in each region of England⁸ as well as in the devolved administrations. It also shows a regional breakdown of mean property values, number of first time buyers and borrower incomes.

Mortgage completions in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland account for 18% of the total. In Scotland and Wales the number of mortgage completions with the support of the scheme was proportionally higher than in the UK as whole, when compared to total mortgage completions. 9% of all UK mortgage completions took place in Scotland in the last year, compared to 11% of Help to Buy: mortgage guarantee completions. Mortgage completions in Wales made up 4% of the UK total, compared to a 5% share of Help to Buy: mortgage guarantee.⁹

Completions with the support of the mortgage guarantee scheme in Northern Ireland made up 2% of total UK completions supported by the scheme. This is broadly in line with Northern Ireland's share of overall UK mortgage lending. Since the scheme launched there were 17,200 mortgage completions in Northern Ireland, compared to 1,001,700 in the UK as a whole.

Help to Buy: mortgage guarantee completions in England are proportionally lower, with 82% of completions compared to an 86% share of overall UK residential mortgage completions. At a regional level a higher proportion of mortgages are supported by the scheme in the East and North West. In the previous four quarters the East and North West made up 4% and 9%, respectively, of total UK mortgage completions, compared to 10% and 14% of mortgage completions supported by the scheme in the same regions.

London and the South East account for 19% of all completions supported by the scheme. This is below the proportion of UK mortgage completions in these regions, which was 37% over the same period.

Background notes

Data collection

UK Asset Resolution corporate services (UKARcs), who administer the scheme on behalf of HM Treasury, collect data from lenders participating in the scheme in accordance with monitoring and reporting requirements set by HM Treasury.

Data quality

Both UKARcs and HM Treasury quality assure the data, using IT solutions and manual processes.

Audit and Financial Reporting

The scheme requires a rigorous audit regime to monitor and enforce compliance with the eligibility criteria and scheme rules. Lenders are required to conduct internal audits, in addition to administrator audits carried out by UKARcs to seek assurance as to the lender's compliance with the scheme rules.

Financial information relating to Help to Buy: mortgage guarantee is included in the HM Treasury resource accounts and the accounts for the Help to Buy: mortgage guarantee scheme.

Mean and median

The following explanation uses property value as an example, but the median and mean are used in the same way throughout the publication. The median property value is the midway point of all the properties values included in the analysis. That is, if there were 101 mortgage completions during a time period and they were ranked by value, the median property value would be the value in the middle i.e., that has 50 house prices above it and 50 house prices below it.

This differs to the arithmetic mean value, which equates to the average price – adding the property values together and then dividing this by the number of completions included in the analysis.

It can be useful to look at both the mean and median with property values. Extreme values at either end of the scale can skew the mean. Therefore the median can give users an additional way of interpreting the data.

Revisions policy

This policy has been developed in accordance with the UK Statistics Authority Code of Practice for Official statistics and the Treasury Revisions policy:

There are two types of revision covered by the policy above, unscheduled revisions and scheduled revisions.

In line with the policy above, if a significant unscheduled revision is needed (for example from an error in the result of the compilation, imputation or dissemination process), the statistical release and accompanying tables would be updated with a correction notice as soon as is practical.

There should be relatively few scheduled revisions as the data is compiled from established administrative systems. Where there are scheduled revisions these will be indicated in the time series and highlighted in the Release.

Users of the data

The data is used for monitoring the delivery of the Help to Buy: mortgage guarantee scheme by users including the public, Parliament, financial and housing companies and markets. They are also used to inform wider government policy on housing.

User engagement

Users are encouraged to provide feedback on how these statistics are used and how well they meet user needs. Comments on any issues relating to this statistical release are welcomed and encouraged. Responses should be addressed to the "Public enquiries" contact given in the "Enquiries" section below.

The Department's engagement strategy to meet the needs of statistics users is published here:
