Public trust in the Commission remains strong

The Charity Commission is highly valued by the public

The public and charities agree on the Commission's priorities

Supports trustees to run their charities effectively

Takes action to protect charities from misuse

Ensures charities are transparent and accountable

The public are more aware of the Charity Commission

2015 47% 2017 61% Triffit

Key stakeholders praise the Charity Commission overall while identifying some areas for improvement

Overall, stakeholders say the Commission is doing a good job

They have concerns about how the Commission has handled some issues

They praise the Commission's staff team

Nevertheless, they highly value its role.

Public trust in the charity sector compares well to other sectors

The public are more aware of and engaged with charities

The public want more from the regulator

41%

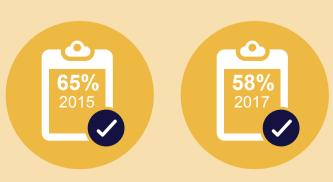

of the public think that the level of regulation is about right

However more people think there is too little rather than too much regulation:

32%

7%

Too little Too much

Perception that charities are regulated effectively has decreased, but most people still consider it effective