Product Safety:
Do you keep submarines safe?

Product Safety – What?

Personal Health & Safety

- 'How the work you do today, can affect the safety of you or your colleagues now'

Product Safety

- 'How the quality of the work you do today, can affect the safety of you & your colleagues or the crew of the submarine in the future'

Put simply Product Safety is about people.

1. We ensure that TAG outs are safe and will not harm the crew of the platform...don't we?
2. We make sure out factory testing is thorough and the equipment doesn't have any defects...don't we?
3. We make sure we order the right materials to the right specification...don't we?
4. We ensure that all plant and equipment are always used within the design limits and operating instructions...don't we?
5. We cross check our design assessments and safety case against what is really happening...don't we?
6. We clear up rubbish and arisings and manage loose article control...don't we?
7. We ensure that we record and report incidents, accidents and quality failures and learn lessons...don't we?
8. We ensure that our build standards are kept high whatever the financial pressures...don't we?

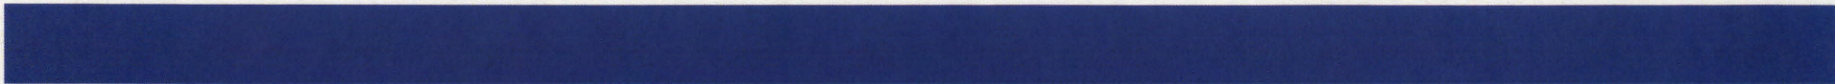

Closing Notes

BAE SYSTEMS

- As an enterprise we have a good track record but:
 - We have had near misses, and;
 - it is getting tougher.
- We need to consider Quality & Product Safety as well as Personal Safety.
- Encourage personnel to question, challenge, & report issues.
 - Informed compliance not blind adherence
- You as managers are able to drive the behaviours within your respective organisation. If they're not right – make changes.
- These events can happen to us – paperwork & systems alone do not make us safe – attitudes and behaviours matter.
