I have been frequenting my local pub - . - for 20 years. I have always enjoyed the variety of beers that have been on offer and was therefore upset to find that the pub had been restricted on what it could offer. Despite my desire to support this local business I have found myself not going to the pub because they don't have the drinks that I would like.

As a small business owner I would be outraged if I was limited on what I could / could not sell and don't see why this industry should be any different. A free market is the only fair one!

With best wishes
