
From:Sent: 03 May 2013 12:37To: Pubs Consultation ResponsesSubject: Survey questions

Dear Sir,

I've just completed the online survey concerning proposals to regulate the way pub companies treat their tenants/lessees.

One of the questions was whether any regulation should apply to all pub companies or only those with over 500 pubs. This figure of 500 seems too high to me. I can see the argument for exempting very small concerns from the regulations on the grounds of cost, but I think that a company with (say) 50 pubs may be just as likely to greedily abuse its tenants as one with 500.

Regards,

This email was received from the INTERNET.

Communications via the GSi may be automatically logged, monitored and/or recorded for legal purposes.
