

Please can you provide me with ‘the industry average duration of starting the journey to becoming an approved driving instructor (ADI) through to passing the part three’? I’m happy for this to be based on information held centrally on around 14,000 ADIs from dates of their first application to when they passed their ADI part three test.

The average time taken to qualify as an ADI is 560 days. The average time is based on the first application to join the ADI register as a potential driving instructor (and begin the ADI qualifying process) to when the ADI part three test was passed.

Please note that:

- the above information is based on the records of 14,412 current ADIs where details of their dates of first application and their ADI part three test pass are held centrally
- you can find further information about the ADI qualifying process online at <http://www.businesslink.gov.uk/bdotg/action/layer?r.l1=1081597476&r.l2=1082103262&r.l3=1084755704&r.l4=1082104381&r.s=tl&topicId=1096992587>

The information supplied to you continues to be protected by copyright. You are free to use it for your own purposes, including for private study and non-commercial research, and for any other purpose authorised by an exception in current copyright law. Documents (except photographs) can be also used in the UK without requiring permission for the purposes of news reporting. Any other re-use, for example commercial publication, would require the permission of the copyright holder.

Most documents supplied by the Driving Standards Agency will be protected by Crown Copyright. Most Crown copyright information can be re-used under the Open Government Licence (<http://www.nationalarchives.gov.uk/doc/open-government-licence/>). For information about the OGL and about re-using Crown Copyright information please see The National Archives website - <http://www.nationalarchives.gov.uk/information-management/uk-gov-licensing-framework.htm> .

Copyright in other documents may rest with a third party. For information about obtaining permission from a third party see the Intellectual Property Office’s website at www.ipo.gov.uk.