Consultation on Electricity Market Reform

New Earth Energy is pleased to provide its views on the Government's consultation issued on 16 December 2010.

New Earth Energy is a Verwood-based company that was established to pursue business opportunities created in the UK from the transition towards an environmentally sustainable low-carbon economy. We focus on projects that recover renewable energy from waste using advanced thermal conversion technologies of pyrolysis and gasification. We are pioneering the application of these innovative and novel technologies on waste-derived fuels and much of this is taking place at our site at Canford in Dorset. We have a strong pipeline of projects across the UK which are being developed to take advantage of government support for renewable energy solutions.

New Earth Energy is an active member of the Renewable Energy Association (REA) and has contributed significantly to the REA's response, which is attached for reference. As Chair of the REA's Renewable Power Group, a member of the steering group of the recently established Finance Group and a member of the Gasification/Pyrolysis Working Group, I am working with other industry members to ensure that where possible a favourable legislative and regulatory framework exists for expanding the UK's renewable energy production.

In order to provide developers such as New Earth Energy and investors with the confidence to continue with the deployment of innovative and novel renewable energy technologies in the UK it is vital that Government continues to provide stable and consistent support mechanisms. The transitional arrangements will be vital in maintaining developer and investor confidence in order to ensure that renewable energy deployment continues to meet the government targets.

New Earth Energy is committed to playing its part in delivering renewable energy solutions to meet these targets.

Yours sincerely
