From Will Savage: Chief Executive, Aluminium Federation

Dear Minister, ♦

I write to urge your department to support the case at the European Commission that the UK Government will provide compensation to the UK Aluminium companies who will be adversely affected by the next phase of the European Union Trading Scheme when it comes into force in 2013.

Aluminium production is a relatively energy intensive business and as the price of Aluminium is set globally by the London Metal Exchange there is nothing that UK producers and transformers can do to pass on the inevitable increase in energy cost that will occur as the generators seek to "pass on" the effect of the EUETS.

The imposition of EUETS, without compensation, will undoubtedly lead to carbon leakage as European manufacturers switch production to other parts of the world with little or no control over energy consumption and emission levels.

This will be bad enough but there is a danger that even within the EU some Member states will impose different levels of compensation leading to anti-competitiveness, and trading distortions, within Europe.

Can you confirm that DECC and BIS will work to ensure that the UK's competitive situation is considered and protected?

Yours sincerely

Will Savage
