Northern Ireland
Terrorism Legislation:
Annual Statistics
2011/12

1. The Terrorism Act 2000 received Royal Assent on 20 July 2000 and came into force on 19 February 2001. Between 20 July 2000 and 19 February 2001, the provisions of the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1996 (EPA) were maintained by Schedule 1 to the Terrorism Act. The Terrorism Act provides permanent United Kingdom (UK)-wide counter-terrorism legislation and reforms and replaces the EPA, the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1989 (PTA) and sections one to four of the Terrorism and Conspiracy Act 1998.
2. The Terrorism Act provides a legal framework and specific powers to combat the threat from all kinds of terrorist groups in a way that is consistent with Human Rights obligations. The UK-wide part of the Act is permanent, to ensure that powers needed to respond to terrorist threat are readily available. The Northern Ireland specific part of the Act (Part VII) was time-limited to five years. Subject to annual renewal, these temporary provisions were due to lapse in February 2006. The Terrorism (Northern Ireland) Act 2006 came into force on 18th February 2006, the main purpose of which is to extend those provisions of Part VII still in effect, until 31st July 2007. The Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 increased police powers for the stated purpose of countering terrorism and received royal assent on 26 November 2008.
3. The content of this bulletin will be kept under review and additional information will be included when relevant material becomes available.
4. This bulletin is designed to report on the key Northern Ireland specific Terrorism Act statistics. It should be noted that figures may be subject to minor revision, as most data are drawn from administrative or operational data sources.

Guide to the Tables

Table 1

Under section 33 of the Terrorism Act 2000 a cordoned area may be designated only if the person making it considers it expedient for the purposes of a terrorist investigation. Prior to the Terrorism Act 2000, this power was contained in section 16c of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1989.

Schedule 5 (made effective by section 37) provides that a constable may apply to a justice of the peace for the issue of a warrant for the purposes of a terrorist investigation. A warrant authorises any constable (a) to enter the premises specified in the warrant, (b) to search the premises and any person found there and (c) to seize and retain any relevant material which is found on a search under part (b). Prior to the Terrorism Act 2000, this power was contained in Schedule 7, part 1 to the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1989.

Tables 3-7

Section 41 of the Terrorism Act 2000 provides that a constable may arrest without a warrant a person whom he or she reasonably suspects to be a terrorist. A person detained under section 41 may only be held by the police for a maximum of 48 hours unless an application has been made under paragraph 29 or 36 of Schedule 8 asking a court to issue or extend a warrant of further detention. Section 41(7) provides that if a warrant is issued a person may be detained for the period specified therein, for a period up to seven days. Section 306 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 was brought into force by Commencement Order on 20 January 2004 and amends Part III of Schedule 8 to the Terrorism Act, extending the maximum period of detention from seven to fourteen days. Changes brought in the Terrorism Act 2006 allowed for the maximum period of detention without charge to be extended from 14 days to 28. This was reduced to 14 days by the Protection of Freedoms Act in July 2012.

Table 8

Section 41 (Schedule 8, paragraph 6) provides that a person detained in police custody under the terrorism provisions shall be entitled to have a friend or relative informed of their detention. Requests to have someone informed must be complied with as soon as it is practicable and in any case within 48 hours. Delay in complying with the request can be authorised only in certain clearly defined circumstances. Prior to the Terrorism Act 2000, this power was contained in section 46 of the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1996.

Table 9

Section 41 (Schedule 8, paragraph 7) provides that a person detained in police custody under the terrorism provisions shall be entitled to consult a solicitor privately. Such requests must be permitted as soon as is practicable and in any case within 48 hours. However, a delay in complying with such a request may be authorised, but only in strict circumstances defined in the Terrorism Act. Prior to the Terrorism Act 2000, this power was contained in section 47 of the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1996.

Table 10

Section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 gave the police powers to stop and search vehicles and their occupants, and pedestrians, for the prevention of terrorism. From 18 March 2011 to 10 July 2012 this power was replaced by an interim power through the Terrorism Act 2000 (Remedial) Order 2011. This power was substantively replaced by section 47a of the Terrorism Act via the Protection of Freedoms Act 2012. Authorisations apply to a specific area and are for a maximum of 28 days (though that period may be reviewed).

Table 11

If the Secretary of State considers it necessary for the preservation of peace or the maintenance of order, he may authorise a person to take possession of land or other property, and carry out works on land, which has been so requisitioned (section 91). Agency arrangements which came into force on 27 June 2011 provided for the DOJ to exercise these powers on behalf of the SoS in respect of transferred matters only. From August 2007 onwards, requisitions have been carried out under section 29 of the Justice & Security (NI) Act 2007 and not under section 91 of the Terrorism Act 2000. Prior to the Terrorism Act 2000, this power was contained in section 26 of the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1996 or section 19 of the Emergency Provisions Act 1978.

Table 12

Schedule 12 (made effective by section 102) allows for compensation to be claimed from the Secretary of State where property is taken, occupied, destroyed or damaged, or any other private property rights are interfered with as a consequence of action taken under part VII of the Act. Prior to the Terrorism Act 2000, this power was contained in section 55 of the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1996.

Table 13

Section 28 Terrorism Act 2006 enables a Justice of the Peace to grant a warrant for a search of premises for terrorist publications and grants power of seizure for terrorist publications.

Table 14

Section 1 Counter Terrorism Act 2008 grants powers to the police to examine documents during a search and to remove any documents for consideration as to whether they need to be legally seized as part of an investigation.

Table 15

Section 24 Counter Terrorism Act 2000 allows a district judge (magistrate's court) to authorise post-charge questioning of a suspect for a specified period.

Table 16

Section 45 Counter Terrorism Act 2008 places notification requirements on persons convicted of certain terrorist offences.

Table 17

Section 57 Counter Terrorism Act 2008 enables the police to make application to the court to impose notification requirements on persons convicted of certain offences overseas.

Table 18

Section 58 Counter Terrorism Act 2008 enables an application to a court to impose foreign travel restriction orders on particular suspects.

- Note:
1. Section 91 of the Terrorism Act, which ceased to have effect from the end of 31 July 2007, gave the Secretary of State the power to authorise a person to requisition land etc. Agency arrangements which came into force on 27 June 2011 provided for the DOJ to exercise these powers on behalf of the SoS in respect of transferred matters only. The figure published is a combined total of requisitions/derequisitions carried out in respect of both reserved and transferred matters. From August 2007 onwards, requisitions have been carried out under section 29 of the Justice & Security (NI) Act 2007 and not under section 91 of the Terrorism Act 2000.
  2. De-requisitions are carried out under the legislation under which the land was originally requisitioned. The original legislation may be either section 19 of the Emergency Provisions Act 1978, section 26 of the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1996, section 91 of the Terrorism Act 2000 or section 29 of the Justice & Security (NI) Act 2007.
