THE FACTS

Vehicle related theft has fallen by 40 per cent since 1997 according to the authoritative British Crime Survey 2003/04. The risk of having your vehicle stolen is very low – about once every 77 years.

This Car Theft Index shows that older cars (those aged 13-14 years old) are at the highest risk of being stolen. Cars aged between 11-15+ years account for 54 per cent of all cars stolen.

New cars are at least risk of being stolen – those aged 0-3 years old account for only 13 per cent of stolen cars. Sophisticated security measures now fitted as standard to new cars mean some criminals are turning to other methods to steal vehicles (for example taking the keys).

Cars are less likely to be stolen if they have a car alarm or some kind of immobiliser.

Theft from a vehicle is the largest category of vehicle theft according to the British Crime Survey 2003/04, accounting for 63 per cent of all vehicle-related thefts.

A consistent finding of the British Crime Survey is that around 65 per cent of vehicle crimes occur around the home. The clear message to motorists is to remember to remove all possessions from their cars when they park them at or around home, particularly at night.

THE 2004 CAR THEFT INDEX ALSO SHOWS THAT

In 2003, 282,816 cars were stolen in England, Scotland and Wales. This is 31,900 fewer thefts than in 2002.

Small saloons are stolen most frequently at around 12 per 1,000 registered on the road. People Carriers and 4x4s had less than half that risk of theft with only 6 stolen per 1,000 registered.

The car with the overall highest risk of theft in 2003 was the Vauxhall Belmont with 99 stolen per 1,000 registered.

Cars that were between 13 and 14 years old (registered in 1989 and 1990) faced the greatest risk of being stolen, with a theft rate of 31 cars per 1,000 registered.

Cars aged between 1-5 years old (2002-1997) all had the same rate of theft with 5 stolen per 1,000 registered.

HOW TO USE THE CAR THEFT INDEX

The Car Theft Index shows which makes and models of car are most at risk of being stolen in England, Scotland and Wales, but does not attempt to highlight regional trends. It is based on 2003 theft data taken from the Police National Computer (PNC) and on information provided by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) on the number of cars on the road. Not all models of car are included in the Index. Only those with sufficient numbers on the road to provide statistically reliable results are shown.

The left-hand side of each table lists the makes and models of cars included in the Index in alphabetical order. To see whether a particular car is at highest, medium or lower risk of theft, read along the line to the right until you find the column showing the year in which the car was first registered.

For cars stolen in 2003, therefore, the risk of theft is colour coded as shown on the right.

White blocks are used where a particular make/model of car was not available in the years shown. Grey blocks are used where there are too few cars of that type on the road for an accurate risk assessment to be made.

INSURANCE GROUPS

The risk of theft in this Index will not necessarily match the insurance rating for a given car as the insurance rating also takes a vehicle's accident repair costs into account.

Individual insurance premiums also depend upon other factors such as a driver's history and the area they live in.

The insurance industry have turned the assessments that give a car its insurance group into a 5-star rating for that car's ability to prevent criminals stealing it or stealing from it. The New Car Security Ratings (NCSR) can be found at www.ncsr.co.uk for many makes and models of car and is worth looking at in conjunction with this Car Theft Index.

Highest risk

more than 16 cars in every 1,000 on the road stolen, and at least 4 times more at risk of theft than the lowest risk cars.

Medium risk between 3 and 16 cars in every 1000 on the road stolen.

Lower risk

less than 3 cars in every 1000 on the road stolen.

WHAT TO DO NEXT

Following the advice below will reduce your chance of being a victim of vehicle theft:

Secure the doors, windows, boot and sunroof every time you leave the car.

Get an electronic immobiliser professionally fitted by a member of the Vehicle Systems Installation Board (VSIB) if your car has not already got one. You might also consider getting an alarm fitted. But in each case make sure you buy a product which is either Thatcham compliant or Sold Secure approved. Remember some security devices may get you a discount on your insurance - check with your insurer.

If you do not have an electronic immobiliser fitted, use a mechanical immobiliser such as a steering wheel lock every time you leave your car. Again make sure it is Thatcham compliant or Sold Secure approved. Mechanical immobilisers are a relatively inexpensive alternative to electronic immobilisers but remember to use it every time you leave your car.

Fit locking wheel nuts, as wheels are often a target for car thieves. Wheel nuts are not expensive and are easy to fit.

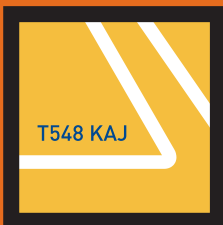

Never leave things on show in your car. If you have to leave briefcases and other items in your car, put them out of sight before you start your journey.

Try to look for a public car park that is part of the police approved 'Safer Parking Scheme'. For further information and location of your nearest secured car park go to www.saferparking.com

With good security, particularly on newer cars, obtaining the keys may be the only way a thief can steal it. Always take good care of them. Hide a spare set away in your home and never leave them by the front door or a window.

Have the car registration number etched onto all glass surfaces including the headlamps as this could help recover the car if it is stolen.

Mark all your car equipment, like your car stereo, with your vehicle registration number. For more information visit www.secureyourmotor.gov.uk

BUYING A USED CAR

When buying a second hand car, think about the security features. Also, you should check to make sure that the car you are thinking of buying has not been stolen. Although it is not usually a problem to buy a used car, it is always worth following the advice below.

Ask your dealer if they use a commercial database (such as HPI Group Ltd or Carwatch UK Ltd) to confirm whether or not a vehicle has been reported stolen.

Check that the car's chassis and vehicle identification number (VIN), including any etched onto the glass surfaces, match those on the documents.

Do not buy if the seller cannot produce the vehicle registration document.

Consider having the vehicle professionally inspected by an organisation such as the RAC or AA before you buy (see contact list on the following pages).
