Information released

The Department for Business, Innovation and Skills employed 12 people on fixed term contracts during the financial year 2012/2013 which ended on 31 March 2013. Details of the remuneration levels, length of contract and job details can be found below.

In common with other large organisations, temporary staff are sometimes used to undertake short term projects that are often resource intensive or require specialist skills in short supply within the civil service. They are not replacing permanent roles which the department has reduced in its restructuring.
