No. The evaluation by the European Commission will, as I understand it, be looking in detail at the calculations of the allowances and may come back with queries or rejection of what is currently there. It would then be for the UK to consider and, if appropriate, make corrections accordingly. That is why we regard the draft TNP as “work in progress”.

Hi Richard

Please can you confirm that all the units that are put through to Europe will automatically enter the TNP without further assessment.

Thanks in Advance

Richard

Further to the email you sent out on the 17/12/12, in respect to the UK TNP being submitted to Europe, I would appreciate it if you could advise as to whether the 8 combustion units of INEOS (Grangemouth), Scotland have been included on this list.

Thank you in Advance
