

From: Ken Cronin [mailto:REDACTION]
Sent: 22 July 2013 13:33
To: REDACTIONREDACTION
Subject: RE: Meaning of well site

REDACTION

I expect this is in relation to the exploration phase and the 100k per well site that is hydraulically fractured?

What we have said is per site and that most sites in the exploration phase will have one well and in very few circumstances two

In the production phase we go into revenue per site and site will be a pad, typically of up to 10 wells

Hope that is clear

Ken

From: REDACTIONREDACTION[mailto:REDACTION@decc.gsi.gov.uk]
Sent: 22 July 2013 13:11
To: Ken Cronin
Subject: Meaning of well site

Ken,

We've had a number of questions about what well site means. Can you give me some clarity on what this means?

We've said that we expect it would be clarified through your work into the autumn, but HMRC etc need a fairly quick answer.

Thanks,

REDACTION

REDACTIONREDACTION

REDACTIONREDACTION

Department of Energy & Climate Change,
REDACTIONREDACTION 3 Whitehall Place, London, SW1A 2HD
Tel: REDACTION
Email: REDACTIONREDACTION

<http://www.decc.gov.uk> <http://www.twitter.com/deccgovuk>
<http://www.youtube.com/deccgovuk> <http://www.flickr.com/deccgovuk>