

From: REDACTIONREDACTION
Sent: 30 October 2013 17:20
To: REDACTIONREDACTION
Cc: Figueira Duarte (Energy Development)
Subject: PHE lines

Hi Ken,

For info, below are the lines that we will be using tomorrow once the report is launched.

Energy Minister Michael Fallon welcomed the report's findings saying:

"I welcome this report which shows that the potential risk to public health from shale gas production in the UK is low.

"The UK has the most robust regulatory regime in the world for shale gas and companies will only be granted permission to frack for shale if their operations are safe.

"Public safety and health is paramount and Government will continue to work with industry to ensure the most stringent safety guidelines are upheld."

Further lines to take:

This report is welcome and we will consider its findings.

We are confident that there is robust and appropriate regulation in the UK to ensure safe operations that minimise impacts to human health.

Also here are the details of our press officer who is leading on this in case helpful tomorrow:

REDACTIONREDACTIONREDACTION

Department of Energy & Climate Change | 3 Whitehall Place | London SW1A 2AW
Email: REDACTIONREDACTION | Telephone: REDACTION

Kind regards,

REDACTION

Department of Energy &
Climate Change

REDACTIONREDACTION
REDACTIONREDACTIONREDACTION
E: REDACTIONREDACTION
T: REDACTIONREDACTION
Follow us on Twitter.com/DECCgovuk