This guidance tells you about the use of evidential flexibility when an application has missing evidence or there is a minor error on an application.

This guidance pulls together cross cutting guidance which previously existed in separate products, and amalgamates relevant information from other operational instructions.

Under the evidential flexibility process, if there are minor errors or omissions on a valid application but there is enough evidence to show the application would otherwise be granted, you may contact the migrant, sponsor or representative as appropriate for clarification or to request missing documents and/or information.

You must:

- request the information by telephone and inform the applicant or sponsor they have up to seven working days to supply the information or evidence required
- follow up with a written request either by email or letter on the same day (keep a copy on file for future reference)
- add a note to CID about the information requested and the deadline, and
- bring forward (BF) the case for the agreed period, pending a response.

If the applicant, sponsor or representative does not respond as requested you must consider the case based on the evidence available at that time.

However, if additional information is received by the UK Border Agency (not necessarily by the relevant case owner) before the case is despatched, you must take this into account. This applies even if a refusal decision has been completed providing the case has not been despatched on CID.

For applications made on or after 13 December 2012

You do not have to write out under evidential flexibility about a specified document if it is in the wrong format or if it is a copy and not an original document. You must be satisfied the specified documents are genuine and the applicant meets all the other requirements.

However, the UK Border Agency reserves the right to request the specified original documents in the correct format in all cases where paragraph 245AA(b) applies, and to refuse applications if these documents are not provided as set out in this paragraph.

All documentary evidence received must be treated in the same way as any submitted with the initial application.

Obtaining additional information

About this guidance
Obtaining additional information
Making contact by telephone and email
Making contact by post
Holding the case for nine days
Concluding the case

This page tells you about requesting additional information if there is missing evidence, or evidence that is not in an acceptable format.

You must only request additional information in certain circumstances which would lead to the approval of the application.

Before requesting additional evidence you must have sufficient reason to believe the information exists. Examples include (but are not limited to):

- bank statements missing from a series
- evidence to show specific qualifications have been provided before (either from reviewing CID, or a legacy application, such as globe)
- evidence detailed on a confirmation of acceptance for studies (CAS) or certificate of sponsorship (CoS) is missing
- named deposits on bank statements from an employer, but no wage slips provided.

For more information see related link: Evidential flexibility - documents which it maybe appropriate to request for each tier.

If you are not sure if the evidence exists, you must discuss the issue with your higher executive officer (HEO), or senior caseworker (SCW). If there is still uncertainty that evidence exists, benefit is given to the applicant and you must request the evidence.

You must refuse the application if the application falls for refusal even if the missing information was provided, or minor error was corrected. All grounds must be included, including any attributes where there was any missing evidence or minor errors.

Additionally, if there are any reasonable doubts over the information currently held that would cause you to seek further verification, you must do this before you request any further evidence.

Making contact by telephone and email

About this guidance
Obtaining additional information
Making contact by telephone and email
Making contact by post
Holding the case for nine days
Concluding the case

This page tells you about contacting the applicant, their representative or sponsor initially by telephone.

Where ever possible, you must speak directly to the relevant person, rather than leave a message.

It is recommended that you make no more than two attempts using the relevant telephone number (s) taken from the application form. If an applicant has a representative you must initially contact them and not the applicant.

There are particular points you need to make when requesting further information.

You must tell the applicant, their representative or sponsor they have a maximum of seven days to respond. For example, the missing information must be with the UK Border Agency within this timeframe. You must recommend the information requested is sent by next day special delivery. Original documentation must be provided, faxed, scans or photocopies are not accepted.

For more information see related link: Evidential flexibility case working phone script.

You must record the time and date of call, and the relevant number contacted on CID. If the case is eventually refused these details will need including in the immigration history section of the refusal notice.

If an email address has been provided you must follow up the telephone conversation with an email. As part of the telephone conversation, you must clarify the email address, or if one was not provided as part of the application, you can ask for one to be provided.

For additional information on frequently asked questions see related link: Standard lines to take regarding evidential flexibility.

Follow up email

All emails must be sent using the team mailbox, not from your personal mailbox. This allows other team managers and caseworkers to access any responses in your absence.

You must use the standard email when contacting customers, see related link: Email / Letter template \(evidential flexibility\).

If you are considering an employment route case you must include (EV) after your team name. This makes sure any response is given priority.

Details of the information requested, along with details of any emails sent, must be recorded on CID, with copies of emails sent and received printed off and stored with the case file. If the case is eventually refused, these details will need to be included in the immigration history section of the refusal notice and copies of emails must be included in any bundle.

No contact made

If you cannot contact the applicant, their representative or sponsor by phone or email you must issue them with a letter detailing the information you require. For more information see link on left: Making contact by post.

Making contact by post

About this guidance
Obtaining additional information
Making contact by telephone and email
Making contact by post
Holding the case for nine days
Concluding the case

This page tells you about contacting the applicant, their representative or sponsor by post.

If you are contacting the applicant, their representative or sponsor by post, you must make one attempt only to the contact address stated on the application form. You must always take care to use the correct address. If there is a representative's name given on CID, you must make sure the letter is sent to them. All letters must be sent by first class post.

You must use the standard letter when contacting customers, see related link: Email / Letter template (evidential flexibility). The contents of this template must be copied into an ICD.1100 letter in Doc Gen to make sure a record of this contact is kept on the system. You must make sure the telephone number included on the letter is correct.

- Tier 1 and 4 – Immigration enquiry bureau: 0870 606 77 66
- Tier 2/5 – Customer contact centre: 0114 207 4074

If you are considering an employment route case you must include (EV) after your team name. This makes sure any response is given priority.

Details of any letter sent must be recorded on CID and copies of letters sent and received must be printed off and stored with the case file. If the case is eventually refused, these details will need to be included in the immigration history section of the refusal notice and copies of letters must be included in any bundle.

Holding the case for nine days

About this guidance
Obtaining additional information
Making contact by telephone and email
Making contact by post
Holding the case for nine days
Concluding the case

This page tells you about putting the case on hold.

The case must be placed in the brought forward (BF) hold for nine working days after you have followed the existing procedures. Two further working days have been added to allow for the movement of evidence from workflow to the case working teams.

Each operational points-based system tier has a specific evidential flexibility BF spreadsheet on which to record cases of this type. This must be completed fully and care taken to make sure all details are correct.

After nine working days (with the day of contact starting as day one), have passed since the customer was contacted (either by telephone, time an email was sent or the time the letter was sent), the case must be taken out of BF and reassessed. You must check CID comments to see if additional information has been received.

If you receive all of the requested information or evidence before the nine days have passed, you must consider the case immediately.

Concluding the case

About this guidance
Obtaining additional information
Making contact by telephone and email
Making contact by post
Holding the case for nine days
Concluding the case

This page tells you how to conclude a case that has been held in the brought forward (BF) hold.

Regardless of whether the requested information has been received or not after nine working days the case must be taken out of BF and reassessed.

Information received

The case must be considered as normal, including any additional information supplied.

No information received

The case must be considered as normal on the evidence held by UK Border Agency.

All attempts to contact the applicant and any responses they gave must be included in the immigration history (SP4 section of the refusal notice), for example:

- On (enter date and time if phone contact) the UK Border Agency contacted you/your representative by telephone / email / letter and requested (enter details of required evidence). No response was received. Or
- On (enter date and time if phone contact) we contacted you/your representative by telephone / email / letter and requested (enter details of required evidence). You/your representative advised the UK Border Agency you/they were unable to provide the required information.

Any written forms of contact and any written responses must be included in any bundle created. You must make sure the BF sheet is fully updated when the case is closed.

Refusal

If the case is to be refused, all attempts to contact the applicant and any responses they gave must be included in the immigration history (SP4 section of the refusal notice) , for example:

- On (enter date and time if phone contact) the UK Border Agency contacted you/your representative by telephone/email/letter and requested (enter details of required evidence).
- On (enter date) the UK Border Agency received (enter full details of information received) and has used this when considering your application for leave to remain.

You must then create a bundle update the BF sheet as detailed above.

The case must be referred to a higher executive officer (HEO) or senior caseworker (SCW) for a decision to be made on what action must be taken.

If the case cannot be considered on the evidence already held you must take action as directed by HEO or SCW.
