Dear [REDACTED]

REQUEST FOR INFORMATION: TB In Culled Badgers

Thank you for your request for information about TB in culled badgers, which we received on 8 January. We have handled your request under the Environmental Information Regulations 2004 (EIRs).

The EIRs apply to requests for environmental information, which is a broad category of information defined in regulation 2 of the EIRs. Public authorities are required to handle requests for environmental information under the EIRs. They give similar access rights to the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (FOIA).

You asked could Defra furnish you with the information that, as was quoted by Mr Owen Patterson, “The pilot badger culls in the West Country have succeeded in removing diseased animals and will reduce the incidence of TB in cattle”.

You asked this question because, as far as you were aware, no culled badgers had been tested for TB. As you may know, a sample of culled badgers was subjected to post mortem examination and any signs of illness or poor condition were noted as part of the procedure. Please note that testing badger carcasses for TB was not undertaken on a routine basis during the pilot cull.

However a very small number of carcasses were tested on occasion at the specific request of landowners when they were concerned if a culled badger appeared to be in a very poor condition.

TB testing in culled badgers was not undertaken as a routine procedure as high levels of TB were confirmed in badgers in the regions in which the cull areas are located during the Randomised Badger Cull Trial (RBCT). This has been confirmed by other research work carried out by independent scientists. A link to the report on the RBCT, which summarises the Trial's results and which contains an accompanying literature review, is below. Pages 72 to 77 will be of particular interest:

I have also attached a link to an annex which was published as part of the 2010 consultation 'Bovine tuberculosis: the Government's approach to tackling the disease and consultation on a badger control policy'. The annex contains more information on badgers and TB:

In keeping with the spirit and effect of the EIRs, and in keeping with the government's Transparency Agenda, all information is assumed to be releasable to the public unless exempt. Therefore, the information released to you will now be published on www.gov.uk together with any related information that will provide a key to its wider context. Please note that this will not include your personal data.

I have attached an annex giving contact details should you be unhappy with the service you have received.

If you have any queries about this letter, please contact me.

Yours sincerely,

Defra TB Programme
