

To DECC

Dear people,

Allerdale & Copeland cannot be allowed to make a decision to accept this dump being built because this thing would affect people many miles away and not just anyone living in the area.

Already no end of money (£millions) has already been spent on this process and now they want to waste more money.

The governments own geologists have stated that Cumbrias geology is far from ideal for such a repository. The government and the nuclear industry arnt bothered about safety and the environment re the GDF, they just want somewhere to build this thing so that the Lake District will become a massive nuclear waste dump and the stuff will be shipped/transported from all over the place. It will be left for future generations to have to deal with the fall out - radiation leakages, rivers contaminated etc as these GDF's are designed to leak, they have to because of the build up of heat.

The most suitable underground rocks for a depository of this nature is clay of which there is plenty of that around London and Cambridge but i dont see those parts of the counrty wanting to have this monstrosity built nr them.

Best Wishes
