Member of Parliament.

Dear Sir.
Re Consultations regarding tied tenancies.

We have been in business for 25 years and over that period and myself worked with all the Major Brewery companies in the North of England for the last 45 years, the changes I have seen within this period have all seemed to be against Brewery's and now the Pub companies with there decline and loss of employment.

The latest seems just another, our workload with pub companies is approx. 10% of our turnover and we are not a large company but generate a turnover of £ [redacted] pounds per year, this is due to the fact that pub companies do invest in properties that generate revenue on sales and on our part employment to our workforce and the many sub contractors that we employ, many of which are only one or two man concerns. The taxes we pay cannot be ignored and if consultations go in the direction they seem to be I am doubtfull whether we would not be a casualty, if this was the case then a large percentage of our workforce would be thrown into being unemployed and being kept by the state plus the loss of revenue that we generate.

Yours Sincerely [redacted]

Roger Sowden (Managing Director)
