OITO Assessment	GREEN
The IA states that this proposal is to introduce a more flexible system that will be net beneficial to business (an IN with a Zero net cost) and that most of the quantified costs and benefits are to government. Based on the evidence presented this appears to be a reasonable assessment and is in accordance with the current One-in, Two-out Methodology.
Overall quality of the analysis and evidence presented in the IA Costs and Benefits. The Department has provided monetised costs and benefits, although they have not been able to quantify all of the impacts with any degree of accuracy. Sufficient qualitative analysis is provided for these impacts to support the assessment that this will be net beneficial to business.
