INDEPENDENT CONSULTANCY – SIX NEW COMMISSIONS

The Committee has considered your request to accept six commissions with: Sherborne School, the Association of Commonwealth Universities, the Institute of Latin American Studies, and the Institute of Development Studies.

The Committee noted that you had had no official contact with five of your prospective new employers, and that your only contact with the sixth, the Institute of Latin American Studies, was a meeting in which you discussed the possibility of accepting a commission with the Institute. The Committee noted that some of your prospective commissions will involve providing advice on Brazil, but that you have stated you will not undertake this work until January 2014, once the six month moratorium imposed on providing such advice has ended.

The Committee therefore agrees that these commissions are permissible within the terms of your independent consultancy.

I would be grateful if you could let me know when you take up these commissions, or if it is announced that you are to do so. This will enable the Committee to publish brief details on the regularly updated consolidated list on its website and in its next annual report. This letter may also be published (with relevant redactions of personal information).
