

Where a concern is raised regarding the welfare of a detainee an assessment care in detention and teamwork (ACDT) plan is raised. ACDT is a system used for monitoring detainees considered to be at risk of self harm, is operated across the detention estate and is modelled on that used by the Prison Service. ACDT is a care planning system whereby staff from all areas work together to create a safe and caring environment and provide individual care to detainees.

All incidents of self harm are treated very seriously and every step is taken to prevent incidents of this nature. Staff are trained to identify those at risk of self harm so that action can be taken to minimise the risk. Notices in various languages are displayed in removal centres setting out that, where there is a concern about a fellow detainee, this should be brought to the attention of a member of staff. Formal risk assessments on initial detention and systems for raising concerns at any subsequent point feed into established self harm procedures in every removal centre, which are in turn underpinned by the Home Office Operating Standard on the Prevention of Self-Harm
