MARINE ACTIVITIES BASED
SCIENCE: MONITORING, OPTIMAL PLANNING FOR THE OCEAN SEAS AND COASTAL WATERS IS IT ALL ABOUT? © EUROPEAN UNION, 2015

The Marine Management Organisation is currently planning for future marine activities in the East Inshore and East Offshore marine plan areas.

Working with local people, marine planning will seek to enhance benefits to coastal communities from the marine economy, including potential job creation. Comments are welcomed from as many people as possible as plans are formed.

We will be working closely with a broad range of stakeholders, including local authorities and communities to ensure that local people and partnerships have the opportunity to take part in the planning process. Marine planning will also link together with plans on land and other relevant strategies.

Have your say

Our guide to getting involved – the Statement of Public Participation – is online at: www.marinemanagement.org.uk/marineplanning

Get interactive

An online interactive map of our seas, the marine planning portal, is now live. It allows anyone logging on to understand how busy our seas have become and play an active part in marine planning. This can be seen at: <http://planningportal.marinemanagement.org.uk>

Workshops

We have been holding a number of workshops to hear from those with an interest in their marine area. You can find more information at www.marinemanagement.org.uk/marineplanning

Contact us

You can contact our marine planning team by emailing planning@marinemanagement.org.uk. We would be happy to explain more about how marine planning is developing, and can also put you in touch with our coastal liaison officers working in the plan areas. They can attend local meetings and events with an interest in marine planning.
