Dear [REDACTED]

I am writing in response to your request for information regarding the below information received on 29 September 2014. Your request has been handled under Section 1(1) of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. In accordance with Section 1(1)(a) of the Act I hereby confirm that the CNC/CNPA does not hold information of the type specified.

Please could you supply the following; from January 2009:

The number of times your police service has been requested by Ofcom to attend site (arranged in advance or otherwise) in order to serve enforcement orders - (seizure of equipment, interview under caution, issuing of a notice, gain entry to premises etc). The number of times for each full year would be useful but not essential as would a breakdown of the service requested of your police force by Ofcom. The ICO has previously declared that Ofcom case numbers to not fall within the category of personal information, so if these can be provided, this too would be helpful.

Secondly, please could you supply the following:

How many times your police service has reported harmful interference to its own communications system(s) to Ofcom. Whether in each of these instances the harmful interference was resolved by Ofcom to the satisfaction of your engineering staff or contractors (i.e. the interference removed completely or mitigated to restore an acceptable level of service). Finally any information you might have as to the cause of the interference (any reports, emails, case numbers etc.)

Thirdly, has your police service raised any formal complaints against Ofcom either internally or to a higher authority? Any documentation would be helpful.

The Civil Nuclear Constabulary is a specialist armed police service dedicated to the civil nuclear industry, with Operational Policing Units based at 11 civil nuclear sites in England, Scotland and Wales and over 1400 police officers and staff. The Constabulary headquarters is at Culham in Oxfordshire. The civil nuclear industry forms part of the UK's critical national infrastructure and the role of the Constabulary contribute to the overall framework of national security.

The purpose of the Constabulary is to protect licensed civil nuclear sites and to safeguard nuclear material in transit. The Constabulary works in partnership with the appropriate Home Office Police Force or Police Scotland at each site. Policing services required at each site are agreed with nuclear operators in accordance with the Nuclear Industries Security Regulations 2003 and ratified by the UK regulator, the Office for Nuclear Regulation (ONR). Armed policing services are required at most civil nuclear sites in the United Kingdom. The majority of officers in the Constabulary are Authorised Firearms Officers.

The Constabulary is recognised by the Association of Chief Police Officers of England, Wales and Northern Ireland (ACPO) and the Association of Chief Police Officers in Scotland (ACPOS). Through the National Coordinated Policing Protocol, the Constabulary has established memorandums of understanding with the local police forces at all 11 Operational Policing Units. Mutual support and assistance enable the Constabulary to maintain focus on its core role.

We take our responsibilities under the Freedom of Information Act seriously but, if you feel your request has not been properly handled or you are otherwise dissatisfied with the outcome of your request, you have the right to complain. We will investigate the matter and endeavour to reply within 3 – 6 weeks. You should write in the first instance to:
