

Email S Wales to Home Office 04/06/14 08:25

Thanks <redacted>

I'll try and get the potential impact quantified but I think you can anticipate some further lobbying for the Regulations to be amended sooner rather than later.

<redacted>,

Thanks for your response. As you know, I'm still relatively new to Police pensions. If forces do not deduct ESA, will the increased cost of pensions fall on the Home Office, through higher reimbursements to forces? Not a leading question, I just want to understand whether the consequence is for individual forces or the Home Office.

Thanks for this <redacted>

We are aware of these letters. Our advice is as always that forces must follow the regulations which do not currently explicitly cover ESA. We do plan to amend the regulations and are discussing with our legal advisers the best way to deal with this issue and others. I'm afraid we cannot give a timescale at present but we are aware that the issue is a matter of concern.

It's been brought to my attention that South Wales has received several letters of the type attached. I'm told that many other forces are receiving similar letters.

Is this a matter that the Home Office would consider providing advice on, otherwise we risk different treatment of pensioners across England and Wales? Is the Home Office planning to amend the regulations to make ESA deductible and, if so, what are the likely timescales?
