Subject: FW: Exceptional funding criteria

I should have added that following the 2007 floods, the (then) government's position was that it did not provide exceptional capital funding for insurable risks - therefore the onus was back on local authorities to insure (and they could not look to central government where they had self-insured against a commercially insurable risk).

Previously agreed criteria (which Ministers may of course revise) are that Ministers may grant exceptional capital funding for an individual request from a school or authority where:

- a. There would be unacceptable damage to children's education or wellbeing if the project did not proceed; and
- b. The authority/school could not reasonably be expected to fund the project from other resources; and
- c. There is a value-for-money case for investing at this time to reduce future costs and to avoid buildings being re-built to superseded standards.; and
- d. That there is funding available.
